PREFACE.

THIS is an improved and revised edition. Every Act contained in it is printed as amended up to date of publication.

To each of the smaller Acts contained in this edition, a digest of rulings has been appended.

In the Evidence Act and the Penal Code the rulings are inserted in their proper places under each section. The Penal Code contains copious extracts from the Reports of the Indian Law Commissioners.

The Penal Code, as bound in this Volume, is the edition of 1897; but it has been brought up to date by reprinting certain pages in which amendments have been made. For instance, an important amendment has been made by the insertion of ss. 489A, 489B, 489C, and 489D after s. 489 by the Currency Notes Forgery Act (XII. of 1899), s. 2. I have contrived to insert the additional sections by reprinting not only the page in which s. 489 occurs, but also other pages.

The additional rulings from 1897 to 1900 could not be embodied in the Code by being inserted in their proper places.

There are a few Acts to which no annotations have been added, simply because no rulings on those Acts have yet been published.

To facilitate reference, a special index is appended to each of the longer Acts.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

ARMS, &c., LIABLE TO DUTY.

RULINGS UNDER THE ARMS ACT.

A MAGISTRATE issued a notification that all persons desirous of carrying arms should take out a license enabling them to do so under s. 26 of Act XXXI. of 1860; and certain persons were, in consequence of this notification, arrested and brought before him, charged in a police-report with carrying arms without license. No summons or warrant had been applied for, or any complaint lodged before the Magistrate previous to the arrest of the prisoners. No charge in writing was framed as required under ss. 250 and 251 of the Criminal Procedure Code No evidence was taken; but the prisoners admitted carrying the fire-arms. The Magistrate convicted them, under s. 188 of the Penal Code, of disobedience to an order duly promulgated by a public servant. There was no evidence that the disobedience would cause or tend to cause annoyance, obstruction, or injury to human life, health, or safety. Held that the convictions must be quashed. Necessity of observing the rules laid down in the Criminal Procedure Code remarked on. — QUEEN v. NANDKUMAR BOSE, 3 B. L. R Ap 149 [Markby and Glover, JJ. Sep 14 1869.

THE mere possession of arms in a certain district being an offence if there be satisfactory evidence that the prisoners were in the possession of arms, they would be punishable for such illegal possession, notwithstanding the police may have also committed an illegality in their procedure in conducting the search for the same.—QUEEN v. SHRUPERSHUN REA, 2 N.-W. P. 57 [Turner and Spankie JJ. Feb. 1 1870.

THE proceedings of the Magistrate directing the issue of a summons to appear, and of a warrant of arrest against a person for the possession of arms without a license under Act XXXI. of 1860, were quashed as illegal. — In re RAMESHUR PERSHAD NARAIN SING, 18 W. R. 1, 9 B. L. R Ap. 34. [Bayley and Mitter, JJ. May 11, 1872.]

THE mere possession of arms without a license in Gya was held to be no offence under the Arms Act (XXXI. of 1860), the provisions of s. 32 of that Act not having been extended to that district. — In re MODNARAIN PURI, 18 W. R. 26; 9 B. L. R. 34*n*. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. July 5, 1872.]

IN a district where bison are notoriously in the habit of injuring crops, a license under form xi., rule 16, of the Arms Act, 1878 (rules to kill wild beasts which injure crops), justifies the holder thereof in shooting bison for the sake of sport without taking out a sporting license under form viii., rule 13, of the same rules —REG. v. BOMMAYA, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 26 [Kernan and Kindersley, JJ. Feb. 27, 1882.]

A COLLECTION of fire-arms, consisting of four small cannons four pistols, and thirty-one muskets, had been kept as objects of worship in a Sikh temple in Patna for upwards of two centuries. The mohunt of the temple neglected to take out a license in respect of these arms under Act XI. of 1878. A police-inspector who was appointed to see that the provisions of the latter Act were obeyed, searched the temple on information received, and, having found the arms, prosecuted the person who had charge of the temple The latter was convicted by the Deputy Magistrate of Patna under s. 19, cl. (f), of Act XI of 1878, and sentenced to pay a fine of Rs 50 or to be rigorously imprisoned for two months The Deputy Magistrate also ordered the arms to be confiscated, and directed that their value and the fine should be divided between the informer and the police-inspector On a reference from the Sessions Judge of Patna, held with reference to Act X. of 1872, s. 579, and the last heading to Sch IV of the same Act, and to s. 19, cl. (f), of Act XI of 1878, that the proceedings of the police-inspector and the conviction of the accused were not illegal. There is nothing in the Arms Act to exempt the custodians of a temple from complying with the requirements of the Arms Act, either by taking out a license, or obtaining exemption under s. 27. S. 25 of the Arms Act appears to refer to cases in which the Magistrate considers that arms, whether under a license or not, are possessed for an illegal purpose, or under circumstances such as to endanger the public peace. S. 30 of the Arms Act appears to contemplate the presence of some specially-empowered officer besides the officer conducting the search.—EMPRESS v. TEGHA SINGH, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 473

Act 11. [Cunningham and Tottenham, JJ. March 7, 1882.]

THE manufacture or possession of fire-works, including rockets, which are mere fire-works, without a license, is not prohibited by s. 5 of the Arms Act, 1878. The rockets referred to in s 4 are war-rockets.—REG. v. SUPPI, I. L. R., 5 Mad. 159 [Innes and Muttusami Ayyar, JJ. March 16, 1882.]

A GUN rendered unserviceable by the loss of the trigger does not fall within the definition of "arms" in s 4 of the Arms Act, 1878. Possession of such a weapon without a license is no offence.—QUEEN v. SIDDAPPA, I. L. R., 6 Mad 60 [Innes, Offg. C.J., and Muttusami Ayyar and Tarrant, JJ. Aug 21, 1882.]

As a gun barrel and nipple in serviceable condition fall within the definition of "arms" in s 4 of the Arms Act, 1878, the possession of such articles without a license is punishable under s. 19 (f) of the said Act.—QUEEN v. VYAPURI, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 70 [Turner, C.J. May 25, 1883.]

THE possession of gun-powder without a license, whether intended for the manufacture of fire works or not, is an offence under s. 19 of the Arms Act, 1878. Queen v Suppi (I. L. R., 5 Mad 159) distinguished.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KHASIM, I. L. R., 8 Mad 202. [Turner, C.J., and Muttusami Ayyar, J. Dec 19, 1884.]

CL. 2, s 32 of Act XXXI. of 1860, relating to the manufacture, importation and sale of arms, did not apply to the Badami Taluka of the Kaladgi Collectorate at the time when the Arms Act (XI. of 1878) came into force; and the notification of the Government of Bombay, No. 1112 of the 19th February 1878, which declares that the provisions of Act XXXI. of 1860, as modified by Act VI. of 1866, are in force in Badami amongst other places is not an order of disarmament under cl. (1), s 32 of Act XXXI of 1860. In the absence, therefore, of a notification, under s 15 of Act XI of 1878, extending, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, the provisions of the section to Badami the possession of arms without a license in that taluka is not punishable under s. 19.—GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY v. DADYAMA BASAPA, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 478. [Nanabhai Haridas and Wedderburn, JJ. June 18 1885.]

B, HAVING obtained a license under the Arms Act, 1878, for a matchlock, had the same converted into a percussion gun. He was convicted under s. 19 of the said Act, on the ground that the license did not permit him to keep a percussion-gun. Held that the conviction was bad.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. BODAPPA, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 131. [Muttusami Ayyar and Brandt, JJ. Dec. 17, 1886.]

SALE of sulphur and ammunition by the agent of one holding a license (in form vi.) under Act XI. of 1878 is not illegal.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SITHARAMAYYA, I. L. R., 12 Mad 473. [Collins, C.J., and Wilkinson, J. April 10, 1889.]

WHERE a person is found carrying arms apparently in contravention of the provisions of the Arms Act, it must be presumed, in the absence of proof to the contrary, that he is carrying such arms with the intention of using them should an opportunity of using them arise Queen Empress v Alexander William (Weekly Notes, 1891, p. 208) explained and approved.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. BHURE, I. L. R., 15 All. 27 [Edge, C.J. Sep 12, 1892.]

WHEN a Magistrate issues a search-warrant under s 25 of the Indian Arms Act, 1878 it is necessary that he should record the grounds of his belief that the person against whom the warrant is issued has in his possession arms, ammunition, or military stores for an unlawful purpose Where proceedings under the Indian Arms Act, 1878, in respect of the unlawful possession of arms, are taken against a member of a joint Hindu family, not being the head of such joint family, and arms are found in a common room of the joint-family-house, it is incumbent upon the prosecution to give good evidence that such arms are in the exclusive possession and control of the particular member of the joint family who is sought to be charged with their possession.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SANGAM LAL, I. L. R., 15 All 120. Knox and Blair, JJ. Jan 21, 1893.

A SERVANT of a person who possessed a license for two swords and a gun, which license also covered one retainer, was stopped by the police on the road while carrying a sword On being asked to produce his license, he was unable to do so, it not then being with him No opportunity was afforded him of producing the license, but he was charged with an offence under s 19 of Act XI. of 1878; and on these materials convicted and fined Held that the conviction was wrong. The law does not require a licensee always to have his license with him if, under such circumstances, on being required to produce it he is prepared to do so on a reasonable opportunity being given him to get it, and it exists, he should not be prosecuted; if prosecuted, the production of the license at the trial is a sufficient answer to the charge of infringing the Arms Act. Held, further, that a license granted to a person to carry arms, and including a retainer, authorizes any retainer to carry the arms specified with the permission of his master, and does not restrict him merely to carry them while in the actual presence of his master.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KISHUNWA, I. L. R., 20 Cal. 444. [Prinsep and Ameer Ali, JJ. Jan. 24, 1893.]

EXEMPTION of the master from the operation of the Indian Arms Act (XI. of 1878) extends to his servant and it applies to the possession of arms so long as the arms are the property of the licensee or person exempted, and the mere fact that the arms happened at the time to be carried by a servant does not make the servant liable for not having himself a license. Queen Empress v. Kishunwa (I. L. R., 20 Cal. 444, 1893) referred to and followed. An order extending the time for renewal of license has the effect of keeping a license previously granted practically in force, and a person cannot be convicted of an offence under s. 19 (f) of the Arms Act for a breach of its provisions within the extended time.—IN THE MATTER OF KALI NATH SINGH, 3 Cal. W. N. 394 [Prinsep and Stanley JJ. March 20, 1899.

THE mere temporary possession without a license of arms for purposes other than their use as such, as, for instance, where a servant is carrying his master's gun to a blacksmith for repairs, or where a blacksmith has a gun left with him for repairs, is not an offence within the meaning of s. 19 of the Indian Arms Act, 1878. Queen-Empress v. Alexander William (Weekly Notes, 1891, p. 208) and Queen-Empress v. Bhure (Weekly Notes, 1892, p. 221; s. c., I. L. R., 15 All. 27) referred to.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. TOTA RAM, I. L. R., 16 All. 276 [Burkitt J. March 9, 1894.]

A REVOLVER with a broken trigger is within the definition of "arms" in the Indian Arms Act, 1878, s. 4. Whether, in any particular case, an instrument is a fire arm or not, is a question of fact to be determined according to circumstances and the circumstance, that it is in an unserviceable condition, is not conclusive.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. JAVARAMI REDDI, I. L. R., 21 Mad. 360 [Shephard, Subramania Ayyar, Davies, and Boddam, JJ. Sep. 16, Nov. 5, 10, 1897.]

CERTAIN persons were convicted under s. 5 of Act XXXI. of 1860 of manufacturing and selling gunpowder without a license, and sentenced to fine or, in default, imprisonment. S. 44 of the Act provides a special procedure for levying the fine by distress. Held that the sentence was legal, the Act giving power to imprison or fine upon conviction.—PRO., JUNE 1, 1870, 5 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. XXIII.

ACT NO. XIII. OF 1859.

THE WORKMAN'S BREACH OF CONTRACT ACT, 1859.*

RECEIVED G.-G.'s ASSENT ON 4TH MAY 1859.

An Act to provide for the Punishment of Breaches of Contract by Artificers, Workmen, and Labourers in certain cases.

Preamble.

WHEREAS much loss and inconvenience are sustained by manufacturers, tradesmen, and others in the several presidency-towns of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, and in other places, from fraudulent breach of contract on the part of artificers, workmen, and labourers who have received money in advance on account of work which they have contracted to perform; and whereas the remedy by suit in the Courts for the recovery of damages is wholly insufficient; and it is just and proper that persons guilty of such fraudulent breach of contract should be subject to punishment; It is enacted as follows: —

Complaint to Magistrate if workman neglect to perform work for which he has received advance.

1. When any artificer, workman, or labourer, shall have received, from any master or employer resident or carrying on business in any presidency-town,† or from any person acting on behalf of such master or employer, an advance of money on account of any work which he shall have contracted to perform, or to get performed by any other artificers, workmen, or labourers, if such artificer, workman, or labourer shall wilfully, and without lawful or reasonable excuse, neglect or refuse to perform, or get performed, such work according to the terms of his contract, such master or employer, or any such person as aforesaid, may complain to a Magistrate of Police, and the Magistrate shall thereupon issue a summons or a warrant, as he shall think proper, for bringing before him such artificer, workman, or labourer, and shall hear and determine the case.

Magistrate may order repayment of advance or performance of contract.

2. If it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Magistrate that such artificer, workman, or labourer, has received money in advance from the complainant on account of any work, and has wilfully, and without lawful or reasonable excuse, neglected or refused to perform, or get performed, the same according to the terms of his contract, the Magistrate shall, at the option of the complainant, either order such artificer, workman, or labourer, to repay the money advanced, or such part thereof as may seem to the Magistrate just and proper, or order him to perform, or get performed, such work according to the terms of his contract; and, if such artificer, workman, or labourer, shall fail to comply with the said order, the Magistrate may sentence him to be imprisoned with hard labour for a term not exceeding three months, or, if the order be for the repayment of a sum of money,

Penalty if workman fail to comply with order.

RULINGS UNDER THE WORKMAN'S BREACH OF CONTRACT ACT.

THE imprisonment of a defendant by order of the Magistrate under Act XIII of 1859 does not preclude the plaintiff from proceeding by civil suit for recovery of money advanced to the defendant for the performance of work.—VERNEDE v. ABDUL GIRI CHINNA SWAMI, 2 Mad. AN order directing compensation under Act XIII. of 1859 is illegal. Such portion of the money advanced to defendant as has been appropriated to the fulfilment of the contract, or as could justly be set off against a part-fulfilment of the contract, ought not to be ordered to be refunded —PRO., AUG. 17, 1869 4 Mad. H. C. R. Ap lxvii

A BREACH of contract to supply wood does not fall within the purview of Act XIII. of 1859.—IN THE CASE OF THE UPPER ASSAM TEA COMPANY v. THOPOOR, 4 B L. R. Ap 1 [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Oct 27, 1869.]

WHERE a labourer contracted with the manager of a silk-factory for a money consideration to work at the factory for four months in a year for a period of three years, and broke the terms of his contract, he was held liable to a prosecution under Act XIII. of 1859, and the order of the Magistrate holding that such a contract was an unreasonable one, and therefore one which ought not to be enforced by him, was set aside. —KOONJOBEHARY LALL v. RAJA DOOMNRY: KOONJOBEHARY LALL v. RUGHOONATH DOME, 14 W. IN cases falling under Act XIII. of 1859, the Calendar should be submitted to the appellate authority immediately that an order under the first part of s. 2 is passed. He was prosecuted and convicted of breach of contract of service under Act XIII. of 1859. Held that he was not liable to be dealt with criminally, because there was no fraudulent breach of contract within the meaning of Act XIII. of 1859, and because, further, no money in advance was received, the consideration for the agreement to serve being an old debt —REG. v. JETHYA valad VESTYA, 9 Bom H. A MAHOUT (or elephant-driver) does not come within the provisions of Act XIII. of 1859.—MUNI CHUNDRA AND HORIRAM AHOM. 8 C. L. R. 254. [Pontifex and Field, JJ. March 31, 1881.]

AN employer of workmen residing or carrying on business in the city of Mirzapur, alleging that he had advanced money to certain workmen on the understanding that they would work for him and no one else until they had repaid such money, and that they had broken such contract by leaving his employment, made a complaint against such workmen under Act XIII. of 1859, which had been extended to the "station" of Mirzapur by the Local Government. It appeared that such money was advanced by way of loan, and without any reference to the wages of such workmen or the payment for the work performed by them, and that no deduction on account of such advance was ever made from their wages for the payments made to them. Held that the contract between the parties was something quite different from any contract contemplated by Act XIII of 1859, and that that Act was therefore not applicable. Held, also, that it was doubtful whether that Act applied locally, as it was not shown that the city of Mirzapur was comprised within the "station" of Mirzapur.—IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF RAM PRASAD v. DIRGPAL. I. L. R., 3 All. 744. [Oldfield, J. April 7, 1881.]

THE inquiry to be made under s. 2 of Act XIII. of 1859 is not an inquiry into an offence which may be tried summarily.—POLLARD v. MOTHIAL. I. L. R., 4 Mad. 234. [Kindersley and Muttusami Ayyar, JJ. Oct. 31, 1881.]

WHERE an order has been made by a Magistrate under Act XIII of 1859 s. 2, for the fulfilment of a labour-contract a sentence of imprisonment for disobeying such order without complaint made, and without taking statements from the accused, is illegal, although the accused, before the order was made, may have stated their inability to perform the work stipulated for.—SRINIVASA v. PONNAMBALAM. I. L. R., 5 Mad. 376. [Muttusami Ayyar and Tarrant, JJ. Aug. 5, 1882.]

ACT XIII of 1859 (to provide for the punishment of breaches of contract by artificers, workmen, and labourers in certain cases, extended to all the collectorates of the Bombay Presidency by Notification of the Government of Bombay, dated 10th of May 1860) does not apply to a contract whereby a person, in consideration of receiving Rs. 45, bound himself to another to render service for "agricultural and other purposes" for the period of one year.—EMPRESS v. BHAGVAN BHISAN. I. L. R., 7 Bom. 37. [Kemball and Pinhey, JJ. March 29, 1883.]

HAVING agreed to work for wages in a tannery, and received Rs. 10 from M, his employer, T promised to work off the advance by allowing M to deduct 8 annas a week from his weekly wages. Held that the provisions of Act XIII. of 1859 were applicable to this contract.—QUEEN v. TULUKAMAN. I. L. R., 7 Mad. 131. [Turner, C.J., and Kindersley, J. Aug. 3, 1883.]

A PERSON, whose ordinary business was that of a contracting bricklayer, and who did not himself work, received an advance, contracted to get certain earthwork done on a race-course, and committed a breach of contract. Held that he was not an artificer, workman, or labourer within the meaning of Act XIII. of 1859.—GILBY v. SUBBU. I. L. R., 7 Mad. 100. [Turner, C.J. Aug. 17, 1883.]

B, HAVING contracted in foreign territory to labour for S in British territory, broke his contract. He was arrested in foreign territory, brought into British territory, prosecuted under Act XIII. of 1859, and ordered to perform the contract. Held that the Court had no jurisdiction.—SIDDHA v. BILLIGIRI. I. L. R., 7 Mad. 354. [Hutchins, J. Mar. 18, 1884.]

A CONTRACT, in consideration of an advance of money to supply labourers to do certain work on an estate, falls within the scope of Act XIII of 1859 and the fact that such contract contains covenants to pay penalties in default of supplying the labourers, and to repay the advance, if necessary, by personal labour for five years, does not take the contract out of the operation of the Act, so as to make illegal an order directing the contractor to be imprisoned for failure to comply with an order to repay the advance.—RAMASAMI v. KADASAMI. I. L. R., 8 Mad. 379. [Turner, C.J., and Brandt, J. Jan. 19, 1885.]

AN advance of money and grain having been made to a labourer for work to be done, the labourer failed to complete the work, and an order was passed by a Magistrate, under s. 2 of Act XIII. of 1859, directing repayment of the balance of the advance not worked off by the labourer. Held that, as it was not proved that the labourer was offered and accepted the grain in lieu of money to be advanced, the order was illegal.—KONDADU v. RAMUDU. I. L. R., 8 Mad. 294. [Muttusami Ayyar and Brandt, JJ. Feb. 12, 1885.]

THE petitioner, who, as sub-contractor, had engaged to do certain work for which he was paid an advance, but did not himself work, was convicted by a Magistrate, under s. 2 of Act XIII. of 1859, of the offence of breach of contract, and sentenced to undergo one month's imprisonment in default of his failure to fulfil the contract. Held that he was not an artificer, workman, or labourer within the meaning of s. 2 of Act XIII of 1859. The conviction and sentence were accordingly set aside.—In re THE PETITION OF BALKRISHNA SHALIGRAM, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 96 [Nanabhai Haridas and Wedderburn, JJ. Aug. 18, 1885.]

V, HAVING received an advance of money from G, contracted to labour for him in foreign territory. Having broken the contract, V was prosecuted under Act XIII of 1859, ordered to repay, and sentenced to imprisonment in default. Held that the order was illegal.—GREGORY v. VADAKASI KANGANI, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 21. [Parker, J. Sep. 28, 1886.]

ACT XIII. of 1859 being a penal enactment, the Limitation Act is no bar to a claim under s. 2 to recover an advance made to a labourer.—IN THE MATTER OF KITTU, I. L. R., 11 Mad. 332. [Collins, C.J., and Muttusami Ayyar, J. Dec. 15, 1887.]

OFFENCES under s. 2 of Act XIII of 1859 are triable summarily under s. 260 of the Criminal Procedure Code. The offence made punishable by s. 2 of Act XIII. of 1859 is the wilful, and without lawful and reasonable excuse, neglecting or refusing to perform the contract entered into by persons whom the Act concerns. Notwithstanding the preamble of the Act, it is not necessary to prove that a breach of contract is fraudulent in order to sustain a conviction under s. 2. Taradoss Bhattacharjee v. Bhalloo Sheikh (8 W. R. Cr. 69) dissented from. Where the enacting sections of a statute are clear, the terms of the preamble cannot be called in aid to restrict their operation, or to cut them down.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. INDARJIT, I. L. R., 11 All. 262. [Straight, J. March 15, 1889.]

AN advance was made under a contract by which the party who received the advance undertook to convey salt by boat, but did not bind himself to render personal labour. The party who received the advance broke the contract. Held, the parties to the contract were not an employer of labour and a labourer respectively, and consequently the contract did not fall within the provisions of Act XIII. of 1859.—CALURAM v. CHENGAPPA, I. L. R., 13 Mad. 351. [Arthur Collins and Parker, JJ. Oct. 24, Nov. 1, 1889.]

ACT XIII. of 1859 (an Act to provide for the punishment of breaches of contract by artificers, workmen, and labourers in certain cases) applies only "where there has been an advance of money on account of any work," which words do not include mere loans or old debts. The interference of the Magistrate under the Act is limited to cases where the neglect or refusal to perform is wilful, and without lawful and reasonable excuse. As a rule, a mere breach of contract ought not to be an offence, but only to be the subject of a civil action. And a man cannot be treated as a criminal for not performing a contract which could not be enforced against him by civil process.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAJAB, I. L. R., 16 Bom. 368. [Jardine and Telang, JJ. Jan. 12, 1892.]

IN a prosecution for breach of contract under Act XIII. of 1859, it appeared that the complainant had advanced certain sums of money to the accused, but that a suit to recover the same was barred by limitation; and the Magistrate thereupon dismissed the charge. Held that there was no reason why the Magistrate should not have ordered repayment to be made by the accused under s. 2.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KONDA, I. L. R., 16 Mad. 347. [Collins, C.J., and Shephard, J. March 1, 3, 1893.]

A CONVICTION for breach of contract of service under s. 2, Act XIII. of 1859, is a bar to any subsequent conviction on the same contract for a further breach for not returning to service.—GRIFFITHS v. TEZAI DOSADH, I. L. R., 21 Cal. 262. [Prinsep and Amir Ali, JJ. Jan. 4, 1894.]

S. 83 of the Criminal Procedure Code applies to warrants issued under s. 1 of Act XIII. of 1859, and consequently such warrants may be executed outside the local jurisdiction of the Magistrate issuing them.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KATIYAN, I. L. R., 20 Mad. 235. [Arthur Collins, C.J., and Shephard, J. July 15, 1897.]

HELD that s. 83 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is applicable to warrants issued under Act XIII. of 1859. Queen-Empress v. Kattayan (I. L. R., 20 Mad. 235) followed.—GAURI SANKAR v. MATA PRASAD, I. L. R., 20 All. 124. [Edge, C.J., and Burkit, J. Nov. 16, 1897.]

A PRESIDENCY MAGISTRATE of Calcutta may lawfully take cognizance, under s. 1 of Act XIII. of 1859, of a complaint in respect of a contract made in Calcutta, the breach of which has been committed beyond the local jurisdiction of his Court. The expression "Magistrate of Police," in s. 1, Act XIII of 1859, means "Presidency Magistrate."—LAL MOHAN CHOBEY v. HARI CHARAN DAS

1859. RULINGS UNDER THE WORKMAN'S BREACH OF CONTRACT ACT—(concluded).

Act 13. BAIRAGI, I. L. R., 25 Cal. 637. [Hill and Stevens, JJ. Jan. 13, 1898.]

IN the trial of a case under the Workman's Breach of Contract Act (XIII. of 1859) the Magistrate is not bound to frame his record in accordance with the provisions of s 370 of the Criminal Procedure Code. It is doubtful whether a proceeding under the first clause of s 2, and under s. 3 of Act XIII. of 1859, is a criminal proceeding. There is no offence committed, and there is no accused. The provisions of s. 370 of the Criminal Procedure Code are, therefore, inapplicable to a case of this nature.—AVERAM DAS MOCHI v. ABDUL RAHIN, I. L. R., 27 Cal 131. [Rampini and Pratt, JJ. ### TAXATION AND CANTONMENT FUND

General power of taxation.

17. (1) With the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette,—

(b) abolish or modify any tax so imposed.

(2) When any tax is leviable in a cantonment in pursuance of a notification under sub-section (1), the Local Government, with the like sanction, may, by a like notification, apply or adapt to the cantonment the provisions of any enactment or rules in force at the date of the notification for the assessment and recovery of any tax in any municipality within the territories administered by such Government.‡

RULINGS UNDER THE CANTONMENTS ACT.

A SUB-CONDUCTOR in the Commissariat Department is not a "soldier" within the meaning of s. 14 of Act III. of 1880, and consequently the sale of spirituous liquor to the wife of such a person without the license required by that section is not an offence against that section.—EMPRESS v. DOSABHOY FRAMJI, I. L. R., 3 All 214. [Oldfield and Straigth, JJ. Aug. 26, 1880.]

ACT XXI. of 1879, s 8 (which corresponds with s. 8 of Act XI of 1872 now repealed), extends, to all British subjects, European or Native, in Native States in alliance with Her Majesty, the law relating to offences and criminal procedure for the time being in British India. The Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X. of 1882), with the amendments introduced by Act III of 1884, is thus by virtue of that section, applicable to such British subjects, Native or European. The High Court of Bombay having been vested, by the Notification of the Governor-General of India in Council, No 178 of 23rd September 1874, with original and appellate criminal jurisdiction over European British subjects being Christians, resident, amongst other places, at Secunderabad, outside the Presidency of Bombay, and within the territories of His Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad, the Cantonment Magistrate of Secunderabad, in his character of a District Magistrate, is subordinate to the High Court in criminal matters relating to Christian European British subjects in Hyderabad within the contemplation of s. 526 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X. of 1882, as amended by Act II. of 1884, s 11); and the High Court possesses, by virtue of the appellate jurisdiction so vested in it, the power of transferring a criminal case pending in the Cantonment Magistrate's Court, either to itself, or to any Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction. The High Court, by an order under s. 526 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X of 1882), transferred the present case of defamation from the Court of the Cantonment Magistrate at Secunderabad to the High Court for trial, on the ground that no machinery for a trial by jury existed at Secunderabad.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. W. D. EDWARDS, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 333. [Sargent, C.J., and Bayley and Scott, JJ. June 20, 1885.]

"TARI" or "toddy" is "spirituous liquor" within the meaning of s 14 of Act III of 1880. The words "spirituous liquor," "wine" and "intoxicating drugs" in that section, must be taken in their popular and ordinary meaning. A Cantonment Magistrate, in his judicial capacity, has no authority to cancel a license. The power to cancel licenses belongs to the revenue-authorities.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAMDHANI PASSI, I. L. R., 15 Cal 452 [Wilson and O'Kinealy, JJ. Feb. 28, 1888.]

THE additional fine referred to in Rule 2 of the Rules framed under s 26 of the Cantonments Act, XIII. of 1889, is not only to be imposed after the first conviction, but is to follow proof that failure is persisted in. The additional fine cannot be imposed as a threat in case of possible persistence which, being in the future, cannot be made matter of present proof. The continuing failure must be matter of later and separate inquiry and proof In re Limbaji (I. L. R., 22 Bom. 766) followed.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. WILLIAM PLUMNER, I. L. R., 22 Bom. 841. [Jardine and Ranade, JJ. Feb. 4 1897.]

Procedure when owner claims the cattle, and pays fines and charges.

13. If the owner of the impounded cattle or his agent appear and claim the cattle, the pound-keeper shall deliver them to him on payment of the fines and charges incurred in respect of such cattle.

The owner or his agent, on taking back the cattle, shall sign a receipt for them in the register kept by the pound-keeper.

14. If cattle be not claimed within seven days from the date of their being impounded, the pound-keeper shall report the fact to the officer in charge of the nearest police-station, or to such other officer as the Magistrate of the District appoints in this behalf.

Such officer shall thereupon stick up in a conspicuous part of his office a notice stating—

(a) the number and description of the cattle,

(b) the place where they were seized,

(c) the place where they are impounded, and shall cause proclamation of the same to be made by beat of drum in the village, and at the market-place nearest to the place of seizure.

If the cattle be not claimed within seven days from the date of the notice, they shall be sold by public auction by the said officer, or an officer of his establishment deputed for that purpose, at such place and time, and subject to such conditions, as the Magistrate of the District, by general or special order, from time to time, directs:

Provided that, if any such cattle are, in the opinion of the Magistrate of the District, not likely to fetch a fair price if sold as aforesaid, they may be disposed of in such manner as he thinks fit.

Delivery to owner disputing legality of seizure, but making deposit.

15. If the owner or his agent appear and refuse to pay the said fines and expenses, on the ground that the seizure was illegal, and that the owner is about to make a complaint under section 20, then, upon deposit of the fines and charges incurred in respect of the cattle, the cattle shall be delivered to him.

Procedure when owner refuses or omits to pay the fines and expenses.

16. If the owner or his agent appear and refuse or omit to pay or (in the case mentioned in section 15) to deposit the said fines and expenses, the cattle, or as many of them as may be necessary, shall be sold by public auction by such officer, at such place and time, and subject to such conditions, as are referred to in section 14.

Deduction of fines and expenses.

The fines leviable, and the expenses of feeding and watering, together with the expenses of sale, if any, shall be deducted from the proceeds of the sale.

Delivery of unsold cattle and balance of proceeds.

The remaining cattle and the balance of the purchase-money, if any, shall be delivered to the owner or his agent, together with an account showing—

(a) the number of cattle seized,

(b) the time during which they have been impounded,

(c) the amount of fines and charges incurred,

Act 1.

(d) the number of cattle sold,

(e) the proceeds of sale, and

(f) the manner in which those proceeds have been disposed of.

The owner or his agent shall give a receipt for the cattle delivered to him, and for the balance of the purchase-money (if any) paid to him according to such account.

Receipt.

Disposal of fines, expenses, and surplus proceeds of sale.

17. The officer by whom the sale was made shall send to the Magistrate of the District the fines so deducted.

The charges for feeding and watering, deducted under section 16, shall be paid over to the pound-keeper, who shall also retain and appropriate all sums received by him on account of such charges under section 13.

The surplus unclaimed proceeds of the sale of cattle shall be sent to the Magistrate of the District, who shall hold them in deposit for three months, and, if no claim thereto be preferred and established within that period, shall, at its expiry, dispose of them as hereinafter provided.

Application of fines and unclaimed proceeds of sales.

18. Out of the sums received on account of fines and the unclaimed proceeds of the sale of cattle shall be paid—

(a) the salaries allowed to pound-keepers under the orders of the Local Government;

(b) the expenses incurred for the construction and maintenance of pounds, or for any other purpose connected with the execution of this Act; and the surplus* (if any) shall be applied, under orders of the Local Government, to the construction and repair of roads and bridges, and to other purposes of public utility.

Officers and pound keepers not to purchase cattle at sales under Act.

19. No officer of police, or other officer or pound-keeper appointed under the provisions herein contained, shall, directly or indirectly, purchase any cattle at a sale under this Act.

Pound-keepers when not to release impounded cattle.

No pound-keeper shall release or deliver any impounded cattle otherwise than in accordance with the former part of this chapter, unless such release or delivery is ordered by a Magistrate or Civil Court.

Act I.

RULINGS UNDER THE CATTLE TRESPASS ACT.

THE repealing section of Act XVII. of 1862 does not affect the power of a Subordinate Magistrate under s. 13 of Act III. of 1857 (Cattle Trespass).—REG. v. MIR SAHEB KASSAMIA, 1 Bom. H. C. R. 100. [Westropp and Tucker, JJ. Nov 25, 1863.]

THE latter portion of s. 13 of Act III. of 1857 having been repealed by Act XVII. of 1862, held that the offences created by that section may be dealt with by the ordinary criminal tribunals, subject to the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure —REG. v MATHUR PURSHOTAM, 4 Bom. H. C R. 13. [Couch, C J, and Newton, J. Oct. 4, 1867 ]

IN the case of a conviction by a Subordinate Magistrate, under s. 18 of Act III. of 1857, of a person who, through neglect, permitted a public road to be damaged by allowing his pigs to trespass thereon, held, on a reference by the District Magistrate, that the conviction was not illegal, because the land damaged was a public road, as the right to use a public road is limited to the purposes for which the road is dedicated —REG. v. LINGANA BIN GINBANA, 4 Bom H. C. R. 14. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. Oct 9, 1867.]

BY virtue of s. 21 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act XXV of 1861), a Subordinate Magistrate of the 1st class has jurisdiction to try an offence under s. 18 of Act III. of 1857 (Cattle Trespass Act), there being no provision in that Act as to the authorities by which offences committed under it are to be tried.—REG. v. GANGA KOM MAHASU, 5 Bom. H. C. R. 13. [Couch, C J., and Newton, J. Feb. 12, 1868 ]

IN a case of public nuisance under s. 290 of the Penal Code, it must be proved that injury, danger, or annoyance has been caused, either in regard to the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of a public right on the part of a portion of the community, or of any particular class of people. The fact that there is a special law (Act III. of 1857) to meet a particular offence (in this case cattle-trespass) does not prevent the punishment of the offenders under the Penal Code, if an offence, which could have been rightly punished under the Penal Code, was established.—ONOORAM v. LAMESOR; WEBSTER v. KEENA, 9 W. R. 70. [Phear and Hobhouse, JJ. May 23, 1868.]

IN a case of forcibly rescuing cattle under s. 13, Act III. of 1857 (Cattle Trespass), in which the accused did not summon any witnesses, it was held that, even if the accused wanted them summoned, the Magistrate, under s. 262 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, need not have summoned them, unless persuaded that they were likely to give material evidence, and that they would not attend voluntarily.—AKBAR TAGUDGEER v. PUNCHOO BISWAS, 10 W. R. 42. [Jackson and Hobhouse, JJ. Sep. 11, 1868.]

THE order contemplated by s. 62 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is a particular and specific order addressed to a particular person or particular persons to do or abstain from a particular act or particular acts. That section does not empower a Magistrate to pass a general order to persons not to allow their cattle or horses to run at large on the public roads, nor can such an order be passed under Act III of 1857 (Cattle Trespass), which applies only to injury done by cattle to crops, &c., and to the sides of public roads and embankments.—QUEEN v. AMBERUDDEEN, 12 W R. 36, 3 B. L. R., A. Cr., 45: s c, 6 B. L. R. 78n [Norman and Jackson, JJ July 26, 1869.]

CERTAIN persons were convicted under s. 13 Act III. of 1857 (Cattle Trespass), and sentenced to fifteen days' imprisonment and a fine, or in default to imprisonment for the term of seven days. No provision is made in the Act for awarding imprisonment in default of payment of fine, but the prisoners were liable under the section to six months' imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 500. The High Court refused to interfere with the sentence passed.—PRO., MAR. 9, 1870, 5 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. XXI.

A FINE levied by a pound-keeper is not a punishment imposed on conviction for an offence, and it is an error to hold that a person cannot be tried for an offence under Act XXVI. of 1850, because he has paid a fine under s 6 of Act III. of 1857 (Cattle Trespass) —REG v. DURGARAM MADHAVRAM, 7 Bom. H C R. 55. [Gibbs and Melvill, JJ. June 16 1870.]

TO render a person liable under s. 425 of the Penal Code for mischief in consequence of damage done by cattle-trespass, he must, in some way, have caused the cattle to enter the prosecutor's fields, knowing that, by so doing, he is likely to cause damage. Mere neglect to keep the cattle from straying is not sufficient —MAJOR FORBES v. GRISH CHUNDER BHUTTACHARJEE, 14 W. R. 31; 6 B. L. R., Ap., 3. [Couch, C.J., and Jackson, J. Aug. 12, 1870.]

THE illegal seizure and detention of cattle, to which s. 14 of Act III. of 1857 (Cattle Trespass) refers, is not an "offence" within the meaning of s 31 and Sch. II., art. 1, cl. (b), of the Court Fees Act (VII. of 1870). Complaints of such illegal seizure and detention do not require a stamp. If such complaints be stamped, it is not competent for the Court to direct that the accused shall repay the amount of such stamp to the complainant.—REG. v. AVJI BIN NARU, 8 Bom. H. C. R. 22. [Bayley and Melvill, JJ. May 17, 1871.]

WHERE a prisoner was properly convicted on the evidence of illegally seizing cattle, but was sentenced under the old law (Act III. of 1857) when that Act had been repealed by Act I. of 1871, the High Court declined to interfere with the sentence, as the latter Act was in force at the time of the conviction and sentence, and no injustice had been done.—MOHESH NATH v. HURO MOHUN GHOSAL, 16 W. R. 12. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. June 16, 1871.]

WHERE a sub-inspector of police was charged with having purchased a pony which had been impounded, it was held that the Magistrate should have proceeded under s. 19, Act I. of 1871, taken with s. 169 of the Penal Code, and that the accused could not be convicted under s. 406 of the Penal Code of criminal breach of trust.—In re RAJKRISTO BISWAS, 16 W. R. 52; 8 B. L. R., Ap. 1. [Kemp, Offg. C. J., and Ainslie, J. Sep. 25, 1871.]

WHERE a Magistrate convicted, under s. 27 of Act I. of 1871, a person who was not himself a pound-keeper, but was merely entertained by the police-patil, who was ex-officio pound-keeper under s. 6 of the Act, the High Court annulled the conviction and sentence passed upon the accused.—REG v. VAKTAVALAD LAKHU, 9 Bom. H. C. R. 164. [Melvill and Kemball JJ. Feb. 8, 1872.]

S. 22 of Act I. of 1871 (Cattle Trespass) does not provide for a fine in addition to compensation.—PRO., Aug. 1, 1873, 7 Mad. H. C. R., Ap. xxiv.

WHERE there was a dispute as to the ownership of land on which the complainant's cattle were found, the complainant stating the land belonged to A, who gave him the right to graze his cattle there, and the party charged (who had seized and impounded the cattle), claiming the land as his own, it was held that the order of the Magistrate, referring the parties to the Civil Court, was illegal; and that he should have disposed of the case himself under the Cattle Trespass Act (I. of 1871), s. 22.—SHEIK TUNNOO v. KUREEM BUKSH, 23 W. R. 2 [Kemp and Birch, JJ. Nov. 23, 1874.]

THE illegal seizure of cattle, under s. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act (I of 1871), is not a criminal offence. The law allows certain Magistrates to adjudicate compensation to a party injured by an illegal seizure. Court-fees paid by the complainant may form part of such compensation. It is not lawful to pass sentence of fine or of imprisonment in default of payment of the compensation awarded in a matter under s. 21 of the Cattle Trespass Act (I of 1871).—In re KETABDI MUNDUL, 2 C. L. R. 507. [Markby and Prinsep, JJ. May 9, 1878.]

A MAGISTRATE having, under s. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, adjudged a seizure of cattle to be illegal, directed the captor, under s. 31 of the Court Fees Act, 1870, to pay the complainant the cost of the stamp and process-fees incurred in prosecuting the complainant. Held that s. 31 of the Court Fees Act did not apply. Held also that, under s. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act, such costs could be awarded to the complainant as compensation for the loss caused by the seizure and detention of the cattle.—SHEIKH HUSSAIN v. SANJIVI, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 345. [Muttusami Ayyar and Hutchins, JJ. Feb. 29, 1884.]

THE owner of an animal which strays on to another's land, and causes damage to the crop thereon, does not, unless he has wilfully driven it upon the land, commit the offence of mischief under s. 426 of the Penal Code.—QUEEN EMPRESS v. SHAIK RAJU, I. L. R. 9 Bom. 173. [West and Nanabhai Haridas, JJ. Nov. 27, 1884.]

THE illegal seizure of cattle under colour of the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, not having been constituted an offence under that Act or otherwise, an award of compensation, under s. 250 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, to the accused on such complaint, is illegal.—PITCHI v. ANKAPPA, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 102. [Brandt, J. May 29, 1885.]

NO appeal lies from an order passed under s. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act (I. of 1871), awarding compensation for illegal seizure of cattle.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAYA LAKHMA, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 230. [Birdwood and Jardine JJ. Dec. 16, 1885.]

IN a case instituted upon complaint made under s. 20 of the Cattle Trespass Act, the Magistrate acquitted the accused, and being of opinion that the complaint was vexatious, directed the complainant to pay compensation to the accused as under s. 250 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Held that the act complained of was not offence within the meaning of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and that the order awarding compensation was illegal.—KOTTALANADA v. MUTHAYA, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 374. [Muttusami Ayyar and Parker, JJ. April 16, 1886.]

1871. Act I.

A COMPLAINT was made against certain persons under s. 20 of the Cattle Trespass Act of 1871, charging them with having illegally seized and detained the complainant's cattle. The Assistant Magistrate, who heard the complaint, found it to be false, and he ordered the complainant to pay Rs. 20 as compensation to the accused, and, in default to suffer simple imprisonment for 21 days. On application to the High Court, held that the order was illegal, and must be set aside. —IN THE MATTER OF KALA CHAND v. GUDADHUR BISWAS, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 304. [Prinsep and Beverley, JJ. Aug. 3, 1886.]

PROCEEDINGS under s. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act are quasi-civil in their nature, a Magistrate being at liberty under that section to assess and enforce, in a summary manner, compensation for an injury for which a civil action might be brought. An order, therefore, for the payment of a sum as fine and compensation, passed against two persons under that section, which does not specify the proportionate amount payable by each, is good.—NEAZ v. MONSOOR, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 175. [Petheram, C.J., and Beverley, J. Dec. 20, 1886.]

No appeal lies against an order made under s. 22 of Act I. of 1871 —In re KHADAR KHAN, I. L. R., 11 Mad. 359. [Collins, C.J., and Muttusami Ayyar, J. Dec. 15, 1887.]

No appeal lies from an order under s. 22 of Act I. of 1871, awarding compensation for illegal seizure of cattle. Queen-Empress v. Laksma (I. L. R., 10 Bom. 230) followed.—DHIRU v. DINONATH DEB alias DINU, I. L. R., 15 Cal 712. [Wilson and Tottenham, JJ. May 18, 1888.]

A SUIT for compensation for wrongful seizure of cattle will lie in a Civil Court, the provisions of Act I. of 1871 being no bar to such a suit. Nomas Mollah v. Lall Mohun Tagadgeer (15 W. R. 279) approved of. Aalem Kalia Dursi (2 C. L. R. 344) dissented from.—SHUTTRUGHON DAS COOMAR v. HOKNA SHOWTAL, I. L. R., 16 Cal. 159. [Pigot and Beverley, JJ. Jan. 7, 1889.]

AN accused was found to have loosed the complainant's cattle at night from a cattle-pen, and to have driven them to the pound with the object of sharing with the pound-keeper the fees to be paid for their release. He was proceeded against under Act I of 1871 (The Cattle Trespass Act), and, under the provisions of s. 22 ordered to pay compensation to the complainant, and, in default, to undergo one month's rigorous imprisonment. Held that s. 22 was inapplicable to the facts of the case, and that the order must be set aside. On the facts it was not a case of "illegal seizure and detention" of cattle, but rather one of theft, as all the elements of that offence were present, and the accused should have been charged with and tried for that offence. Held, further, that the sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of the compensation was not warranted by law. Compensation may be levied as a fine, and the ordinary mode of levying fines is laid down in s. 386 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The law nowhere provides that fines may be levied by means of imprisonment.—PARYAG RAI v. ARJU MIAN, I. L. R., 22 Cal. 139 [Petheram, C.J., and Beverley, J. Aug. 18, 1894.]

THE jurisdiction conferred by ss. 20 to 23 of the Cattle Trespass Act (I. of 1871) is a special jurisdiction, and as such, it is under s. 1 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1882) unaffected by its provisions; and, therefore, s. 192 does not authorize the transfer of a case to which ss. 20 to 23 of the Cattle Trespass Act apply. —SHAMA v. LECHHU SHEIKH, I. L. R., 23 Cal. 300. [Macpherson and Banerjee, JJ. Sept. 9. 1895.]

THE illegal seizure of cattle alluded to in ss. 20 to 23 of the Cattle Trespass Act (I. of 1871) is not an "offence" under s. 4 (p) of the Criminal Procedure Code, and cases connected therewith are accordingly not triable by the summary procedure described in Ch. XXII. of that Code. Pitchi v. Ankappa (I. L. R., 9 Mad. 102) and Kottalanada v Muthaya (I. L. R., 9 Mad. 374) followed.—NEDARAN THAKUR v JOONAB, I. L. R., 23 Cal. 248. [Ghose and Hill, JJ. Sept. 17, 1895.]

S. 192 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X of 1882) does not authorize a District Magistrate to transfer for trial to a Subordinate Magistrate cases which are not within the powers of that Magistrate to try, either under s. 28 of the Code, or under some special or local law. A District Magistrate cannot transfer to any Magistrate cases under s. 20 of the Cattle Trespass Act (I. of 1871) which are triable only by the two classes of Magistrates specified in that section. An order awarding compensation under s. 22 of the Act, passed by any other Magistrate, is illegal, and cannot be cured by the provisions of s. 529 or s. 537 of the Criminal Procedure Code.—RAGHU SINGH v. ABDUL WAHAB, I. L. R., 23 Cal. 442. [Ghose and Rampini, JJ. Feb. 11, 1896.]

the meaning of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Consequently, on the dismissal of such a complaint, it is not competent to a Court to act under s. 560 of the Code, and award compensation to the persons against whom the complaint is made Pitchi v. Ankappa (I. L. R., 9 Mad 102), Kottulanada v. Mutkaya (I. L. R., 13 Cal 304), Kala Chand v. Gudadhur Biswas (I. L. R., 9 Mad. 374), and Nedaram Thakur v Joonab (I. L. R., 23 Cal. 248), referred to.—MEGHAI v. SHEOBHIK, I. L. R., 18 All. 353. [Banerji, J. May 5, 1896.]

S. 11 of the Cattle Trespass Act (I. of 1871) having been applied to forests by s. 69 of the Indian Forest Act (VII. of 1879), the seizure by a forest-officer of cattle found straying in a reserved forest is legal, even though no damage has actually been done. —QUEEN-EMPRESS v. BABAJI LAXMAN, I. L. R., 22 Bom. 933. [Parsons and Ranade, JJ. Sep. 9. 1897.]

* Certain words referring to the oath to be taken by the Coroner's deputy, which were repealed by the Oaths Act (X. of 1873), have here been omitted.

RULINGS UNDER THE CORONERS ACT.

THE Coroner of Calcutta has no power to commit to prison pending an inquest. In cases when he has authority to commit, a commitment to the officer deputed to receive prisoners by the statute in force is valid, and it is not necessary that the commitment be directed to the Sheriff.—In re WILLIAM TAYLOR, 2 Ind. 50. (1) In any of the following cases, namely—

(b) if the Protector finds that any such irregularity has occurred in the recruitment or treatment by the recruiter of any emigrant as makes it just to rescind the agreement to emigrate, or the Protector may order the Emigration Agent to pay to the emigrant such sum as the Protector deems reasonable as compensation, and, when the emigrant has been registered at a place beyond the limits of the port of embarkation, such reasonable sum as is necessary to enable him to return to the place at which he was registered, and may take any steps which he thinks necessary for the conveyance of the emigrant to that place.

(c) if the Emigration Agent refuses to fulfil the agreement entered into with the emigrant,

(a) to the emigrant a reasonable sum by way of compensation, and

56. (1) The Protector of Emigrants shall cause the vessel to be surveyed by a competent person at the cost of the master or owner, with a view to ascertain her seaworthiness, and the extent and nature of her accommodation for emigrants, and to ascertain that she is properly ventilated, and is supplied with all the tackle, apparel, and furniture requisite for her intended voyage:

Provided that, if the vessel is a steamship having a certificate of survey, granted by the Board of Trade or any British Colonial Government, or under the Indian Steamships Act, 1884,† and in force and applicable to her intended voyage, the survey under this sub-section with a view to ascertain her seaworthiness shall not extend to her hull or machinery unless the Protector of Emigrants has reason to believe that, since the grant of the certificate, her hull or machinery has sustained injury or damage, or has otherwise become inefficient.*

65. If any emigrant without sufficient cause refuses or neglects to embark when called on by the Emigration Agent to do so, it shall not be lawful to compel the emigrant to embark; but nothing in this section shall affect the civil or criminal liabilities which an emigrant incurs by reason or in respect of any such refusal or neglect.

(3) Every emigrant shall, on embarkation, deliver the pass to the master.

(4) The master shall compare the emigrants who embark and the passes delivered by them with the list supplied by the Emigration Agent; and if the list appears to be correct, and to correspond with the passes delivered and with the emigrants embarked, the master shall sign the four copies of the list.

(5) The master shall not permit any emigrant to remain on board who has not delivered up his pass to the master, or is not mentioned in the list.

Disposal of the two copies of list to be given by master to Protector.

67. (1) When the copies of the list have been signed, the master shall give two of the copies to the Protector of Emigrants who shall sign them if he believes them to be correct.

(2) The Protector shall send one of the copies so signed by him by the vessel which carries the emigrants to such officer as may be appointed in this behalf by the Government of the country to which the emigrants have agreed to emigrate, or, in the case of a foreign colony, to the British Consular Agent, and shall file the other copy in his own office.

Fee for each embarked emigrant.

Provided as follows:—

(a) the fee payable under this section shall not be more than is, in the opinion of the Governor-General in Council, sufficient to raise the total income from fees under this Act to an amount which will cover the cost of any establishment or supervision which the Governor-General in Council thinks necessary to provide for the control of emigration:

* See Notifications No. 121-E., dated the 1st April 1886, Gazette of India, 1886, Pt. I., p. 277; and No. 7-E., dated 29th March 1888, Gazette of India, 1888, Pt. I., p. 147.

3. In this Act—

"Person of European extraction."

"Person of European extraction" includes—

(a) persons born in Europe, America, the West Indies, Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Natal, or the Cape Colony;

(b) the sons and grandsons of such persons:

but does not include persons commonly called Eurasians or East Indians:

"Vagrant."

"Vagrant" means a person of European extraction found asking for alms, or wandering about without any employment or visible means of subsistence:

"Master of a ship."

"Master of a ship" includes any person in charge of a decked vessel:

"Magistrate."

And in Parts III. and V. of this Act, "Magistrate" means, within the limits of the towns of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, a Magistrate of Police,* and, outside those limits, a person exercising powers under the Code of Criminal Procedure† not less than those of a Magistrate of the second class.

PART II.

PROCEDURE.

Power to require apparent vagrant to go before Magistrate.

4. Any police-officer may, within the limits of the towns of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, require any person who is apparently a vagrant to accompany him or any other police-officer to, and to appear before, the nearest Magistrate of Police,* and may, without those limits, require any such person to accompany him or any other police-officer to, and to appear before, the nearest Justice of the Peace exercising the powers of a Magistrate of the first class under the Code of Criminal Procedure.†

Summary inquiry into vagrant's circumstances.

5. The Magistrate of Police* or Justice shall in such case, or in any other case where a person apparently a vagrant comes before him, make a summary inquiry into the circumstances and character of the apparent vagrant; and, if he is satisfied that such person is a vagrant, he shall record in his office a declaration to that effect.

Declaration of vagrancy.

Order to go to work-house.

If he is further of opinion that the vagrant is not likely to obtain employment at once, or if he has reason to believe that a declaration of vagrancy has on any former occasion been recorded in respect of such vagrant, he shall require the vagrant to go to a Government work-house, and shall draw up an order to that effect.

The vagrant shall then be placed in charge of the police for the purpose of being forwarded to the work-house, and the said order shall be a sufficient authority to the police for retaining him in their charge while he is on his way to the work-house, and to the Governor of the work-house for receiving and detaining such vagrant.

Forwarding vagrant to place of employment.

6. Where the officer making the inquiry mentioned in section 5 is of opinion that the vagrant is likely to obtain employment in any place subject to the Local Government, or (when the vagrant is in any part of the dominions mentioned in section 1) in any place subject to any adjacent Local Government, such officer may, in his discretion, forward the vagrant to such place in charge of the police, and draw up an order to that effect.

Such order shall be a sufficient authority to the police for retaining the vagrant in their charge while he is on his way to such place of employment.

Assistance to obtain employment.

7. Upon his arrival at the place of employment, the vagrant shall be taken before the nearest Magistrate of Police* or Justice of the Peace exercising powers as aforesaid, to whom the order for transmission shall be delivered.

Such officer shall thereupon, to the best of his ability, assist the vagrant in seeking employment, and may, in the meantime, if he think fit, keep the vagrant in the charge of the police.

Should the vagrant fail to obtain suitable employment within a reasonable time not exceeding fifteen days from such arrival, such officer shall forward him to a Government work-house in the manner provided by section 5.

Subsistence-allowance.

8. Every person while in charge of the police, whether before inquiry as to his vagrancy, or, while he is on his way, under section 5, to the work-house, or under section 6, to a place of employment, shall be entitled to an allowance for his subsistence at the rate of eight annas per diem.

The Magistrate of Police* or Justice before whom any vagrant is taken under section 7 may, if he think fit, order the vagrant to receive a similar allowance while he is seeking employment.

The Local Government shall cause such allowance to be paid out of such funds at its disposal, and in such manner, as it may, from time to time, direct.

Power to give certificates.

9. Any Magistrate of Police* or Justice of the Peace exercising powers as aforesaid may, on being satisfied that any person of European extraction is not likely to become a vagrant, give such person a certificate under his hand, stating that for a certain time (mentioning it) not exceeding six months from the date of the certificate, and within certain limits (mentioning them), nothing in sections 4, 5, 6, and 7, shall apply to the holder of such certificate; and thereupon, so long as the certificate remains in force, nothing in sections 4, 5, 6, and 7, shall apply to such person within such limits as aforesaid.

Form of certificate.

Every such certificate shall be in the form set forth in the first schedule to this Act annexed, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit.

10. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette,* invest any Justice of the Peace, District Superintendent of Police, or Assistant District Superintendent of Police, with the jurisdiction and powers conferred by this Part on a Justice of the Peace exercising powers as aforesaid.

PART III.

Provision of Government work-houses.

11.† The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may provide work-houses with their necessary furniture and establishment, at such places as it may think proper, for the temporary reception of vagrants; or may, by writing under the hand of a Secretary to such Government, certify any building, or part of a building, not provided as a work-house under the former part of this section, to be fit for a work-house for the purposes of this Act. Every such certificate shall be published in the local official Gazette, and thereupon such building or part of a building shall, until the Local Government otherwise orders, be deemed a Government work-house under this Act.

Scale of diet.

The Local Government shall allow the same scale of diet for the support of vagrants received in such work-houses as is for the time being allowed for Europeans confined in the local prisons or penitentiaries.

Superintendence of work-houses.

12.‡ Every such work-house shall be under the immediate charge of a Governor, who shall be appointed, and may be suspended or removed, by the Local Government.

Every such Governor shall, if the Local Government think fit, be subject to the orders of a Committee of Management appointed from time to time by such Government, or, in the absence of a Committee, to the orders of such officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf.

RULINGS UNDER THE REPEALED EXCISE ACT.

ON the 30th October 1877, N was granted a license for the sale of spirituous and fermented liquors by retail, terminating on the 31st December 1877. On the 11th January 1878, such license was renewed by the Collector for a period terminating on the 31st March 1878. On the 14th January 1878, N's servant was convicted, under s. 62 of Act X of 1871, of the illicit sale of liquors between the 1st January 1878 and 10th January 1878, both days inclusive. Held that the renewal of N's license was a condonation of the offence, and the conviction was bad. Semble.—That, inasmuch as N had given no notice of his intention not to renew the license, nor had the Collector recalled it, the license remained in force, and the conviction was consequently bad under s. 32 of Act X of 1871.—EMPRESS v. SEYMOUR, I. L. R., 1 All. 630. [Stuart, C.J. Feb. 25, 1878.]

D WAS the holder of a license for the sale of spirituous and fermented liquors by retail for a period terminating on the 31st December 1877. On the 10th January 1878, his license not having been renewed by the Collector, D sold certain spirits by retail. On these facts he was convicted of the illicit sale of liquor. Subsequently to his conviction, his license was renewed. Held that, under such circumstances, his conviction was good. Empress v. Seymour (I. L. R., 1 All. 630) distinguished.—EMPRESS v. DHARAM DAS, I. L. R., 1 All. 635. [Stuart, C.J. Mar. 22, 1878.]

A HELD a license for the sale of spirituous and fermented liquors by retail for a period of three months terminating on the 31st December 1877. Prior to the 8th January 1878, no notice was given by A of her intention not to renew the license, nor had the license been recalled by the Collector. Between the 1st January 1878 and the 8th January 1878, both days inclusive, A's servants sold spirituous and fermented liquors by retail. On these facts A's servants were convicted, under s. 62 of Act X. of 1871, of the illicit sale of liquor. Held, following the opinion expressed in Empress v. Seymour (I. L. R., 1 All. 630), that the convictions were bad, as A's license, under the provisions of s. 32 of that Act, remained in force until she gave notice of her intention not to renew it, or it was recalled by the Collector. The principle of the decision in Empress v. Seymour (I. L. R., 1 All. 630) dissented from. A should have been prosecuted under s. 57 of the Excise Act for not paying her monthly fee in advance.—EMPRESS v. MAHINDRA LAL, I. L. R., 1 All. 638. [Turner, J. April 4, 1878.]

HELD, in a prosecution under ss. 19 and 63 of Act X of 1871, that the definition of "ser" given in s. 2 of Act XI. of 1870 was not so intelligible and clear as to be capable of general application, and that it did not supersede the local customary weight of a ser. Held, therefore, the local customary weight of a ser being ninety-five tolas (the Government ser weighing eighty tolas), and the accused having been found in possession of ninety-six tolas only, that excess of one tola over the local weight was not such as to warrant the presumption of the guilt of the accused.—EMPRESS v. HAIT RAM; EMPRESS v. CHEDA KHAN, I. L. R., 3 All. 404. [Stuart, C.J., and Straight, J. April 19, 1880.]

HELD that an officer invested with powers under ss. 27, 28, and 29 of Act XXII. of 1881, who had power in certain events to take the case before a Magistrate under s. 32, was an "excise-officer" within the meaning of s. 47 of the Act. Queen-Empress v. Ram Charan (Weekly Notes, 1896, p. 106) overruled.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. MUKUNDA, I. L. R., 20 All. 70. [Edge, C.J., and Blair, J. July 8, 1897.]

CIVIL AND CRIMINAL RULINGS UNDER ACTS RELATING TO FERRIES.

1. FERRY—Right to establish new ferry—Right to cross river or jhil in other way than by ferry.] A stream, if navigable, is of itself a public highway. In the case of a stream, therefore, a riparian proprietor might start in a boat from any point on his own side, and proceed to any point at which he would have a right to land on the other side. But in the case of a jhil the soil and freehold of which is probably vested in some particular individual, persons might be in the habit of crossing it from point to point by means of a ferry-boat belonging to the owner, and indeed might have a right to do so. But such right, if it existed, would not lead to any inference that any proprietor of lands on the banks of the jhil would have any right to cross either way to the terminus of a public highway in any other manner than between the ascertained points and by the accustomed means, viz, the owner's ferry-boat.—HUNOOMAN DOSS v. SHAMACHURN BHUTTA, 1 Hay 426.

2. FERRY—Invasion of rights of private ferry by Government—Ben. Reg. VI. of 1819, s. 3.] S 3, Regulation VI. of 1819, while it empowers the Government to invade private rights of ferry, by the establishment of a public ferry, does not debar the Civil Court from giving relief in cases in which a Magistrate may, without the sanction of Government, have invaded a private right of ferry, nor does that Regulation prohibit Civil Courts from taking cognizance of matters connected with public ferries.—RAM GOBIND SINGH v. MAGISTRATE OF GHAZEEPORE, 4 N. W. 146.

3. FERRY—Rights of private ferry—Invasion of right of ferry by order of Magistrate—Ben. Reg. VI. of 1819.] In a suit to maintain the old boundaries of a ferry, which had been invaded by an order of the Magistrate extending the boundaries of a public ferry, the plaintiffs asserted that they had theretofore, without charging toll, transported in their own boats, or in boats hired by them, their labourers and cultivators and implements of husbandry, and that in the exercise of this right the order of the Magistrate was injurious to them. Held that the order of the Magistrate extending the boundaries of the public ferry was an invasion of their ancient right to cross in whatever ferry-boat they liked; as by s. 6 of the Regulation (VI. of 1819) persons are prohibited from employing ferry-boats plying for hire at, or in the vicinity of a public ferry, without the previous sanction of the Magistrate or Joint Magistrate, thus making persons dependent on the public ferry, and liable to whatever toll may be levied on the public ferry.—RAM GOBIND SINGH v. MAGISTRATE OF GHAZEEPORE, 4 N. W. 146.

4. FERRY—Adjunct of right of fishery—Right of ferry.] A right to the jalkar of a river—that is, right to the produce of the water, such as fish, &c.—does not necessarily carry with it a right of ferry.—GOPEE THAKOORAEE v. SHEO SEVUK MISSER, 5 N. W. 95.

5. FERRY—Illegal conviction under Bombay Ferries Act (XXXV. of 1850).] On a reference by a Sessions Judge, a conviction and sentence by a District Magistrate under the Bombay Ferries Act for conveying passengers for hire from Uran to Bombay was reversed, as the act charged did not constitute an offence under any section of Act 17. the Act—REG v. MALHARI BIN SHIVJI, 3 Bom. Cr. 41.

6 FERRY — Right of owner of both banks of a river.] The mere fact of being the owner of both banks of a river does not give the right of ferry—SOFIR MERDHA v. NOBO KISHORE, 2 W. R 286.

7. FERRY—Right to land at a ghaut as part of right of ferry—Form of suit.] A plaintiff may recover possession of a ferry of which he has been dispossessed by the defendant, though the form of his action may have been for obtaining possession of a ghaut. The right to ply the ferry may include also a right at certain seasons of the year to land upon or start from a part of the river bank not included in the land taken for the ferry — BROJO KISHORE CHOWDHRAIN v. BILASH MONEE CHOWDHRAIN, 5 W. R 195.

8. FERRY — Management of ferry—Ben. Reg. VI of 1819, s. 13, cl 2.] Cl 2, s. 13, Regulation VI. of 1819, only applies where there has been an accident. 9. FERRY — Suit for compensation for resumption of ferry by Government — Civil Procedure Code, s. 1 — Ben. Reg. VI of 1819.] A suit for compensation for the loss sustained by reason of the resumption by Government, under Regulation VI. of 1819, of a ferry, is not cognizable by the Civil Courts—COLLECTOR OF PURNEA v. ROMANATH TAGORE; MAGISTRATE OF MALDAH v. GOLEBUNNESSA, B. L. R. Sup Vol. 630 : 7 W. R. 191.

10. FERRY — Suit to re-open ferry — Ben. Act I. of 1859, s. 2.] A suit to re open a ferry, which had been included in a settlement of an estate obtained by plaintiff from Government, but which had been closed by orders of the Assistant Magistrate, was held not to be maintainable, the ghaut where plaintiff wished to re-open it being within two miles of the place at which a public ferry was established.—RAM JEWAN SINGH v. COLLECTOR AND MAGISTRATE OF SHAHABAD, 15 W. R. 132.

11. FERRY—Proprietary rights, Interference with—Dispossession.] There are proprietary rights in a private ferry of such a nature that another party may not so interfere with the profits arising therefrom by running a boat, if not exactly on the same line, at least within such a distance as for all practical purposes would be the same as if it were on the same line. Preventing parties from crossing in a person's ferry, and driving his men away, amount to dispossession.—KISHOREE LALL ROY v. GOKOOL MONEE CHOWDHRAIN, 16 W. R. 281.

12 FERRY — Rival ferry — Interference with existing ferry.] A rival ferry cannot be set up so as to interfere with proprietary rights in an existing ferry — that is to say, under circumstances involving direct competition with such ferry. — NARAIN SINGH ROY v. NORENDRO NARAIN ROY, NORENDRO NARAIN ROY v. NARAIN SINGH ROY, 22 W. R 269.

13 FERRY — Stipulation in lease of land that no ferry is to be made—Right of private ferry.] It is quite competent to a lessor, when granting a lease of his land, to stipulate that no ferry shall be established thereupon to the prejudice of his own ferry (existent or possible), and it is quite competent to a lessee to agree to such a stipulation — JUGUT CHUNDER CHOWDHRY v. BHUBUT CHUNDER CHOWDHRY, 23 W. R. 237.

14. FERRY — Change in starting point owing to change in course of river.] The right to a ferry-ghaut cannot follow the starting point of the ferry wherever it may be carried by a change in the course of the river, unless the new position is within the possessor's own land — GORDON v. GOPEE SOONDURRE DOSSEE, 25 W. R 53

15 FERRY — Ferry-rights, Infringement of — Right to restrain party starting a second ferry. A, the owner of a ferry granted him under a Government settlement, brought a suit to restrain B from running another ferry over the same spot where A's ferry plied for hire. It appeared on the evidence that B levied no tolls on his ferry, but it was not shown that it was used only for the conveyance of his own servants and ryots. Held that such suit was maintainable—LUCHMESSUR SINGH v. LEELANUND SINGH, I. L. R., 4 Cal 590 ; 3 C L. R. 427.

17 FERRY—Ferry-rights, Infringement of — Right to restrain party starting a second ferry—User for twenty years—Crown grant—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Part IV. and s 25.] In a suit brought to establish the right to a ferry-franchise, and to restrain the working of a rival ferry, held that there is nothing in the law of Bengal as it was before the acquisition by the British Government, or in the Regulations before or after 1793, to show that any person is entitled to claim a monopoly of a right of ferry by prescription or by any other means than a grant from the Crown. To such a monopoly, Part IV. of the Limitation Act of 1877, relating to the acquisition of ownership by prescription, is not applicable. The franchise of a ferry is not necessarily appurtenant to land, but when a right of ferry was claimed as appurtenant to certain villages, held that the grant of such right by the Crown would not be destroyed by mere non-user without waiver, nor by the running of an opposition-ferry. The franchise would continue as long as the grant continued, and until the person who set up an opposition-ferry could show a Crown-grant, or give evidence from which a Crown-grant could be presumed, the cause of action would remain. The disturbance of a right of a ferry is in the nature of a nuisance (Yard v. Ford, 2 Saund. 172), and the cause of action in the case of the violation of this right is a continuing wrong within s. 23 of the Limitation Act (XV of 1877.—NITYAHARI ROY v. DUNNE, I. L. R. 18 Cal. 652.

18. FERRY—Plying boat for hire near public ferry—Disobedience of order promulgated by public servant.] If, when directed by the order of a public servant, duly promulgated to him, to abstain from plying a boat for hire at, or in the immediate vicinity of, a public ferry, a person disobeys such direction, he renders himself liable to punishment under the Penal Code.—MUTHRA v. JAWAHIR, I. L. R., 1 All. 527.

19. FERRY—Plying boat for hire near public ferry.] A person plying a boat for hire at a distance of three miles from a public ferry cannot be said, with reference to such ferry, to commit "criminal trespass" within the meaning of that term in s. 441 of the Penal Code.—MUTHRA v. JAWAHIR, I. L. R., 1 All. 527.

20. FERRY—Government ferry—Lease—Ben. Reg. VI. of 1819—Illegality of contract.] M took a lease for three years of a Government ferry, and covenanted with the Magistrate, who granted the lease, not to underlet or assign the lease without leave or license of the Magistrate. M subsequently admitted B as his partner to share with him equally in the profits to be derived from the lease. Held that such partnership was not void by reason of the covenant not to underlet or assign the lease. S. A. No. 1104 of 1872, decided on the 1st August 1872, overruled.—GAURI SHANKAR v. MUMTAZ ALI KHAN, I. L. R., 2 All. 411.

RECEIVED THE G.-G.'S ASSENT ON THE 14TH NOVEMBER 1879.

An Act to provide for the Trial of Offences committed in Places beyond British India and for the Extradition of Criminals.

EXTRADITION.

Arrest and removal of persons other than European British subjects escaping into British India.

11. When an offence has been committed, or is supposed to have been committed, in any State against the law of such State by a person not being a European British subject, and such person escapes into or is in British India, the Political Agent for such State may issue a warrant for his arrest and delivery at a place and to a person to be named in the warrant—

if such Political Agent thinks that the offence is one which ought to be inquired into in such State; and if the act said to have been done would, if done in British India, have constituted an offence against any of the sections of the Indian Penal Code mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed, or under any other section of the said Code, or any other law, which may, from time to time, be specified by the Governor-General in Council by a notification in the Gazette of India.

The act of desertion from any body of Imperial Service Troops shall be deemed to be an offence in respect of which the Political Agent for the State to which such troops belong may issue a warrant under this section.*

12. Such warrant may be directed to the Magistrate of any district in which the accused person is believed to be, and shall be executed in the manner provided by the law for the time being in force with reference to the execution of warrants† and the accused person, when arrested, shall, "unless released on bail in accordance with the provisions of the next following section,"‡ be forwarded to the place, and delivered to the officer named in the warrant.

Direction and execution of warrant.

12A§ A Political Agent issuing a warrant for the arrest of any person under section 11 may in his discretion direct by endorsement thereon that, if such person executes a bond with sufficient sureties for his attendance before the officer mentioned in the warrant at a specified time, the Magistrate to whom the warrant is directed shall take such security and release such person from custody.

Powers to Political Agent to direct security to be taken and procedure thereon.

The endorsement shall state (a) the number of sureties (if any), (b) the amount in which they and the person for whose arrest the warrant is issued are to be respectively bound, and (c) the time and place at which he is to attend before the officer mentioned in the warrant.

Whenever security is taken under this section, the Magistrate shall certify the fact to the Political Agent by whom the warrant was issued, and shall retain the bond.

12B.§ If the person bound by any bond executed under the last foregoing section to appear before the officer mentioned therein does not so appear, the Magistrate may on being satisfied as to his default, issue a warrant directing that he be re-arrested and delivered over to such officer.

Arrest on breach of bond to appear.

12C.§ In the case of every bond required to be executed or which may have been executed in accordance with the foregoing provisions, the powers conferred by sections 513 and 514 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882,‖ on the Court which has required the execution of or has taken a bond, may be exercised by the Magistrate.

Application of sections 513 and 514, Act X., 1882.

Act 21.

13. Such Political Agent may either dispose of the case himself, or, if he is generally or specially directed* to do so by the Governor-General in Council, or by the Governor of the Presidency of Fort St. George in Council, or by the Governor of the Presidency of Bombay in Council, may give over the person so forwarded, whether he be a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty or not, to be tried by the ordinary Courts of the State in which the offence was committed, "or, in the case of a deserter, by a duly-constituted Military Court."†

Political Agent may himself dispose of case, or make over person to ordinary Courts for trial.

14 Whenever a requisition is made to the Governor-General in Council or any Local Government by or by the authority of the persons for the time being administering the executive government of any part of the dominions of Her Majesty, or the territory of any Foreign Prince or State, that any person accused of having committed an offence in such dominions or territory should be given up, the Governor-General in Council or such Local Government, as the case may be, may issue an order to any Magistrate who would have had jurisdiction to inquire into the offence if it had been committed within the local limits of his jurisdiction, directing him to inquire into the truth of such accusation.

Requisitions for extradition by the executive of any part of British dominions or Foreign Power.

The Magistrate so directed shall issue a summons or warrant for the arrest of such person, according as the offence named appears to be one for which a summons or warrant would ordinarily issue; and shall inquire into the truth of such accusation, and shall report thereon to the Government by which he was directed to hold the said enquiry. If, upon receipt of such report, such Government is of opinion that the accused person ought to be given up to the persons making such requisition, it may issue a warrant for the custody and removal of such accused person and for his delivery at a place and to a person to be named in the warrant.

The provisions of section 10‡ shall apply to inquiries held under this section.

15. Whenever any person accused or suspected of having committed an offence out of British India is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of a Magistrate in British India, and it appears to such Magistrate that the Political Agent for any State could, under the provisions of section 11, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person, or that the persons for the time being administering the executive government of any part of the dominions of Her Majesty or the territory of any Foreign Prince or State could demand his surrender, such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person on such information or complaint, and such evidence as would, in his opinion, justify the issue of such a warrant if the offence had been committed within the local limits of his jurisdiction.

Magistrate may in certain cases issue warrant for arrest of person accused of having committed an offence out of British India.

Person arrested to be released after certain time if not proceeded against.

At any time before the receipt of such a warrant or order, the Magistrate, if he thinks fit, may, and the Magistrate if so directed by the Local Government shall, discharge the accused person.

OF RESERVED FORESTS.‡

Power to reserve forests.

3. The Local Government may, from time to time, constitute any forest-land or waste-land which is the property of Government, or over which the Government has proprietary rights, or

* The definition of "tree" has been substituted for the original definition by the Forest Act (V. of 1890), s. 2 (1). The wording of the original clause only referred to "bamboos stumps, and brushwood."

† The definitions of timber and forest-produce have been substituted for the original definitions by the Forest Act (V. of 1890), s. 2 (2) and (4) respectively.

‡ As to the application of provisions relating to reserved forests, (1) to village-forests, see s. 27, last paragraph; (2) to forests and lands not the property of the Government, see ss. 36–38; (3) to forests, waste-land, or produce, the joint property of the Government and other persons, see s. 79, infra.

to the whole or any part of the forest-produce of which the Government is entitled, a reserved forest in the manner hereinafter provided.

Notification by Local Government.

4. Whenever it is proposed to constitute any land a reserved forest, the Local Government may publish a notification in the local official Gazette—

(a) declaring that it is proposed to constitute such land a reserved forest;

(b)* specifying, as nearly as possible, the situation and limits of such land; and

(c) appointing an officer (hereinafter called "the Forest Settlement-officer") to inquire into and determine the existence, nature, and extent of any rights alleged to exist in favour of any person in or over any land comprised within such limits, or in or over any forest-produce, and to deal with the same as provided in this chapter.

Explanation.—For the purpose of clause (b) of this section, it shall be sufficient to describe the limits of the forest by roads, rivers, ridges, or other well known or readily intelligible boundaries.

The officer appointed under clause (c) of this section shall ordinarily be a person not holding any forest-office except that of Forest Settlement-officer.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the Local Government from appointing any number of officers not exceeding three, not more than one of whom shall be a person holding any forest office except as aforesaid, to perform the duties of a Forest Settlement-officer under this Act.

Bar of accrual of forest-rights.

5. During the interval between the publication of such notification and the date fixed by the notification under section 19, no right shall be acquired in or over the land comprised in such notification except by succession or under a grant or contract in writing made or entered into by or on behalf of Government or some person in whom such right was vested when the former notification was issued, and no fresh clearings for cultivation or for any other purpose shall be made in such land, "except in accordance with rules prescribed by the Local Government."†

Proclamation by Forest Settlement-officer.

6. When a notification has been issued under section 4, the Forest Settlement-officer shall publish in the language of the country, in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the land comprised therein, a proclamation—

(a) specifying, as nearly as possible, the situation and limits of the proposed forest;‡

(b) explaining the consequences which, as hereinafter provided, will ensue on the reservation of such forest; and

(c) fixing a period of not less than three months from the date of such proclamation, and requiring every person claiming any right mentioned in section 4 or 5, either to present to such officer within such period a written notice specifying, or to appear before him and state, the nature of such right, and the amount and particulars of the compensation (if any) claimed in respect thereof.

Enquiry by Forest Settlement-officer.

7. The Forest Settlement-officer shall take down in writing all statements made under section 6, and shall, at some convenient place, inquire into all claims duly preferred under that section, and the existence of any rights mentioned in section 4 or 5, and not claimed under section 6, so far as the same may be ascertainable from the records of Government and the evidence of any persons likely to be acquainted with the same.

Powers of Forest Settlement-officer.

8. For the purposes of such enquiry, the Forest Settlement-officer may exercise the following powers, that is to say:

(a) power to enter, by himself or any officer authorized by him for the purpose, upon any land, and to survey, demarcate, and make a map of the same; and

(b) the powers of a Civil Court in the trial of suits.

Extinction of rights.

9. Rights in respect of which no claim has been preferred under section 6, and of the existence of which no knowledge has been acquired by enquiry under section 7, shall be extinguished, unless, before the notification under section 19 is published, the person claiming them satisfies the Forest Settlement-officer that he had sufficient cause for not preferring such claim within the period fixed under section 6.

Treatment of claims relating to practice of shifting cultivation.

9A.* (1) In the case of a claim relating to the practice of shifting cultivation, the Forest Settlement-officer shall record a statement setting forth the particulars of the claim, and of any local rule or order under which the practice is allowed or regulated, and submit the statement to the Local Government, together with his opinion as to whether the practice should be permitted or prohibited, wholly or in part.

(2) On receipt of the statement and opinion, the Local Government may make an order permitting or prohibiting the practice wholly or in part.

(3) If such practice is permitted wholly or in part, the Forest Settlement-officer may arrange for its exercise —

(a) by altering the limits of the land under settlement so as to exclude land of sufficient extent, of a suitable kind, and in a locality reasonably convenient, for the purposes of the claimants; or

(b) by causing certain portions of the land under settlement to be separately demarcated, and giving permission to the claimants to practise shifting cultivation therein under such conditions as he may prescribe.

All arrangements made under this sub-section shall be subject to the previous sanction of the Local Government.

(4) The practice of shifting cultivation shall in all cases be deemed a privilege subject to control, restriction, and abolition by the Local Government.

Power to acquire land over which right is claimed.

10. In the case of a claim to a right in or over any land, other than a right of way or pasture, or to forest-produce or a watercourse, the Forest Settlement-officer shall pass an order admitting or rejecting the same in whole or in part.

If such claim is admitted in whole or in part, the Forest Settlement-officer shall either (1) exclude such land from the limits of the proposed forest; or (2) come to an agreement with the owner thereof for the surrender of his right; or (3) proceed to acquire such land in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.* 1870. Act X.

For the purpose of so acquiring such land—

(a) the Forest Settlement-officer shall be deemed to be a Collector proceeding under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870:*

(b) the claimant shall be deemed to be a person interested and appearing before him in pursuance of a notice given under section 9 of that Act;†

(c) the provisions of the preceding sections of that Act‡ shall be deemed to have been complied with; and

(d) the Collector, with the consent of the claimant, or the Court, with the consent of both parties, may award compensation in land, or partly in land and partly in money.

Order on claims to rights of pasture or to forest-produce.

11. In the case of a claim to rights of pasture or to forest-produce, the Forest Settlement-officer shall pass an order admitting or rejecting the same in whole or in part.

Record to be made by Forest Settlement-officer.

12. The Forest-Settlement officer, when passing any order under section 11, shall record, so far as may be practicable,—

(a) the name, father's name, caste, residence, and occupation of the person claiming the right;

(b) the designation, position, and area of all fields or groups of fields (if any), and the designation and position of all buildings (if any) in respect of which the exercise of such rights is claimed.

Record where he admits claim.

13. If the Forest Settlement-officer admits, in whole or in part, any claim under section 11, he shall also record the extent to which the claim is so admitted, specifying the number and description of the cattle which the claimant is from time to time entitled to graze in the forest, the season during which such pasture is permitted, the quantity of timber and other forest-produce which he is from time to time authorized to take or receive, or such other particulars as the case may require. He shall also record whether the timber or other forest-produce obtained by the exercise of the rights claimed may be sold or bartered.

Exercise of rights admitted.

14. After making such record, the Forest Settlement-officer shall, to the best of his ability, and having due regard to the maintenance of the reserved forest in respect of which the claim is made, pass such orders as will ensure the continued exercise of the rights so admitted. For this purpose the Forest Settlement-officer may—

(a) set out some other forest-tract of sufficient extent, and in a locality reasonably convenient for the purposes of such claimants, and record an order conferring upon them a right of pasture or to forest-produce (as the case may be) to the extent so admitted; or

(b) so alter the limits of the proposed forest as to exclude forest-land of sufficient extent, and in a locality reasonably convenient, for the purposes of the claimants; or

(c) record an order, continuing to such claimants a right of pasture or to forest-produce (as the case may be), to the extent so admitted, at such seasons, within such portions of the proposed forest, and under such rules, as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government.

Commutation of rights.

15. In case the Forest Settlement-officer finds it impossible, having due regard to the maintenance of the reserved forest, to make such settlement under section 14 as shall ensure the continued exercise of the said rights to the extent so admitted, he shall (subject to such rules as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe in this behalf) commute such rights, either by the payment to such persons of a sum of money in lieu thereof, or by the grant of land, or in such other manner as he thinks fit.

Appeal from order passed under section 10, 11, 14, or 15.

16. Any person who has made a claim under this Act, or any forest-officer or other person generally or specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, may, within three months from the date of the order passed on such claim by the Forest Settlement-officer under section 10, 11, 14, or 15, present an appeal from such order to such officer of the Revenue Department, of rank not lower than that of a Collector or Deputy Commissioner, as the Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, appoint by name, or as holding an office, to hear appeals from such orders:

Provided that, if the Local Government establishes (as it is hereby empowered to do) a Court (hereinafter called the Forest Court) composed of three persons to be appointed by the Local Government, such appeals shall be presented to such Court.

Appeal under section 16.

17. Every appeal under section 16 shall be made by petition in writing, and may be delivered to the Forest Settlement-officer, who shall forward it without delay to the authority competent to hear the same.

If the appeal be to an officer appointed under section 16, it shall be heard in the manner prescribed for the time being for the hearing of appeals in matters relating to land-revenue.

If the appeal be to the Forest Court, the Court shall fix a day and a convenient place in the neighbourhood of the proposed forest for hearing the appeal, and shall give notice thereof to the parties, and shall hear such appeal accordingly.

The order passed thereon by such officer or Court, or by the majority of the members of such Court, shall be final, subject to revision by the Local Government.

Pleaders.

18. The Local Government, or any person who has made a claim under this Act, may appoint any person to appear, plead, and act on its or his behalf before the Forest Settlement-officer, or the Appellate Officer or Court, in the course of any inquiry or appeal under this Act.

Notification declaring forest reserved.

19. When the following events have occurred (namely):—

(a) the period fixed under section 6 for preferring claims has elapsed, and all claims (if any) made within such period have been disposed of by the Forest Settlement-officer; and

(b) if such claims have been made, and the period limited by section 16 for appealing from the orders passed on such claims has elapsed, and all appeals (if any) presented within such period have been disposed of by the Appellate Officer or Court; and

(c) all lands (if any) to be included in the proposed forest, which the Forest Settlement-officer has, under section 10, elected to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870,* have become vested in the Government under section 16 of that Act,† the Local Government may publish a notification in the local official Gazette, specifying definitely, according to boundary-marks erected, or otherwise, the limits of the forest which it is intended to reserve, and declaring the same to be reserved from a date fixed by such notification.

From the date so fixed, such forest shall be deemed to be a reserved forest.

Publication of translation of such notification in neighbourhood of forest.

20. The forest-officer shall, before the date fixed by such notification, cause a translation thereof into the language of the country to be published in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest.

Power to revise arrangement made under section 14 or 17.

21. The Local Government may, within five years from the publication of any notification under section 19, revise any arrangement made under section 14 or 17, and may, for this purpose, rescind or modify any order made under section 14 or 17, and direct that any one of the proceedings specified in section 14 be taken in lieu of any other of such proceedings, or that the rights admitted under section 11 be commuted under section 15.

No right acquired over reserved forest, except as here provided.

22. No right of any description shall be acquired in or over a reserved forest except by succession or under a grant or contract in writing made by or on behalf of the Government or of some person in whom such right was vested when the notification under section 19 was issued.

Rights not to be alienated without sanction.

23. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 22, no right continued under section 14, clause (c), shall be alienated by way of grant, sale, lease, mortgage, or otherwise, without the sanction of the Local Government: Provided that, when any such right is appendant to any land or house, it may be sold or otherwise alienated with such land or house.

No timber or other forest-produce obtained in exercise of any such right shall be sold or bartered, except to such extent as may have been admitted in the order recorded under section 13.

Whenever fire is caused wilfully or by gross negligence in a reserved forest, the Local Government may (notwithstanding that any penalty has been inflicted under this section) direct that in such forest, or any portion thereof, the exercise of all rights of pasture or to forest-produce shall be suspended for such period as it thinks fit.

Power to declare forest no longer reserved.

26. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, by notification in the local official Gazette, direct that, from a date fixed by such notification, any forest or any portion thereof reserved under this Act shall cease to be a reserved forest.

From the date so fixed, such forest or portion shall cease to be reserved; but the rights (if any) which have been extinguished therein shall not revive in consequence of such cessation.

OF VILLAGE-FORESTS.

27. The Local Government may, from time to time, assign to any village-community the rights of Government to or over any land which has been constituted a reserved forest, and may cancel such assignment. All forests so assigned shall be called village-forests.

The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules for regulating the management of village-forests prescribing the conditions under which the community to which any such assignment is made may be provided with timber or other forest-produce or pasture, and their duties for the protection and improvement of such forest.

All provisions of this Act relating to reserved forests shall (so far as they are consistent with the rules so made) apply to village-forests.

OF PROTECTED FORESTS.*

"Protected forests."

28. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare the provisions of this chapter applicable to any forest-land or waste-land which is not included in a reserved forest, but which is the property of Government, or over which the Government has proprietary rights, or to the whole or any part of the forest-produce of which the Government is entitled.

The forest-land and waste-land comprised in any such notification shall be called a "protected forest."

No such notification shall be made unless the nature and extent of the rights of Government and of private persons in or over the forest-land or waste-land comprised therein have been enquired into and recorded at a survey or settlement, or in such other manner as the Local Government thinks sufficient.

Every such record shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved:

Provided that if, in the case of any forest-land or waste-land, the Local Government thinks that such enquiry and record are necessary, but that they will occupy such length of time as that the rights of Government will in the meantime be endangered, the Local Government may (pending such enquiry and record) declare such land to be a protected forest, but so as not to abridge or affect any existing rights of individuals or communities.

Power to issue notification—

Act 7.

POSSESSION of wood by a forest-inspector, who is a servant of Government, is possession of the Government itself; and a dishonest removal of it, without payment of the necessary fees, from his possession, albeit with his actual consent, constitutes theft, within the meaning of s. 378 of the Penal Code, if that consent was unauthorized or fraudulent.—REG v. HANMANTA, I. L. R., 1 Bom. 610 [Melvill and Kemball, JJ. Feb. 26, 1877.]

No order confiscating forest-produce which is the property of Government, in respect of which a forest-offence has been committed, is necessary, or can be made All that need be done is to direct a forest-officer to take charge of such forest-produce An order directing the confiscation of forest-produce not belonging to Government, in respect of which a forest-offence has been committed, can only be made at the time the offender is convicted. The High Court is competent, under s 297 of Act X. of 1872, to revise an order made by a District Judge under s. 58 of the Forests Act, 1878, on appeal from the order of a Magistrate made under s. 54 of that Act, the jurisdiction of the High Court under s 297 of Act X. of 1872 not being expressly taken away by s. 58 of the Forests Act, 1878—EMPRESS v. NATHU KHAN, I. L. R., 4 All. 417. [Straight, J. May 4, 1882.]

THE accused was charged, in the alternative, by the trying Magistrate, as follows: "I, W. W. Drew, Magistrate, First Class, hereby charge you, Ramji Sajabarao as follows: 'That you, on or about the 13th day of October 1882, at Nandarpada, stated that you had seen Vishnu Vaman and Mahadu Lakhsman carrying teakwood from Gohe Forest to Narayan Ramchandra, range forest-officer, and on 14th February 1885 you stated on oath before the First-class Magistrate at Pen, at the trial of these persons, that you did not see where they had brought the wood from, and thereby committed an offence punishable under s. 182 or s. 193 of the Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860), and within my cognizance; and I hereby direct that you, Ramji Sajabarao, be tried by the said Court on the same charge.'" At the trial the accused asserted the truth of the former of these two statements, and denied having made the other. The Magistrate was unable to find which of them was false, and convicted the accused, in the alternative, either under s. 182 or s. 193 of the Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860). Held that the charge was bad in law, being an alternative charge in a form forbidden by s. 233 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1882), which directs that for every distinct offence of which any person is charged, there shall be a separate charge. Nor could the accused be tried upon a charge framed in the alternative as in the form given in Sch. V. XXVIII. (4) of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1882). For, upon the facts alleged, there was no way of charging him with one distinct offence on the ground of self-contradiction He could not successfully be charged, under s. 193 of the Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860), on contradictory statements, because he only made one deposition, in which there were no discrepancies; and, similarly, he could not be charged under s. 182 of the Penal Code, for he only once gave information to a public servant. Held also that, having regard to ss. 225, 232 and 537 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1882), the accused, convicted upon such a charge, must be held to have been misled in his defence, and his conviction and sentence reversed. In charges founded upon supposed contradictory statements, every presumption in favour of the possible reconciliation of the statements must be made. Under s. 172 of the Forests Act (VII. of 1878), a forest-officer is a public servant within the meaning of the Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860) Any information given to him with the intent mentioned in s 182 of the Penal Code is punishable under that section, whether that information is volunteered by the informant or is given in answer to questions put to him by that officer—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAMJI SAJABARAO, I. UNDER s 21 (d) of the Madras Forest Act (Madras Act V of 1882), the owner of cattle cannot be convicted in the absence of evidence that he either pastured the cattle, or permitted them to trespass in the reserve. —QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KRISHTNAYYAN, I. ## RULINGS UNDER THE GAMBLING LAWS.

ON a reference by a Sessions Judge where certain persons were found guilty of gaming by a Full-power Magistrate solely on the evidence of a person supposed to have been concerned in the offence, whom the Magistrate had pardoned, held that a Magistrate has no power to tender a pardon in a case which he tries himself, but only, under s. 209 of the Criminal Procedure Code, in the case of an offence triable by the Court of Session. — REG. v. REMEDIOS, 3 Bom. H. C. R. 59. [Couch, C.J., and Newton and Warden, JJ. June 12, 1867.]

A PERSON apprehended by the police, and brought before the Magistrate with the accused, is, though not discharged by the Magistrate, a competent witness against the accused, provided he be not charged along with the accused. Conviction of keeping a common gaming-house upheld, where portion of the evidence against the accused consisted of instruments of gaming found in such house, which had been entered in pursuance of a search-warrant illegally issued, there being sufficient evidence aliunde to justify the conviction.—REG. v. NARAYAN SUNDER, 5 Bom. H. C. R. 1 [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. Jan. 16, 1868.]

THE gist of the offence under s. 4 of Act III. of 1867 consists in the fact that the house in which the gambling takes place is "a common gaming-house." The gist of the offence under s. 13 is "the gambling in a public street or place." Gambling in a private house is not an offence under the Act.—QUEEN v. KHYROO, 2 N.-W. P. 289. [Turner, Offg. C.J. July 8, 1870.]

A COMMON gaming-house is one which is kept or used for profit or gain, and may constitute a public nuisance; but it cannot be held, in the absence of evidence of any actual annoyance to the public, that every person who admits gamblers into his house, and all persons who game therein, are guilty of a public nuisance within the meaning of s. 268 of the Penal Code.—REG. v. HAU NAGJI. 7 Bom. H. C. R. 74. [Gibbs and Melvill, JJ. Dec. 1, 1870.]

To authorize an entry or search of a house under s. 5 of Act III. of 1867, there must be credible information before the Magistrate or police-officer who may take action under such section that the house is a common gaming-house. Unless a house is entered or searched under the provisions of s. 5, the finding of cards dice, &c., therein, will not be primâ facie evidence for the purposes mentioned in Act III. of 1867.—QUEEN v. SUBSOOKH, 2 N.-W. P. 476. [Turner and Turnbull, JJ. Dec. 17, 1870.]

GAMBLING is not ordinarily punishable as an offence; it is only so punishable when carried on in a common gaming-house or in a public street or place.—QUEEN v. SHEOSHUNKER SINGH. 3 N.-W. P. 1. [Turner, J. Jan. 4, 1871.]

A WARRANT issued under s. 58 of Act XIII. of 1856 should be addressed to some one or more inspectors, and not generally to "all constables and peace-officers." Where a warrant in the latter form was executed under the direction of an inspector, it was held that the error in the form of the warrant was merely an error of procedure, and did not affect the validity of the conviction, under s. 57, of persons apprehended in pursuance of the warrant so executed. Held on the evidence that there was sufficient to show that the house in which the prisoners were arrested was a common gaming-house. A person is "found gaming," within the meaning of s. 57 of Act XIII of 1856, who, having been seen gaming by an inspector of police, is shortly afterwards, in a place adjoining the room in which he was seen gaming, apprehended by police-constables acting under the direction of such inspector.—REG. v. NANA MOROJI, 8 Bom. H. C. R. 1 [Green, J. Jan. 16, 1871.]

GAMING is not punishable by law unless it be carried on in public places or thoroughfares, or in common gaming-houses. Common gaming-houses are houses in which instruments of gambling are kept or used for the profit or gain of the owner or occupier, whether by way of charge for the use of the instrument of gaming, or of the houses, or otherwise howsoever.—QUEEN v. SUJJUD ALI, 3 N.-W. P. 134. [Turner, J. June 16, 1871.]

THE notification which the Government is empowered to issue under s. 2 of the Gaming Act, II of 1867 (B. C.), should specify the limits of any town to which it is intended the Act should apply, and must be published in three consecutive Gazettes. Where a first notification, which extends the Act to a town with specification of limits to which it was intended to be applied, was published only once, and a subsequent notification, published three times, extended the Act to the town without specifying the limits to which the Act was to apply, it was held that the subsequent notifications were not sufficient, but that did not prevent the operation of the Act in places which are shown to be undoubtedly within the town according to its ordinary designation.—BANEE MADHUB KOONDOO, PETITIONER, 21 W. R. 23. [Markby and Birch, JJ. Dec. 22, 1873.]

WHERE a police-officer, unauthorized by a Magistrate or District Superintendent of Police, enters and searches an alleged gaming-house, and arrests persons found therein, a Magistrate is justified in convicting such persons, if it is proved, without resorting to the presumption created by Ben. Act II. of 1867, s 6, that the house is a gaming-house.—NAZIR KHAN v PROLADH DUTTA, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 650. [Jackson, Offg. C.J., and McDonell, J. Nov. 29, 1878.]

A DEPUTY INSPECTOR of police is not authorized to enter and search an alleged gaming-house, unless he receives authority so to do from a Magistrate or a District Superintendent of Police. Where such an unauthorized entry and subsequent arrest of persons in a gaming-house takes place, there being no other evidence of an offence under s 5 of Act II. of 1867, a Magistrate has no evidence before him on which he can convict. The evidence required cannot be presumed under s. 6 of the Act, because that presumption only arises when the proceedings are authorized by s 5.—SREERAM CHUNDRA LARKAN v. BIPINDASS, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 710 [Mitter and McDonell, JJ. Feb. 2, 1879.]

A COIN is not an instrument of gaming within the meaning of s. 11 of Bom. Act III. of 1866. An instrument of gaming means an implement devised or intended for that purpose.—IMPERATRIX v. VITHAL BHAICHAND, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 19. [Melvill and Pinhey, JJ. Nov. 17, 1881.]

The lessee of a house, who permitted disorderly people to use it for gambling, and thereby caused annoyance to the public, was convicted of an offence under the Penal Code, s. 290. It appeared, however, that the accused had not engaged the house with the object of letting it out as a gaming-house. Held that the conviction was right. —QUEEN-EMPRESS v. [HANDAVARAYUDU, I. L. R., 14 Mad. 364. [Muttusami Ayyar and Wilkinson, JJ. Jan 28, 1891.]

A COIN is not an "instrument of gaming" within the meaning of s. 12 of Bom. Act IV. of 1887 as amended by Bom. Act I. of 1890. The expression "instrument of gaming," as used in s. 12 of the Act of 1887, means an implement devised or intended for that purpose. Imperatrix v. Vithal (I. L. R., 6 Bom. 19) followed.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. GOVIND, I. L. R., 16 Bom. 283. [Birdwood, Jardine, and Parsons, JJ. July 9, 1891.]

The accused rented a place near a public road at Bombay at Rs. 350 a month. There they erected a shed containing eleven pedhis or stalls. In the centre of the shed they put up, in a prominent position, a clock for keeping accurate time. The stalls were let out to certain persons, each at the rate of Rs. 100 a month. The roofs of several adjoining houses surrounded this place. From one of these roofs rain fell into the place. Numbers of people resorted to this place for the purpose of rain-betting. The rain betters staked certain sums of money, on the chance whether the rain would fall or would not fall within a certain time. After making the bets, the parties betting would go to one of the stall-keepers, and get him to register the particulars of the bet in a book kept for the purpose, and each deposited with the stall-keeper the amount staked. The bets as to rain-falling were determined by persons at the place seeing the rain falling in a stream from such of the roofs of the adjoining houses as had been chosen by the betters on making the bets, and seeing also the time, by the clock, if there was any doubt as to the time After the bet was determined, the winner received from the stall-keeper the amount of the stake. Under these circumstances, the accused were charged before the Chief Presidency Magistrate with committing the offence of keeping a "common gaming-house" under s 4, cls. a, b, and c, of the Bombay Gambling Act, IV. of 1887, as amended by Act I of 1890. On a reference by the Magistrate under s 432 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X. of 1882), held that to bring the place in question within the definition of a "common gaming-house" in s. 3 of the Bombay Gambling Act (IV. of 1887), as amended by Bombay Act I. of 1890, the instrument of gaming or wagering must be in the place itself, either kept there, or brought there and used there, for profit and gain. It is not sufficient that wagers are made in the place upon or by means of some article or other which is outside the place. The roofs of the houses surrounding the place in question could not, therefore, be regarded as "instruments of gaming," either kept or used therein, within the meaning of s. 3 of the Act. Held also that the word "used" in s 3 of the Act, as amended by Act I. of 1890, must be taken, in its ordinary sense, as meaning actually used. Any article which is in fact used as a means of wagering comes within the definition of "an instrument of gaming" even though it may not have been specially devised or intended for that purpose Held per Telang, J., that neither the stalls, nor the books in which the bets were registered, nor the money staked and deposited with the stall-keeper, were instruments of gaming or wagering. —QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KANJI BHIMJI, I. L. R., 17 Bom 184. [Parsons and Telang, JJ. Sep. 20, 1892.]

Local Government to appoint examiners.

38. Except as provided by sections 4, 5, 16, 27, 32, and 36, nothing in this act applies to advocates, vakils, and attorneys admitted and enrolled by any High Court under the Letters Patent by which such Court is constituted, or to mukhtars practising in such Court, or to advocates enrolled "under section 41 of this Act."*

Suspension or dismissal of person holding mukhtar and revenue-agent's certificates.

39. When any person who holds a certificate as a mukhtar under section 7 and a certificate as a revenue-agent under section 18 is suspended or dismissed in one of such capacities he shall be deemed to be suspended or dismissed as the case may be, also in the other.

Pleaders, &c., not to be suspended or dismissed without being heard.

A MAGISTRATE has no power to dismiss a mukhtar generally, unless he be convicted of an offence involving moral turpitude or infamy.—QUEEN v. SHAM CHAND CHOWDRY, 1 W. R. 34. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Dec. 5, 1864.]

EVIDENCE which does not support a conviction on a criminal charge cannot justify a removal from a profession, the present case being that of a mukhtar.—NIL KUNT BISWAS, MUKHTAR, REFERENCE IN THE CASE OF, 9 W. R. 29. [Jackson, J. Mar. 7, 1868.]

CASE in which the High Court declined on the facts to strike a pleader off the rolls for using improper expressions during the argument of a case before a Zila Judge, who recommended, after observing the requirements of s. 16, Act XX. of 1865, that such punishment should be awarded. The Zila Judge should have called the pleader to order, and required him to apologize.—MR. R. CRUISE, PLEADER OF THE JUDGE'S COURT OF PURNEAH, 14 W. R. 53. [Loch and Hobhouse, JJ. Sep. 13, 1870.]

WHERE an officer is acting in two capacities, viz., as Assistant Collector and Assistant Magistrate, he should not, in his capacity of Magistrate, convict a person of an offence committed before him as Collector; therefore he has no authority as Magistrate to fine a person under s. 34, Act XX. of 1865, for practising in his Court as Collector without a certificate.—IN THE MATTER OF RAMDYAL SINGH, 5 B. L. R. Ap. 89. [Loch and Markby, JJ. Nov. 9, 1870.]

THE procedure under s. 16 of the Pleaders and Mukhtars Act, 1865, refers only to cases of professional misconduct; the words "any such misconduct as aforesaid," being connected with the words "grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty." A mukhtar may be suspended or dismissed for any reasonable cause, the words "for other reasonable cause" in s. 15 referring to cases of other than professional misconduct. When a mukhtar is alleged to have committed some impropriety for which he could not be criminally prosecuted, and which does not come under the denomination of professional misconduct, the High Court may institute inquiries suo motu, and if it thinks that any reasonable cause other than professional has been established, may suspend or dismiss the mukhtar without the necessity of either written charge or notice, so long as the mukhtar had every facility for knowing what he was charged with, and for making his answer. — GOLAB KHAN, MUKHTAR, PETITIONER, 16 W. R. 15; 6 B. L. R. Ap. 83; 7 B. L. R. A. Cr. 179. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. June 19, 1871.]

CASE of a mukhtar who was reinstated by the High Court in his practice after suspension by reason of his having been convicted in two cases, the circumstances of these cases not showing that the mukhtar was guilty of any moral turpitude, or that he was unfit to act in the Criminal Courts as a mukhtar.—KOYLASH NATH CHOWDHRY, MUKHTAR, IN THE MATTER OF, 16 W. R. 41. [Ainslie and Paul, JJ. Aug. 26, 1871.]

WHERE a Magistrate suspended a mukhtar for three months for making a wilfully false statement, it was held that the Magistrate had no power to suspend the mukhtar under Act XX. of 1865, and his suspension was set aside. — In re BANCHANIDHI MAHANTY, 17 W. R. 6. [Kemp and Jackson, JJ. Jan 6, 1872.]

THE writing of a petition for a party who presents it in Court is not acting as a mukhtar within the meaning of s. 11, Act XX. of 1865; and the writer is not liable to punishment under s. 13 for practising as a mukhtar without a certificate.—In re KALI CHARAN CHUND, 9 B. L. R. Ap. 18; 18 W. R. 27. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. July 5, 1872.]

THE word "act" in s. 5 of the Pleaders and Mukhtars Act (XX. of 1865) means the doing something as the agent of the principal party which shall be recognized or taken notice of by the Court as the act of that principal. There is nothing in the words of the Act, or in the spirit, to prevent a person as private agent from going between the prisoner, or the duly authorized vakil upon whom the real responsibility of the defence rests.—FUZZLE ALI, PETITIONER, 19 W. R. 8. [Phear and Ainslie, JJ. Jan. 15, 1873.]

A MAGISTRATE has no power to suspend a mukhtar under Act XX. of 1865.—ROOPO BEWAH v. KEKAROO, 21 W. R. 41. [Kemp and Ainslie, JJ. Feb. 17, 1874.]

A PLEADER or mukhtar practising in contravention of the provisions of s. 10 of Act XVIII. of 1879 is punishable under s. 32 of that Act only by the Court before which he so practised.—IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF GANGA DAYAL, I. L. R., 4 All. 375. [Oldfield, J. Mar. 25, 1882.]

WHERE three persons, of whom one was a pleader, were tried together and convicted under s. 181 of the Penal Code of having made false statements on solemn affirmation about the same matter in the course of an inquiry into the conduct of the pleader under the provisions of the Legal Practitioners Act, held that the conviction of the pleader was bad, as his statement was improperly taken from him on solemn affirmation. Held also that the trial of the three prisoners together was a grave error of procedure vitiating the trial. Held further that, an inquiry under the Legal Practitioners Act being a judicial proceeding, false statements on solemn affirmation made by the witnesses therein should be charged and tried separately under s. 193 of the Penal Code.—SUBBA v. QUEEN, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 252. [Innes and Kernan, JJ. Feb. 23, 1883.]

DEPOSITIONS of witnesses, or confessions taken at a police-investigation, are not, as far as their subject-matter is concerned, any more the property of the police than the property of the prisoners, and a pleader is not guilty of misconduct of any kind in making use of such documents for the benefit of his client, when delivered to him by the client, however improperly the client may have become possessed of such documents, provided the pleader is neither party nor privy to their obtainment. The power of interim suspension given under s. 14 (cl. 5) of Act XVIII. of 1879, when read with s. 40 of the same Act, can only be exercised after the pleader has been heard in his defence and pending the investigation and orders of the High Court.—IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF KRISTO LAL NAG I L R., 10 Cal. 256. [Garth, C.J., and McDonell, J. Dec. 12, 1883.]

A DISTRICT Judge reported to the High Court for orders the case of a pleader who had been convicted of cheating under s. 417 of the Penal Code, and who, in the opinion of the District Judge, was unfit to be allowed to practise. Upon the hearing of the case, Counsel was permitted to go behind the conviction, in order to show that the acts of the pleader did not amount at law to the offence of cheating.—IN THE MATTER OF DURGA CHURN, PLEADER, I. L. R., 7 All. 290. [Petheram, C.J., and Oldfield, Brodhurst, Mahmood, and Duthoit, JJ. Jan. 17, 1885.] Partly overruled by In the Matter of Rajendro Nath Mukerjee, 3 C. W. N. 736.

ACT XVIII. of 1879 is an amending, as well as a consolidating Act, and one of the respects in which it amended the old law was the conferring upon the High Court power "to make rules declaring what shall be deemed to be the functions, powers, and duties of the mukhtars practising in the subordinate Courts. When a person other than a duly certificated and enrolled mukhtar, constantly and as a means of livelihood, performs any of the functions or powers, which the rule framed by the High Court, in accordance with the provisions of the Legal Practitioners Act, says, are the functions and powers of a mukhtar, he practises as a mukhtar, and is liable to a penalty under s. 32 of the Act. The words "any person" in s. 32 embrace pure outsiders as well as duly-qualified and enrolled mukhtars who have failed to take out their certificate. G N, though not a certificated mukhtar, was in the habit of appointing and instructing pleaders in the Civil Courts on account of certain persons who paid him a regular monthly salary for so doing. In a proceeding against him under the Legal Practitioners Act, G N made this statement: "I receive a letter from the mofussil from a person and act for him, he sending the vakalatnama with his letter. I receive monthly wages from each of the persons who employ me. Each of the employers I have mentioned belongs to a distinct family, and lives in a separate village." Held that G N was neither a private servant, nor a recognized agent, of any of his employers within the meaning of s. 37 of the Civil Procedure Code, and was liable to a penalty, under s. 32 of the Legal Practitioners Act, for having practised as a mukhtar. Held also that, having regard to the Court in which G N practised, the words in s. 32, "to a fine not exceeding ten times the amount of the stamp required by this Act for a certificate authorising him so to practise in such Court," were equivalent to the words, "to a fine not exceeding Rs. 250"—In re GIRHAR NARAIN: TUSSUDUQ HOSSAIN v. GIRHAR NARAIN, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 556. [Mitter, Prinsep, Wilson, Tottenham, and Norris, JJ. May 23, 1887.]

A VAKIL practising in the High Court was convicted by a Court of Session of the offence punishable under s. 471 of the Penal Code, and the conviction was affirmed by the High Court on appeal. The vakil was subsequently called upon to show cause why he should not, in consequence of such conviction, be struck off the roll of vakils of the Court. On appearance in answer to this rule, it was held that the vakil was not entitled to question the propriety in law or in fact of the conviction, but that it was open to him to show, if he could, that his conduct in the matter in respect of which he had been convicted was not such as to render him an unfit person to be retained on the roll of vakils of the Court.—In re RAJENDRO NATH MUKERJEE, I. L. R., 18 All. 174. [Edge, Knox, Blair, Banerjee, Burkitt, and Aikman, JJ Jan. 3, 1895.]

A VAKIL of the High Court signed and sent a letter to another vakil of that Court, who practised in District Courts subordinate thereto. The purport of this, which was one of several printed forms prepared for circulation to vakils practising in districts, was to the effect that the vakil, to whom it was addressed, could easily send his clients' cases, both civil and criminal, to the writer, who would conduct them in that Court. And—"as a remuneration"—the fees paid by the clients would be shared between the writer and the vakil who had sent the cases. The Judicial Committee concurred substantially in the conclusions of the High Court that this was an incitement within s. 116 (abetment) of the Indian Penal Code to commit an offence made penal by s. 36 (which was a special law within s. 41 of that Code) of Act XVIII. of 1879, the Legal Practitioners Act. This misconduct had been aggravated by the appellant's having denied to the Vakils' Association, North-Western Provinces, and caused evidence to be called to negative his having signed the printed letter, which he had signed. Thus, there was "reasonable cause," within s 8 of the Letters Patent of March 17th, 1866, establishing the High Court, for his suspension, to which, for four years from the date of that Court's order, his punishment was reduced.—In re PARBATI CHARAN CHATTERJEE, I. L. R., 17 All. 498. [Watson, Morris, and Couch, JJ. June 20, 1895.]

HELD that, in the case of an order passed under s 36 of Act XVIII of 1879 the High Court could only interfere in the exercise of the powers of superintendence conferred upon it by s. 15 of the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, and that it would not interfere even then, where the sole ground upon which its interference was asked for was that the decision of the District Judge was against the weight of the evidence.—In re MADHO RAM, I. L. R., 21 All. 181. [Strachey and Knox, JJ. Jan 6, 1899.]

THE appointment of a pleader to act as a Magistrate is not forbidden by s. 557 or any other provision of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V. of 1898). After the Criminal Procedure Code of 1898 had come into force, a practising pleader was appointed to act as a Presidency Magistrate. On his appointment he gave up practising, and was not practising at the time the accused was tried and convicted by him of theft. The accused applied to the High Court in revision, to quash the conviction, on the ground that the appointment of the Magistrate contravened the provisions of s 557 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Held that s. 557 of the Code does not deal with appointments, and had no application to the present case, as the Magistrate was not practising at the time the accused was tried and convicted.—In re JIVANJI ADAMJI, I. L. R., 23 Bom. 490. [Parsons, C.J., and Ranade, J. Oct. 5, 1898.]

WHERE a vakil was convicted of forgery and sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment, and subsequently notice was served on him to show cause why he should not be removed from the roll of vakils and his certificate cancelled, it was held that the propriety in law or in fact of the conviction could not be questioned in such proceedings. In the Matter of Doorga Churn (I. L. R., 7 All. 290) overruled. The conviction of forgery followed by a sentence of two years' rigorous imprisonment was sufficient without further inquiry to justify the Court in removing the appellant from the roll of vakils, and cancelling his certificate. In re Brounsall (2 Cow., p. 829). Semble.—The Court has a discretion to look at the evidence given at the trial to see what was the nature of the offence, and would not, as a matter of course, strike him off the rolls because he had been convicted. In re Weare (L. R 2 Q. B. 439) and Ex parte the Incorporated Law Society (61 L. T. 842) referred to.—In re RAJENDRO NÀTH MUKERJI, 3 C. W. N 736. [Hobhouse, Macnaghten, and Couch, JJ. June 17, 1899.]

A VAKIL of the High Court was convicted, under s. 471 of the Indian Penal Code, of fraudulently using as genuine a document which he knew to be forged. This was affirmed on appeal, when the punishment to which he had been sentenced was reduced to two years. The High Court, while not allowing the propriety of the conviction and sentence to be questioned, had considered whether his culpability was such as to disqualify him for his profession and had decided in the affirmative, removing him from the roll under para. 8 of the Letters Patent, 1866. Held that, in the present case, the conviction, followed by the sentence, was sufficient, without further inquiry, to justify the High Court in making that order. The appellant could not be allowed to have an indirect appeal against the judgment of the Sessions Judge confirmed by the High Court. The judgment of Lord Mansfield in Ex parte Brounsall (1778, 2 Cowper's Rep 829) referred to as well explaining the disqualification of a member of the legal profession that attends such a conviction and sentence. In re Weare (1893, L. R., 2 Q. B. 439), where the Court of Appeal looked to see what was the nature of the offence, and would not, as a matter of course, strike a solicitor off the roll because he had been convicted, distinguished from the present case. In re Durga Charan (1885, I. Explanation.—As regards oaths and affirmations administered in the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon and the Court of Small Causes of Rangoon, the Recorder of Rangoon shall be deemed to be the High Court within the meaning of this section.

Power of Court to tender certain oaths.

8. If any party to, or witness in, any judicial proceeding, offers to give evidence on oath or solemn affirmation in any form common amongst, or held binding by, persons of the race or persuasion to which he belongs, and not repugnant to justice or decency, and not purporting to affect any third person, the Court may, if it thinks fit, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, tender such oath or affirmation to him.

Court may ask party or witness whether he will make oath proposed by opposite party.

9. If any party to any judicial proceeding offers to be bound by any such oath or solemn affirmation as is mentioned in section 8, if such oath or affirmation is made by the other party to, or by any witness in, such proceeding, the Court may, if it thinks fit, ask such party or witness, or cause him to be asked, whether or not he will make the oath or affirmation:

Provided that no party or witness shall be compelled to attend personally in Court solely for the purpose of answering such question.

Administration of oath if accepted.

10. If such party or witness agrees to make such oath or affirmation, the Court may proceed to administer it, or, if it is of such a nature that it may be more conveniently made out of Court, the Court may issue a commission to any person to administer it, and authorize him to take the evidence of the person to be sworn or affirmed, and return it to the Court.

Evidence conclusive as against person offering to be bound.

11. The evidence so given shall, as against the person who offered to be bound as aforesaid, be conclusive proof of the matter stated.

Procedure in case of refusal to make oath.

12. If the party or witness refuses to make the oath or solemn affirmation referred to in section 8, he shall not be compelled to make it, but the Court shall record, as part of the proceedings, the nature of the oath or affirmation proposed, the facts that he was asked whether he would make it, and that he refused it, together with any reason which he may assign for his refusal.

V.—Miscellaneous.

Proceedings and evidence not invalidated by omission of oath or irregularity.

13. No omission to take any oath or make any affirmation, no substitution of any one for any other of them, and no irregularity whatever in the form in which any one of them is administered, shall invalidate any proceeding, or render inadmissible any evidence whatever, in or in respect of which such omission, substitution, or irregularity took place, or shall affect the obligation of a witness to state the truth.

Persons giving evidence bound to state the truth.

14. Every person giving evidence on any subject before any Court or person hereby authorized to administer oaths and affirmations shall be bound to state the truth on such subject.*

* Compare the Indian Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860), s. 191.

SCHEDULE.

RULINGS UNDER THE OATHS ACT.

WHERE a plaintiff before a Munsif came and petitioned the Judge, complaining that the Munsif had improperly refused to examine his witnesses, and had dismissed his suit, although informed that witnesses were in attendance and the Judge, upon examining the petitioner upon solemn affirmation, and finding the charge unproved, ordered proceedings to be taken against the petitioner for giving false evidence, held that the Judge had no authority to examine the petitioner upon oath in such a case, and that the oath having been made, and the evidence given, coram non judice, could not form the subject of a prosecution for false evidence.—QUEEN v. CHOTA JADUB CHUNDER BISWAS, W. R. Sp. 15. [Seton-Karr and Jackson, JJ. Mar. 2, 1864.]

A HINDU, who has become a convert to Christianity, is not under a legal obligation to speak the truth, unless his evidence be given under the sanction of an oath on the Holy Gospels, so as to justify a conviction under s. 193 of the Penal Code. A statement made by a witness in a criminal trial not upon oath or solemn affirmation is not a declaration within the meaning of s. 199 of the Penal Code, nor is the witness bound to make a declaration under s. 191.—In re A. VEDAMUTTU, 4 Mad. H. C. R. 185 [Scotland, C.J., and Ellis, J. Dec. 21, 1868.]

IF the jury in a Sessions trial are not sworn, is the omission one which could be covered by s. 13 of the Oaths Act (X. of 1873)?—QUEEN v. RAMSODOY CHUCKERBUTTY, 20 W. R. 19 [Glover, Mitter, and Pontifex, JJ. June 9, 1873.]

UNDER Act VI. of 1872, s. 5, the omission to take any oath, or any other irregularity, in the form in which it is administered, does not invalidate the proceedings. The High Court declined to interfere, under s. 296, Act X. of 1872, with the order of a Municipal Commissioner, who was the editor of a newspaper, who had, prior to the disposal of the case, made very strong remarks on the case in the newspaper of which he was editor, holding that there was nothing illegal in his order, though he would have exercised a wise discretion if he had refused to sit as one of the Commissioners in the case.—QUEEN v. TARINEE CHURN BOSE, 21 W. R. 31. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Jan. 19, 1874.]

IN a non-judicial proceeding, the object of which is to discover the writer of a scandalous petition, it is not competent for the Magistrate conducting the proceeding to administer an oath. The High Court reversed a conviction for giving false evidence where an oath was administered under the above circumstances.—REG. v. JIBHAI VAJA, 11 Bom. H. C. R. 11. [Melvill and Nanabhai Haridas, JJ. Feb. 19, 1874.]

THE Court in this case declined to act on the evidence of a child, 9 years old, who had been examined without oath, although she was a competent witness under s. 118 of the Evidence Act (I. of 1872), inclining to the opinion that s. 13 of the Oaths Act, by which the evidence of a witness may be received in evidence, although no oath was administered, did not render the deposition of a child of 9 years, whose deposition had been taken advisedly, and not by omission, without oath or solemn affirmation, admissible as evidence.—QUEEN v. ANUNTO CHUCKERBUTTY, 22 W. R. 1; 14 B. L. R. 295n. [Kemp and Birch, JJ. April 20, 1874.]

THE evidence of a child of immature age—who, the Sessions Judge considered, understood the questions which were put to her, and who was therefore a competent witness under s. 118 of the Evidence Act—taken by the Sessions Judge on a simple affirmation, because she was not aware of the responsibility of an oath, was held to be admissible as evidence under s. 13 of the Oaths Act (X. of 1873). Case of Dwarkanath Dutt (7 W. R. 15), which ruled that a Court, before which a second trial is held, has nothing to do with the evidence given in the former trial, except for the purpose of ascertaining whether the offence in the two trials is the same, followed. A prisoner originally charged with an offence under one section (302), and acquitted of that charge, was committed, the day following that on which she was acquitted, for trial under another section (307), without any witnesses being examined on the charge under s. 307, and without having any opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses on the first charge, with respect to the second charge. Held that the irregularity was one which was not covered by s. 283, Code of Criminal Procedure, and that the prisoner had been prejudiced thereby in her defence. The trial under s. 307 was accordingly quashed, and a new trial ordered.—QUEEN v. MUSSAMUT ITWARYA, 22 W. R. 14; 14 B. L. R. 54. Ap. 1. [Kemp and Birch, JJ. May 9, 1874.]

HELD by the majority (Jackson, J., dissenting) that the evidence of a witness, who was examined on simple affirmation under the direction of the Judge, is admissible as evidence. The word "omission" in s. 13 of the Oaths Act (X. of 1873) includes any omission, and is not limited to accidental or negligent omissions.—QUEEN v. SEWA BHOGTA, 23 W. R. 12; 14 B. L. R. 294. [Couch, C.J., and Kemp, Jackson, Phear, and Markby, JJ. Dec. 22, 1874.]

S. 51, ch. 6, of Act I. of 1879, enacts that, "subject to such rules as may be made by the Governor-General in Council as to the evidence which the Collector may require, allowance shall be made by the Collector for impressed stamps spoiled in the cases hereinafter mentioned," &c. According to a rule made with reference to that section, "the Collector may require every person claiming a refund under ch. 6 of the said Act, or his duly authorized agent, to make an oral deposition on oath," &c. Held, therefore, that the Collector himself is the officer, and no other, to whom power is given by law to make inquiries into applications for allowances for spoiled stamps, to take evidence on oath in reference thereto, and to grant or refuse such applications, and he cannot delegate his authority in the matter. Held, therefore, where a person had applied for a refund under ch. 6 of Act I. of 1879, and the Collector made over the application for inquiry to a Deputy Collector, that the Deputy Collector was not entitled to put the witnesses produced by the applicant on their oaths, and consequently, in reference to the statements of such witnesses, no charge under s. 181 or s. 193 of the Penal Code was sustainable. In prosecutions for giving false evidence under s. 193 of the Penal Code, the case of each person accused should be separately inquired into, and, if committed for trial, separately tried. It is wholly erroneous to include them in one joint charge. It is not of itself sufficient to warrant a conviction for giving false evidence that an accused person has made one statement on oath at one time, and a directly contradictory one at another. The charge must not only allege which of such statements is false, but the prosecutor must be prepared with confirmatory evidence independent of the other contradictory statement to establish the falsity of that which is impeached as untrue. R. v. Jackson (Lewis C. C. 6, 270), Reg. v. Wheatland (8 C. and P. 238), and Rex v. Harris (5 B and Ald 926) referred to. S. 455 of Act X. of 1872 (Criminal Procedure Code) is no authority for framing against a person accused of giving false evidence, who has made one statement on oath on one occasion, and a directly contradictory one on oath on another occasion, a charge in the "alternative," that word, as used in that section, meaning that, where the facts which can be proved make it doubtful what particular description of offence an accused person has committed, the charges may be so varied or alternated as to guard against his escaping conviction through technical difficulties. Held, therefore, where three persons were committed for trial jointly, charged with "having on or about the 26th September 1881, or the 18th October 1881, being legally bound upon oath to state the truth, knowingly on those days, regarding the same subject, made contradictory statements upon oath," and thereby committed an offence punishable under s. 193 of the Penal Code, and such persons were jointly tried on such charge, that such charge was bad for being single and joint against the three accused persons, instead of several and specific in regard to each of them; that it was further bad, because it did not distinctly and in terms allege which of the statements was false; that, assuming a committal upon so faulty a charge should be allowed to stand, the Court of Session should have prepared a fresh charge against each of the accused persons, specifically setting forth the statement alleged to be false, and should then have proceeded to try each of them separately; and that, there being no evidence that either of the statements made by two of such persons was false, except that it was contradicted by the other, the charge against such persons was not sustainable, there being no sufficient evidence that either of the statements was false.—EMPRESS v. NIAZ ALI, I. L. R., 5 All. 17. [Stuart, C.J., and Straight, J. July 24, 1882.]

A MAN died leaving some money due to him in the hands of the telegraph authorities. P. wrote a letter to those authorities claiming the money as the sole heir of the deceased. This letter was sent to the District Judge for verification and orders. P supported his claim before the Judge by the evidence on oath of C. C's evidence being, in the opinion of the District Judge, false, the District Judge, in his capacity as Sessions Judge, tried him for giving false evidence, and convicted him of that offence. Held that, as the reference to the District Judge by the telegraph authorities of P's letter for verification, and the subsequent action in regard thereto, did not constitute a "judicial proceeding," and as the District Judge had not any authority to administer an oath to C, the conviction was illegal. Held also that the District Judge had no jurisdiction, under s. 477 of the Criminal Procedure Code, to try C.—EMPRESS v. CHIAT RAM, I. L. R., 6 All. 103. [Straight, J. Oct. 27, 1883.]

AT a trial on a charge of murder, one of the witnesses for the prosecution was a girl about ten years old. The Sessions Judge allowed her to be examined without administering any oath or affirmation, as it was found that she did not understand the nature of either. The prisoner's counsel objected to the admissibility of her statements, but the objection was overruled, and the prisoner was convicted of murder, and sentenced to death. Held per Jardine, J., that the girl's evidence was admissible. The "omission" referred to in s. 13 of the Indian Oaths Act (X. of 1873) includes any kind of omission, and is not restricted to accidental or negligent omissions. Queen v. Sewa Bhogta (14 B. L. R. 294; s.c., 23 W. R., Cr., 12) approved, and Queen-Empress v. Maru (I. L. R., 10 All. 207) dissented from.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SHAVA, I. L. R., 16 Bom. 359. [Jardine and Parsons, JJ. Dec. 21, 1891.]

A CHILD, aged about six years, was called as a witness in a Sessions Court. The Judge satisfied himself of his intellectual capacity to give evidence, but intentionally omitted to administer an affirmation on the ground that he was of too tender years to render any attempt to bind his conscience expedient or practically operative. The Judge did not examine the child for the purpose of eliciting whether he knew it was wrong not to tell the truth, or whether he knew the difference between right and wrong, but he told him to tell the truth, and permitted him to be examined as a witness. Held that the child should have been affirmed. Quære.—Whether the omission to affirm the child having been intentional on the part of the Judge, the case came within the provisions of the Oaths Act, s. 13?—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. VIRAPERUMAL, I. L. R., 16 Mad. 105. [Collins, C.J., and Parker, J. Oct. 17, Nov 18, and Dec. 5, 1892.]

A MAGISTRATE, acting under the Criminal Procedure Code, s. 164, has power to administer an oath, and a charge of perjury can be framed with regard to statements made before him on oath when he is so acting.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. ALAGU KONE, I. L. R., 16 Mad. 421. [Collins, C.J., and Parker, J. Sep. 21, Oct. 5, 1892.]

S. 6 of the Oaths Act (X. of 1873) imperatively requires that no person shall testify as a witness except on oath or affirmation, and, notwithstanding s. 13 of the same Act, the evidence of a child of eight or nine years of age is inadmissible if it has been advisedly recorded without any oath or affirmation. The Queen v. Sewa Bhogta (14 B. L. R. 294) dissented from. The nature of judicial oaths and affirmations and the history of Indian legislation on the subject discussed. — QUEEN-EMPRESS v. MARU, I. L. R., 10 All. 207. [Mahmood, J. Jan. 16, 1888.]

THE competency of a person to testify as a witness is a condition precedent to the administration to him of an oath or affirmation, and is a question distinct from that of his credibility when he has been sworn or affirmed. In determining the question of competency, the Court, under s. 118 of the Evidence Act, has not to enter into inquiries as to the witness's religious belief, or as to his knowledge of the consequences of falsehood in this world or the next. It has to ascertain, in the best way it can, whether, from the extent of his intellectual capacity and understanding, he is able to give a rational account of what he has seen or heard or done on a particular occasion. If a person of tender years or of very advanced age can satisfy these requirements, his competency as a witness is established. Having regard to the language of the Oaths Act (X. of 1873), a Court has no option, when once it has elected to take the statements of a person as evidence, but to administer to such person either an oath or affirmation as the case may require. Queen-Empress v. Maru (I. L. R., 10 All. 207) referred to. In a trial for murder before the Court of Session, one of the witnesses was a boy of twelve years of age, and in answer to questions put by the Sessions Judge, he said that he worshipped Debi, and understood the difference between truth and falsehood, that he did not know what would be the consequences here or hereafter of telling lies, but that he would tell the truth. The Sessions Judge proceeded to record the boy's statement, but without administering to him any oath or affirmation. Held that there was nothing in the law to sanction this procedure on the part of the Judge. The High Court required the attendance of the boy and of the accused, and, having satisfied itself of the competency of the former to depose as a witness, examined him as to his account of what had occurred.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. LALA SAHAI, I. L. R., 11 All. 183. [Straight and Tyrrell, JJ. Oct 24, 1888.]

THE provisions of ss. 8-11 of the Oaths Act (X. of 1873) do not apply to criminal proceedings. The expression "party to a judicial proceeding" in s. 8 of the Act does not include either the complainant or the accused in a criminal case. In the course of a trial on a charge of assault, the complainant's pleader agreed to be bound by the evidence on oath of a material witness, provided he swore on the Gita (a sacred book of the Hindus). The witness took the required oath, and stated that there was no assault, but merely a taking hold of the hand. The Magistrate did not believe this witness, and proceeded with the trial. He convicted the accused on the other evidence in the case, and sentenced him to a fine of Rs. 25. Held that the Magistrate was not bound to decide the case on the evidence of the witness who swore the special oath.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. MURARJI GOKULDAS, I. L. R., 13 Bom. 389. [Scott and Parsons, JJ. Dec. 20, 1888.]

(d) where, in the case of an offence under clause (f) of the same section, the offender has in his possession any opium other than the opium in respect of which the offence has been committed, the whole of such other opium,

12. When the offender is convicted, or when the person charged with an offence in respect of any opium is acquitted, but the Magistrate decides that the opium is liable to confiscation, such confiscation may be ordered by the Magistrate.

Whenever confiscation is authorized by this Act, the officer ordering it may give the owner of the thing liable to be confiscated an option to pay, in lieu of confiscation, such fine as the officer thinks fit.

When an offence against this Act has been committed, but the offender is not known or cannot be found, or when opium not in the possession of any person cannot be satisfactorily accounted for, the case shall be enquired into and determined by the Collector of the District or Deputy Commissioner, or by any other officer authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, either personally or in right of his office, who may order such confiscation: Provided that no such order shall be made until the expiration of one month from the date of seizing the things intended to be confiscated, or without hearing the persons (if any) claiming any right thereto, and the evidence (if any) which they produce in support of their claims.

Procedure in case of illegal poppy-cultivation.

22. In the case of alleged illegal cultivation of the poppy, the crop shall not be removed, but shall, pending the disposal of the case, be attached by an officer superior in rank to a peon or constable, who may, in right of his office, be authorized by the Local Government in this behalf; and such officer shall require the cultivator to give bail in a reasonable amount (to be fixed by such officer) for his appearance before the Magistrate by whom the case is to be disposed of, and such cultivator shall not be arrested unless within a reasonable time he fails to give such bail:

Provided that, wherever Act No. XIII. of 1857 (An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to the cultivation of the Poppy and the manufacture of Opium in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), or any part thereof, is in force, nothing in this section shall apply to such cultivation.

The decision of the late Sadr Faujdari Adalat reported in Vol. III. of Morris's S F.A. Reports, p 673, overruled.—REG. v VAKHATCHAND, 1 Bom. H. C. R. 50. [Newton, Westropp, and Erskine, JJ. Sep. 30, 1863.]

A CONVICTION and sentence by a Magistrate, F. P., under Reg XXI of 1827, s. 10, cl. 4, annulled for want of jurisdiction; the "Zila" (i.e., District) Magistrate only being empowered by the Regulation to enforce the penalty.—REG. v GANIA BIN BABPU, 3 Bom. H. C. R. 50. [Couch, C.J., and Warden, J. Nov. 1, 1866.]

A CONVICTION and sentence by a Full-power Magistrate for breach of the rules for the retail sale of opium, under Reg. XXI.

* See the Revenue Recovery Act (I. of 1890).

† The words "Deputy Commissioner" have been substituted for the words "Deputy Collector" by the Repealing and Amending Act (XII. of 1891), Sch. II.

of 1827, s. 10, annulled for want of jurisdiction, as "the Zila Magistrate" alone was empowered to enforce the penalty.—REG. v. SADU VALAD PAVADI, 3 Bom. H. C. R. 39. [Couch, C.J., and Newton and Warden, JJ. Dec. 5, 1866.]

UNDER s. 43, Act XXI. of 1856, only persons holding licenses, and not their servants, are subject to the penalty specified in the section.—QUEEN v. RAM KISHEN, 8 W. R. 4. [Jackson and Hobhouse, JJ. June 3, 1867.]

WHERE several persons knowingly harbour, keep, or conceal a parcel of smuggled opium, one penalty of double the value of such opium, and of double the amount of duty leviable upon it only, is recoverable under Reg. XXI. of 1827, s. 4. Reg. v. Vakhatchand (1 Bom. H. C. R. 50) overruled. Reg. v. Rajgur Veneegur (3 Morris's Faujdari Rep. 673) approved.—REG. v. SHOWDAR GHENAR, 7 Bom H. C. R. 39. [Couch, C.J., and Warden, Westropp, Gibbs, and Melvill, JJ. June 13, 1870.]

THE offence of possessing above a quarter of a Surat ser of opium not shown to have been legally obtained is exclusively cognizable by District Magistrates. Reg. v. Narayan valad Natha and others (Criminal Reference No. 209 of 1869) overruled.—REG. v. HIRA JIVA, 7 Bom. H. C. R. 59. [Gibbs and Melvill, JJ. July 14, 1870.]

THE offence of unlawfully being in possession of smuggled opium is an offence exclusively cognizable by a Magistrate of a district or of a division of a district as representing the Zila Magistrate referred to in Reg. XXI. of 1827, s. 7. No other Magistrate or Court has now jurisdiction to hold a preliminary inquiry into, or to try a person accused of, such an offence. Reg. v. Hira Jiva (7 Bom. H. C. R., Cr. Ca., 59) approved, and the Court's reply, No. 1231 of the 19th August 1867, to the Khandesh Sessions Judge's reference No. 702 of 1867, dissented from.—REG. v. LAKHU VALAD SAKRU, 8 Bom. H. C. R. 118. [Gibbs and West, JJ. Aug. 29, 1871.]

THE distribution of a penalty adjudged by a Magistrate under s. 26, Act XIII. of 1857, is no part of his judgment, and therefore not a matter over which the High Court could exercise control under s. 404 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Quære.—Whether a person who does not come forward in person as an informer, and take the responsibilities together with the profits of his information, is entitled to any part of the penalties recovered.—QUEEN v. RAMDYAL SINGH, 16 W. R. 55; 8 B. L. R. Ap. 7. [Ainslie and Paul, JJ. Oct. 9, 1871.]

ACCORDING to s. 38, Act XXI. of 1856, no conviction can be had under s. 58 against a person whose license has not been recalled.—REFERENCE IN THE CASE OF RAMDASS, 16 W. R. 59. [Jackson and Glover, JJ. Nov. 23, 1871.]

ALTHOUGH the effect of s. 21 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is to give exclusive original jurisdiction to the Magistrate of the district in the trial of cases under s. 7 of Reg. XXI. of 1827 for abetting the smuggling of opium, that section (21) does not exclude the appellate jurisdiction vested in the Court of Session by s. 409 of the Code.—REG. v. SADU DADABHAI, 9 Bom. H. C. R. 166. [Gibbs and Melvill, JJ. Feb. 29, 1872.]

THE District Magistrate (whose Court is the proper tribunal for the trial of an offence relating to the smuggling of opium) has, under s. 21 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, power to inflict any fine provided by Reg. XXI. of 1827 for such offence, even though the fine may exceed Rs. 1,000. The arrest of a person accused of the above offence without a warrant is generally illegal, except under the circumstances specified in s. 108 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.—REG. v. NARAYAN GANGARAM, 9 Bom. H. C. R 343. [Lloyd and Kemball, JJ. July 11, 1872.]

WHERE a person sells liquor in contravention of, and under colour of a license which stands, not in his own name, but in that of the person for whom he is the recognized agent, he cannot be allowed to evade the provisions of s. 43 of Act XXI. of 1856 by setting up that it is not a license to himself.—ISHUR CHUNDER SHAHA, PETITIONER, 19 W. R. 34. [Couch, C.J., and Glover, J. Feb. 18, 1873.]

WHERE opium was found in the possession of a person who was a servant of the accused, and who alleged that he obtained it from the wife of the accused, and that the wife had purchased it from an opium-cultivator, it was held that the accused could not be convicted under s. 53 of Act XXI. of 1856, as it had not been shown that the purchase by his wife was authorized by the accused, and therefore her possession of the opium or that of the servant could not be considered the possession of the accused.—QUEEN v. GUNESH MANA, 20 W. R. 54. [Couch, C.J., and Glover, J. July 26, 1873.]

ACT XXI. of 1856 (the Opium Act) has not been repealed, so far as it relates to the Lower Provinces of Bengal, by Act X. of 1871.—QUEEN v. KHETTER NATH SHAHA, 22 W. R. 31. [Jackson and McDonell, JJ. June 23, 1874.]

RULINGS UNDER THE OPIUM ACT—contd. 1878. Act 1.

ON a conviction, under Act XXI. of 1856, of having in possession opium not supplied from the Government stores, the Magistrate tried the case summarily under s. 222, Code of Criminal Procedure, and passed a sentence of fine, or imprisonment, and confiscation of the opium. Held that the case could not be tried summarily, the additional sentence of confiscation not coming under s. 148, Code of Criminal Procedure.—QUEEN v. JODOONATH SHAHA, 23 W. R. 33. [Glover and Mitter, JJ. Feb. 6, 1875.]

WHERE a sale of an excess quantity of ganja took place, and the man effecting the sale pleaded that he was only a servant, while the owner contended that he did not conduct the shop, and gave no authority to his servant to sell ganja in excess of his license, held that the owner of the shop was responsible for the offence committed, and liable to the fine which had been imposed on him. —QUEEN v. SRISTIDHUR SHAHA, 25 W. R. 42. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. May 3, 1876.]

CONTRARY to the conditions of his master's opium-license, the servant sold a preparation of opium between sunset and sunrise. The master was not present, and there was no evidence to show that he had directly or otherwise authorized the illegal sale. Held that the master was not liable to a penalty under s. 9 of Act I. of 1878.—IN THE MATTER OF BHOOBUN CHUNDER SHAW, 11 C. L. R. 464 [Maclean and O'Kinealy, JJ. Nov. 24, 1882.]

A, WHO held a certificate under Act VII. of 1878 (the Excise Act) from the Deputy Commissioner of Police that he was entitled to a license from the Collector to sell muddut upon the conditions set forth therein, obtained such a license from the Collector under Act I. of 1878 (the Opium Act) upon the conditions mentioned. No license was granted by the Deputy Commissioner of Police, it not being usual for licenses to be granted by the Police, where a license had been issued by the Collector upon a certificate from the Deputy Commissioner. A was charged, under s. 40 of Act IV. of 1866 as amended by Act II. (B.C.) of 1876 with a breach of the conditions, not of the license, but of the certificate, the act complained of having been committed by A's servant. Held that the sale of muddut is regulated by Act I. of 1878, and therefore no license from the Commissioner of Police for the sale of muddut was requisite under ss. 36 and 37 of Act IV. of 1866. Held, further, that s. 39 of Act IV. of 1866 applied to the case, and that, under that section, a license from the Deputy Commissioner of Police was necessary for the sale of muddut, and accordingly that A, although he had obtained a certificate from the Deputy Commissioner of Police, entitling him to a license under Act I. of 1878, was liable to punishment by reason of his not having, under s. 39 of Act IV. of 1866, also obtained a certificate from the Deputy Commissioner. See In re Bhoobun Chunder Shaw (11 C. L. R. 464).—IN THE MATTER OF R. DAVIS v. KOYLAS CHUNDER GHOSE, 13 C. L. R. 336. [Prinsep and O'Kinealy, JJ. Sep. 7, 1883.]

ONE having a license for the possession of opium as a medical practitioner limited to eight pollums (one seer) of opium, sent his servant to buy from a licensed dealer at Sholavaram, and bring to Madras, four pollums (half seer) of opium. He was convicted of the offence of transporting opium without a license Held the conviction was right.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v RAMANUJAM, I. L. R., 13 Mad. 191. [Collins, C.J., and Handley, J. Dec. 13, 1889.]

A MAGISTRATE in charge of the excise and opium administration of a district is not "personally interested" in the observance of the provisions of Act I. of 1878. He is, therefore, not precluded from exercising jurisdiction in respect of offences against the above-mentioned Act.—IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF GANESHI, I. L. R., 15 All. 192. [Edge, C.J., and Tyrrell, Knox, Blair, Burkitt, and Aikman, JJ. Mar. 10, 1893.]

HELD that, inasmuch as a conviction of an offence punishable under Act I. of 1878 must be by a Magistrate, a Magistrate taking cognizance of such an offence has no power to commit to the Court of Session. Indrobeer Thaba (1 W. R. Cr. R. 5) and Reg. v. Donoghue (5 Mad. H. C. R. 277) referred to.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SCHADE, I. L. R., 19 All. 465. [Edge, C.J., and Blair, J. May 7, 1897.]

A PERSON who, under a license granted to him, may sell opium by retail in accordance with the conditions specified in his license, does not, by keeping an incorrect or false account, regarding the sale of opium, of a shop of which he is a licensed vendor of opium, make himself liable for any breach of any of those conditions to a penalty under s. 9 of the Opium Act, unless there is any specific rule, which is not shewn to exist in this case, declaring that any such breach would render him liable; but his license may be cancelled.—UMESH CHANDRA GHOSH v. QUEEN-EMPRESS, 3 C. W. N. 365. [Prinsep and Stanley, JJ. Mar. 8, 1899.]

S. 5 of the Opium Act (I. of 1878) declares that the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, may make rules consistent with the Act regulating the sale of opium. Under this section, rules were issued by the Government of Bengal with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council on the 21st February 1898, rule 15 (1) of which declares that a person to whom a license has been granted may sell opium by retail in accordance with the conditions specified in the license. The conditions of the license for retail sale of opium are contained in Form No. 1 made under rule 15. Under article 13 of this form, the holder of the license is to keep a daily correct account showing the quantity of opium received and sold, and other details. Article 18 sets out that on infringement of any of the conditions contained in the form or imposed by the Opium Act the license may be cancelled. The petitioner, a licensed vendor of opium, was convicted of having kept incorrect accounts in contravention of the rules made under s. 5 of the Opium Act, and having thereby committed an offence punishable under s. 9 of that Act. He was sentenced to pay a fine of Rs. 200, and in default of payment to undergo rigorous imprisonment for four months. Held that the conviction and sentence must be set aside, there being nothing in any of the rules made under s. 5 of the Act which would make the preparation of an incorrect account punishable under s. 9.—UMESH CHUNDER GHOSE v. QUEEN-EMPRESS, I. L. R., 26 Cal. 571. [Prinsep and Stanley, JJ. March 8, 1899.]

1. * No European or American shall be liable to be sentenced, or ordered, by any Court within the territories* under the Government of * India * to be transported.

Terms of penal servitude instead of the present terms of transportation.

2. Any person who, but for the passing of this Act, would, by any law now in force, or which may hereafter be in force in any part of the said territories, be liable to be sentenced or ordered, by any such Court, to be transported, shall, if a European or American, be liable to be sentenced or ordered to be kept in penal servitude for such term as hereinafter mentioned.

The terms of penal servitude to be awarded by any sentence or order, instead of the term of transportation to which any such offender would, but for the passing of this Act, be liable, shall be as follows (that is to say):—

Instead of transportation for seven years, or for a term not exceeding seven years, penal servitude for the term of four years.

Instead of any term of transportation exceeding seven years, and not exceeding ten years, penal servitude for any term not less than four and not exceeding six years.

(1) All moneys payable under sections 15 and 15A shall be recoverable by the officer appointed under section 15, sub-section (4), or the Magistrate of the 24-Parganas, as the case may be, under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure for the time being in force in relation to the issue and execution of warrants for the levy of fines, or by suit in any competent Court.

(2) All moneys paid or recovered under section 15 shall be applied to the maintenance of the police-force under such orders as the Local Government shall pass.

(3) All moneys paid or recovered under section 15A shall be paid, by the officer appointed under section 15, sub-section (4), or the Magistrate of the 24-Parganas, as the case may be, to the persons to whom, and in the proportions in which, the same are payable under the said section 15A.

Power to make rules.

46. (2) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act—

(a) to regulate the procedure to be followed by the officer appointed under section 15, sub-section (4), the Magistrate, and police-officers in the discharge of any duty imposed upon them by or under this Act;

(b) to prescribe the time, manner, and conditions within and under which claims for compensation under section 15A are to be made, the particulars to be stated in such claims, the manner in which the same are to be verified, and the proceedings (including local enquiries, if necessary) which are to be taken consequent thereon; and,

(c) generally, for giving effect to the provisions of this Act.

(3) All rules made under this Act may, from time to time, be amended, added to, or cancelled by the Local Government.

1888. Act 3.

(2) With respect to such a district and the police-force enrolled therefor, the functions of the Local Government under Act V. of 1861, the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882,* and any other enactment for the time being in force relating to police, shall, subject to any orders which the Governor-General in Council may make in this behalf, be discharged by the Governor-General in Council, or by such Local Government or other authority as the Governor-General in Council may appoint,† and the functions of the Inspector-General of Police, Deputy Inspectors-General, Assistant Inspectors-General, District Superintendents of Police, and Assistant District Superintendents under Act V. of 1861, and any other enactment for the time being in force, shall, subject as aforesaid, be discharged by such officer or officers as may be appointed by the authority ordinarily discharging under this sub-section the functions of the Local Government with respect to the district and force.

(3) Subject to any orders which the Governor-General in Council may make in this behalf, members of a police-force enrolled for service in a general police-district created under sub-section (1) shall have, within every part of any presidency, province, or place, of which any part is included in the district, the powers, duties, privileges, and liabilities, which, as police-officers appointed under Act V. of 1861, they have within the district.

(4) Any member of such a force whom the authority ordinarily discharging with respect thereto the functions of the Local Government under sub-section (2) has generally or specially empowered to act under this sub-section may, subject to any orders which the Governor-General in Council may make in this behalf, exercise in any part of the local area in which he has the powers of a police-officer under sub-section (3) any of the powers which an officer in charge of a police-station has in that part, and, when so exercising any such power, shall, subject as aforesaid, be deemed to be an officer in charge of a police-station discharging the functions of such an officer within the limits of his station.

(5) Subject to any orders which the Governor-General in Council may make in this behalf, a part of a presidency, province, or place included in a general police-district under sub-section (1), shall not, by reason of being included therein, cease, for the purposes of any enactment relating to police, to be part of the presidency, province, or place of which it forms part.

(6) For the purposes of this section, and subject to the provisions thereof, Act V. of 1861 shall, notwithstanding anything in section 46 of that Act, be deemed to take effect throughout the whole of British India.

8. Notwithstanding anything in any of the Acts mentioned or referred to in the last foregoing section, but subject to any orders which the Governor-General in Council may make in this behalf, a member of the police-establishment of any presidency, province, or place may discharge the functions of a police officer in any part of British India beyond the limits of the presidency, province, or place, and shall, while so discharging such functions, be deemed to be a member of the police-establishment of that part, and be vested with the powers, functions, and privileges, and be subject to the liabilities of a police-officer belonging to that establishment

* See now the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V. of 1898).

† For notification issued under these powers, see Gazette of India, 1892, 1896, and 1898, Pt. I., pp. 44, 374, and 130, respectively.

A MAGISTRATE only, and not a Sessions Judge, has power to try cases under s. 29, Act V. of 1861. S. 152 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act XXV. of 1861) does not apply to cases in which there has not been a continuous detention of 24 hours.—INDROBEER THABA, 1 W. R. 5. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Aug. 15, 1864.]

A DEPUTY MAGISTRATE, exercising the full powers of a Magistrate, has jurisdiction, under s. 29, Act V. of 1861, to fine police-officers for violation of duty. — REFERENCE UNDER S. 434 OF THE CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE (ACT XXV. OF 1861), 4 W. R 2. [Kemp and Seton-Karr, JJ. Sep 4, 1865.]

CONVICTIONS under the Police Act (V. of 1861) are appealable like other convictions. Where the appellants are convicted by an officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate, and sentenced to imprisonment exceeding the limit prescribed by s. 411 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act XXV. of 1861), the appeal lies to the Sessions Court.—THAKOOR DASS, 5 W. R. 22. [Trevor, Jackson, and Glover, JJ. Jan. 31, 1866.]

A POLICE-OFFICER (chief constable), being authorized by law to depute his subordinate to proceed to the place where crime is reported to have been committed, cannot be supposed to have contravened the law by not proceeding to the spot himself, and therefore the conviction of the prisoner on the charge of wilful violation of duty was illegal.—GOVERNMENT v. KARAMUT KHAN, 1 Agra H. C. R. 1. [Roberts and Turner, JJ. July 17, 1866.]

WHERE an accused was charged before the Sessions Judge under both s. 409, Penal Code, and under the special law, s. 29, Act V. of 1861, and was acquitted under the former section, it was held that the Sessions Judge could not convict under the latter law, as the Magistrate alone has jurisdiction to convict under that law. — BHOOBUN SINGH, 9 W. R. 36. [Loch and Hobhouse, JJ. March 23, 1868.]

PLACING tambans in a public thoroughfare is an offence under s. 34 of Act V. of 1861. But a Sub-Magistrate is not competent of his own motion to institute the prosecution. — QUEEN v. AMEER, 2 N.-W. P. 5. [Turner and Spankie, JJ. Jan. 8 1870.]

WHERE a police-officer duly appointed under Act V. of 1861 was engaged in the discharge of his duty as such police-officer at a time when an unlawful assembly took place, it was held that he was competent to apprehend any of the members of such unlawful assembly; and a person who rescued the party apprehended was convicted of rescuing from lawful custody within the meaning of s. 225 of the Penal Code.—QUEEN v. ASSAM SHURREEF, 13 W. R. 75. [Phear and Mitter, JJ. May 17, 1870.]

A POLICE-OFFICER negligently or improperly submitting an incorrect report of a local investigation may be punished under s. 29 of Act V. of 1861 in cases where the proof is insufficient to bring the case under s. 218 of the Penal Code.—BORODA KANT MOOKHOPADHYA, 15 W. R. 17. [Norman, Offg. C.J., and Loch, J. Feb. 11, 1871.]

IN a prosecution under the Police Act (V. of 1861) the Magistrate is bound to take into consideration and determine a prisoner's plea that he is a European British subject. S. 29 of Act V. of 1861 does not give to the Magistrate jurisdiction over European British subjects. — QUEEN v. HEARN, 3 N.-W. P. 128. [Turner, J. June 3, 1871.]

A POLICE OFFICER under suspension cannot be convicted, under s. 29, Act V. of 1861, of withdrawing from the duties of his office without permission.— QUEEN v. DINONATH GANGOOLY, 17 W. R. 12; 8 B. L. R. Ap. 58. [Kemp and Jackson, JJ. Feb. 10, 1872.]

BEFORE a police-officer can be convicted of an offence under s. 29, Act V. of 1861, it must be found that he is guilty, not of mere neglect, but of deliberate and intentional violation of duty. — RADHOO SINGH, 17 W. R. 34: 8 B. L. R. Ap. 60. [Bayley and Markby, JJ. March 2, 1872.]

WHERE a Magistrate appointed special constables under s. 17, Act V. of 1861, on the ground that a murder had occurred, and he was apprehensive that frequent murders would take place, it was held that his orders were illegal, that section referring to cases of unlawful assembly, riot, or disturbance of peace only; but that, as the order was one of a purely executive nature, the High Court had no power to interfere with it. The Magistrate should rather have proceeded under s. 15 of the Act, and applied for sanction to an increase in the police-force.—ROHOMAN SIRKAR, 18 W. R. 67; 10 B. L. R. Ap. 4. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Nov. 29, 1872.]

MERE rashness or negligence on the part of a police-officer before ordering the search of a man's house for stolen property does not constitute an offence amounting to violation of duty under s. 29, Act V. of 1861. The violation there intended must be wilful intentional violation of some clear duty or other.—QUEEN v. BOLAKI LALL, 19 W. R. 7. [Jackson and Markby, JJ. Dec. 17, 1872.]

UNDER Act V. of 1861, a police-officer is bound to communicate information to his superior officer regarding the commission of a riot affecting the public peace, and to make an entry thereof in the diary which he is required by s. 44 of that Act to keep, and the omission to give such information brings him within the purview of s. 177 of the Penal Code.—SYED FUTTEH MAHOMED, 21 W. R. 30. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Jan. 17, 1874.]

S. 42 of Act V. of 1861 (which refers to all actions and prosecutions, by persons deeming themselves aggrieved, against any person, which may be lawfully brought for anything done, or intended to be done, under the provisions of the Act, or under the general police-powers given by it) has no bearing on, or connection with, s. 29 of the Act, by which police officers are punishable for breaches of discipline and disobedience of orders committed by them as against their immediate superiors, and the rules and regulations of the body in which they have been enrolled.—QUEEN v. HAZAR MIR KHAN, 7 N.-W. P. 237. [Spankie, J. April 13, 1875.]

ACTS or omissions punishable under Act V. of 1861, s. 29, come within the category of "offences punishable under any law other than the Penal Code" (Code of Criminal Procedure, s. 8), and those offences likewise fall within the terms of s. 148 of the same Code —QUEEN v. GOLAM ARABEE, 25 W. R. 20. [Jackson and McDonell, JJ. Feb 16, 1876.]

WHERE a police-officer, who had been called on to answer to a charge of bribery, which was not sustained by the evidence, was found guilty of violation of duty under s. 29, Act V. of 1861, of which offence the trying officer found sufficient evidence in the course of the trial, held that an accused person called on to answer to a specific charge cannot be convicted on an entirely different charge without previous notice of the offence imputed to him, and opportunity being afforded him of meeting the accusation under s. 23, Act V. of 1861. A police-officer is not bound to arrest a person against whom no proceedings have been directed if he believes that he has not sufficient grounds for apprehending him.—GREESH CHUNDER NUNDEE, 26 W. R. 8 [Morris and McDonell, JJ. Sep 7, 1876.]

THE failure of a police-constable to resume his duty on the expiration of his leave does not constitute an offence under s. 29, Act V. of 1861.—IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF JANOKINATH GUPTA: EMPRESS v JANOKINATH GUPTA, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 625; 8 C. L. R. 56. [Mitter and Maclean, JJ. Jan. 27, 1881.] [S. 29 has since been amended.]

S. 29 of Act V. of 1861 is not applicable to persons who are not police-officers. Where a Magistrate, acting merely on certain information contained in a letter addressed to him, convicted a person for obstruction and nuisance, the High Court set aside the conviction on the ground that there was no complaint and no evidence.—RAM KUMAR, 10 C. L. R. 521. [McDonell and Field, JJ. Mar. 31, 1881.]

A POLICE-OFFICER obtained leave of absence for one month, a substitute being appointed and overstayed his leave twenty-nine days. Held that such absence without leave did not amount to "withdrawal from the duties of his office without permission" within the meaning of s. 29 of Act V. of 1861.—EMPRESS v. SALIG RAM, I. L. R., 6 All. 495. [Duthoit, J. June 27, 1884.] [S. 29 has since been amended.]

A DISTRICT Superintendent of Police directed his constables to cut down the jungle in the vicinity of their lines and, on their refusal to comply, ordered them extra drill every day. One of such constables, not turning out to such extra drill, was thereupon prosecuted, and convicted of neglect of duty under s. 29, Act V. of 1861. Held that s. 29 provided for no such offence, and that any neglect of duty, short of a violation of duty, does not amount to an offence under that section. Held, further, that the omission to attend such extra drill did not amount to an offence under that section, as the words "lawful order" used in the section mean an order which the authority mentioned therein is competent to make, and it did not appear that a District Superintendent of Police was competent to order his constables to cut down the jungle in the vicinity of their lines, and, on their refusal to do so, to order them extra drill —BHOLA NATH DAS, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 427. [Mitter and Agnew, JJ. Dec. 4 1885.]

A POLICE-CONSTABLE was suspended, and ordered to remain in the lines during suspension. Despite the order, he absented himself therefrom without leave. He was convicted under s. 29 of Act V. of 1861. Held that s. 29 of Act V of 1861 contemplates that the person to be charged with an offence under it must have been, at the time of his doing the act in respect of which the charge is preferred, a police-constable within the meaning of that Act. When a police-officer is suspended, he ceases to be a police officer; the conviction was therefore wrong. Queen v. Dinonath Gangooly (8 B. L. R. Ap. 58) followed.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. DURGA, I. L. R., 10 All. 459. [Straight, J. June 23, 1888.]

THERE is no express power given by Act V. of 1861 to any officer, save the Inspector-General of Police, to make rules; therefore the violation of a general rule, alleged to have been made by a District Superintendent of Police to the effect that constables are to be within the lines at a particular time or at roll-call, is not punishable under s. 29 of the Act. Semble.—The violation of a special order made by a District Superintendent of Police, requiring the presence of an officer or of certain officers within the police-lines, and issued expressly to him or each of them, would come within s. 29 of the Act as being not "a rule or regulation," but a "lawful order," made by a competent authority, and relating to the duties of the officer or officers.—In re ABDUL HOSSEIN, QUEEN-EMPRESS v. ABDUL HOSSEIN, I. L. R., 15 Cal. 194 [Prinsep and Pigot, JJ. Aug. 29, 1887.]

THE operation of s. 560 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is restricted to cases instituted by "complaint" as defined in the Code, or upon information given to a police-officer or a Magistrate, and consequently that section has no application to a case instituted on a police-report, or on information given by a police-officer. Quære.—Whether, under the section, a Magistrate has power to make an order for imprisonment in default of payment of the compensation awarded? A police constable arrested a carter, and charged him before a Magistrate with an offence under s. 34 of Act V. of 1861. The Magistrate acquitted the accused, and directed, under s. 560 of the Code, that the police-constable should pay him Rs. 20 as compensation, or undergo simple imprisonment for a fortnight. Held that, as the section had no application to the case, the order was illegal, being made without jurisdiction. Held, further, that, even if the Magistrate had power under the Code to pass an order for imprisonment in default of payment of compensation awarded under s. 560, it was illegal to pass such an order until some attempt had been made to levy the amount in the manner provided by s. 386 for the levying of a fine.—RAMJERVAN KOORMI v. DURGACHURN SADHUKHAN, I. L. R., 21 Cal. 799. [Beverley and Banerjee, JJ. July 4, 1894.]

RULINGS UNDER THE PRINTING PRESSES AND NEWSPAPERS ACT.

ON the prosecution of the editor of a newspaper for defamation under s. 500 of the Penal Code by publishing a libel in his paper, an attested copy of a declaration made by the editor under s. 5 of Act XXV. of 1867 to the effect that he was the printer and publisher of the newspaper was produced in evidence by the complainant. The editor having been convicted by the Magistrate, the Sessions Court on appeal quashed the conviction, on the ground that there was no evidence that the editor was the writer of the libel, or permitted its publication. Held that, in the absence of proof to the contrary, the declaration was prima-facie proof of publication by the editor. Held also that it would be a sufficient answer to the charge if the editor proved that the libel was published in his absence and without his knowledge, and that he had in good faith entrusted the temporary management of the newspaper during his absence to a competent person.—RAMASAMI v. LOKANADA, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 387 [Collins, C.J., and Muttusami Ayyar J. April 12, 1886.]

A NEWSPAPER was printed and published, bearing the following words: "Printed and published at Cochin for the Malabar Economic Company at the Company's Goshree-Vilasam Press." Held that these words did not satisfy the requirements of Act XXV. of 1867. s. 3.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. HARI SHENOY. I. L. R., 16 Mad. 443. [Muttusami Ayyar, J. Mar 2, July 21, 24, 1893.]

Destruction of suffering animals.

10. When any Magistrate, Commissioner of Police, or District Superintendent of Police has reason to believe that an offence against this Act has been committed in respect of any animal, he may direct the immediate destruction of the animal if, in his opinion, its sufferings are such as to render such a direction proper.

(b) alter the course of any rivers, brooks, streams, or watercourses for the purpose of constructing and maintaining tunnels, bridges, passages, or other works over or under them, and divert or alter as well temporarily as permanently, the course of any rivers, brooks, streams, or watercourses, or any roads, streets or ways, or raise or sink the level thereof, in order the more conveniently to carry them over or under, or by the side of, the railway, as the railway administration thinks proper:

(c) make drains or conduits into, through, or under any lands adjoining the railway for the purpose of conveying water from or to the railway;

(d) erect and construct such houses, warehouses, offices, and other buildings, and such yards, stations, wharves, engines, machinery, apparatus, and other works and conveniences as the railway administration thinks proper;

(e) alter, repair, or discontinue such buildings, works, and conveniences as aforesaid, or any of them, and substitute others in their stead; and

(f) do all other acts necessary for making, maintaining, altering, or repairing, and using the railway.

(2) The exercise of the powers conferred on a railway administration by sub-section (1) shall be subject to the control of the Governor-General in Council.

Alteration of pipes, wires, and drains.

8. A railway administration may, for the purpose of exercising the powers conferred upon it by this Act, alter the position of any pipe for the supply of gas water, or compressed air, or the position of any electric wire, or of any drain not being a main drain:

* The words quoted have been added by the Indian Railways Act (1890) Amendment Act (IX. of 1896), s. 1.

Provided that—

(a) when the railway administration desires to alter the position of any such pipe, wire, or drain, it shall give reasonable notice of its intention to do so, and of the time at which it will begin to do so, to the local authority* or company having control over the pipe, wire, or drain, or, when the pipe, wire, or drain, is not under the control of a local authority or company, to the person under whose control the pipe, wire, or drain is;

(b) a local authority, company, or person receiving notice under proviso (a) may send a person to superintend the work, and the railway administration shall execute the work to the reasonable satisfaction of the person so sent, and shall make arrangements for continuing, during the execution of the work, the supply of gas, water, compressed air, or electricity, or the maintenance of the drainage, as the case may be.

Temporary entry upon land for repairing or preventing accident.

9. (1) The Governor-General in Council may authorize any railway administration, in case of any slip or other accident happening or being apprehended to any cutting, embankment, or other work under the control of the railway administration, to enter upon any lands adjoining its railway for the purpose of repairing or preventing the accident, and to do all such works as may be necessary for the purpose.

(2) In case of necessity, the railway administration may enter upon the lands, and do the works aforesaid, without having obtained the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council but in such a case shall, within seventy-two hours after such entry, make a report to the Governor-General in Council, specifying the nature of the accident or apprehended accident, and of the works necessary to be done, and the power conferred on the railway administration by this sub-section shall cease and determine, if the Governor-General in Council, after considering the report, considers that the exercise of the power is not necessary for the public safety.

Payment of compensation for damage caused by lawful exercise of powers under section 7, 8, or 9.

10. (1) A railway administration shall do as little damage as possible in the exercise of the powers conferred by any of the three last foregoing sections, and compensation shall be paid for any damage caused by the exercise thereof.

(2) A suit shall not lie to recover such compensation, but in case of dispute the amount thereof shall, on application to the Collector, be determined and paid in accordance, so far as may be, "with the provisions of sections 11 to 15, both inclusive, sections 18 to 34, both inclusive, and sections 53 and 54 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894,† and the provisions of sections 51 and 52 of that Act shall apply to the award of compensation."‡

Accommodation works.

11. (1) A railway administration shall make and maintain the following works for the accommodation of the owners and occupiers of lands adjoining the railway, namely:—

‡ In s. 10 the words and figures quoted have been substituted for the words and figures, "with the provisions of sections 11 to 15, both inclusive, of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, and the provisions of sections 57 and 58 of that Act shall apply to the award of compensation," by the Indian Railways Act (1890) Amendment Act (IX. of 1896), s. 2.

(a) such and so many convenient crossings, bridges, arches, culverts, and passages over, under, or by the sides of, or leading to or from, the railway, as may, in the opinion of the Governor-General in Council, be necessary for the purpose of making good any interruptions caused by the railway to the use of the lands through which the railway is made, and

(b) all necessary arches, tunnels, culverts, drains, watercourses, or other passages, over or under, or by the sides of, the railway, of such dimensions as will, in the opinion of the Governor-General in Council, be sufficient at all times to convey water as freely from or to the lands lying near or affected by the railway, as before the making of the railway, or as nearly so as may be.

(2) Subject to the other provisions of this Act, the works specified in clauses (a) and (b) of sub-section (1) shall be made during or immediately after the laying out or formation of the railway over the lands traversed thereby, and in such manner as to cause as little damage or inconvenience as possible to persons interested in the lands or affected by the works.

(3) The foregoing provisions of this section are subject to the following provisos, namely:—

(a) a railway administration shall not be required to make any accommodation works in such a manner as would prevent or obstruct the working or using of the railway, or to make any accommodation works with respect to which the owners and occupiers of the lands have agreed to receive, and have been paid, compensation in consideration of their not requiring the works to be made:

(b) save as hereinafter in this chapter provided, a railway administration shall not, except on the requisition of the Governor-General in Council, be compelled to defray the cost of executing any further or additional accommodation works for the use of the owners or occupiers of the lands after the expiration of ten years from the date on which the railway passing through the lands was first opened for public traffic:

(c) where a railway administration has provided suitable accommodation for the crossing of a road or stream, and the road or stream is afterwards diverted by the act or neglect of the person having the control thereof, the administration shall not be compelled to provide other accommodation for the crossing of the road or stream.

(4) The Governor-General in Council may appoint a time for the commencement of any work to be executed under sub-section (1), and if, for fourteen days next after that time, the railway administration fails to commence the work, or, having commenced it, fails to proceed diligently to execute it in a sufficient manner, the Governor-General in Council may execute it, and recover from the railway administration the cost incurred by him in the execution thereof.

Power for owner, occupier, or local authority to cause additional accommodation works to be made.

12. If an owner or occupier of any land affected by a railway considers the works made under the last foregoing section to be insufficient for the commodious use of the land, or if the Local Government or a local authority desires to construct a public road or other work across, under, or over a railway, he or it, as the case may be, may at any time require the railway administration to make, at his or its expense, such further accommodation works as he or it thinks necessary, and are agreed to by the railway administration, or as, in case of difference of opinion, may be authorized by the Governor-General in Council.

Fences, screens, gates, and bars.

18. The Governor-General in Council may require that, within a time to be specified in the requisition, or within such further time as he may appoint in this behalf,—

(a) boundary-marks or fences be provided or renewed by a railway administration for a railway or any part thereof, and for roads constructed in connection therewith;

(b) any works in the nature of a screen near to, or adjoining the side of, any public road constructed before the making of a railway, be provided or renewed by a railway administration for the purpose of preventing danger to passengers on the road by reason of horses or other animals being frightened by the sight or noise of the rolling-stock moving on the railway;

(c) suitable gates, chains, bars, stiles, or hand-rails be erected or renewed by a railway administration at places where a railway crosses a public road on the level;

(d) persons be employed by a railway administration to open and shut such gates, chains, or bars.

Over and under-bridges.

14. (1) Where a railway administration has constructed a railway across a public road on the level, the Governor-General in Council may at any time, if it appears to him necessary for the public safety, require the railway administration, within such time as he thinks fit, to carry the road either under or over the railway by means of a bridge or arch, with convenient ascents and descents, and other convenient approaches, instead of crossing the road on the level, or to execute such other works as, in the circumstances of the case, may appear to the Governor-General in Council to be best adapted for removing or diminishing the danger arising from the level-crossing.

(2) The Governor-General in Council may require, as a condition of making a requisition under sub-section (1), that the local authority, if any, which maintains the road, shall undertake to pay the whole of the cost to the railway administration of complying with the requisition, or such portion of the cost as the Governor-General in Council thinks just.

Removal of trees dangerous to or obstructing the working of a railway.

15. (1) In either of the following cases, namely:—

(a) where there is danger that a tree standing near a railway may fall on the railway so as to obstruct traffic,

(b) when a tree obstructs the view of any fixed signal, the railway administration may, with the permission of any Magistrate, fell the tree, or deal with it in such other manner as will, in the opinion of the railway administration, avert the danger or remove the obstruction, as the case may be.

(2) In case of emergency, the power mentioned in sub-section (1) may be exercised by a railway administration without the permission of a Magistrate.

(3) Where a tree felled or otherwise dealt with under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) was in existence before the railway was constructed, or the signal was fixed, any Magistrate may, upon the application of the persons interested in the tree, award to those persons such compensation as he thinks reasonable.

(4) Such an award, subject, where made in a presidency-town by any Magistrate other than the Chief Presidency Magistrate, or where made elsewhere by any Magistrate other than the District Magistrate, to revision by the Chief Presidency Magistrate or the District Magistrate, as the case may be, shall be final.

(5) A Civil Court shall not entertain a suit to recover compensation for any tree felled or otherwise dealt with under this section.

OPENING OF RAILWAYS.

Right to use locomotives.

16. (1) A railway administration may, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, use upon a railway locomotive engines or other motive power, and rolling-stock to be drawn or propelled thereby.

(2) But rolling-stock shall not be moved upon a railway by steam or other motive power until such general rules for the railway as may be deemed to be necessary have been made, sanctioned, and published under this Act.

Notice of intended opening of a railway.

17. (1) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), a railway administration shall, one month at least before it intends to open any railway for the public carriage of passengers, give to the Governor-General in Council notice in writing of its intention.

(2) The Governor-General in Council may in any case, if he thinks fit, reduce the period of, or dispense with, the notice mentioned in sub-section (1).

Sanction of the Government a condition precedent to the opening of a railway.

18. A railway shall not be opened for the public carriage of passengers until the Governor-General in Council, or an Inspector empowered by the Governor-General in Council in this behalf, has, by order, sanctioned the opening thereof for that purpose.

Procedure in sanctioning the opening of a railway.

19. (1) The sanction of the Governor-General in Council under the last foregoing section shall not be given until an Inspector has, after inspection of the railway, reported in writing to the Governor-General in Council,—

(a) that he has made a careful inspection of the railway and rolling-stock;

(b) that the moving and fixed dimensions prescribed by the Governor-General in Council have not been infringed;

(c) that the weight of rails, strength of bridges, general structural character of the works, and the size of, and maximum gross load upon, the axles of any rolling-stock, are such as have been prescribed by the Governor-General in Council;

(d) that the railway is sufficiently supplied with rolling-stock;

(e) that general rules for the working of the railway, when opened for the public carriage of passengers, have been made, sanctioned, and published under this Act; and

(f) that, in his opinion, the railway can be opened for the public carriage of passengers without danger to the public using it.

(2) If, in the opinion of the Inspector, the railway cannot be so opened without danger to the public using it, he shall state that opinion together with the grounds therefor to the Governor-General in Council, and the Governor-General in Council may thereupon order the railway administration to postpone the opening of the railway.

(3) An order under the last foregoing sub-section must set forth the requirements to be complied with as a condition precedent to the opening of the railway being sanctioned, and shall direct the postponement of the opening of the railway until those requirements have been complied with, or the Governor-General in Council is otherwise satisfied that the railway can be opened without danger to the public using it.

(4) The sanction given under this section may be either absolute or subject to such conditions as the Governor General in Council thinks necessary for the safety of the public.

(5) When sanction for the opening of a railway is given subject to conditions, and the railway administration fails to fulfil those conditions, the sanction shall be deemed to be void, and the railway shall not be worked or used until the conditions are fulfilled to the satisfaction of the Governor-General in Council.

20. (1) The provisions of sections 17, 18, and 19, with respect to the opening of a railway, shall extend to the opening of the works mentioned in sub-section (2) when those works form part of, or are directly connected with, a railway used for the public carriage of passengers, and have been constructed after the inspection which preceded the first opening of the railway.

Application of the provisions of the three last foregoing sections to material alterations of a railway.

(2) The works referred to in sub-section (1) are additional lines of railway, deviation lines, stations, junctions, and crossings on the level, and any alteration or re-construction materially affecting the structural character of any work to which the provisions of sections 17, 18, and 19, apply, or are extended by this section.

21. When an accident has occurred resulting in a temporary suspension of traffic, and either the original line and works have been rapidly restored to their original standard, or a temporary diversion has been laid for the purpose of restoring communication, the original line and works so restored, or the temporary diversion, as the case may be, may, in the absence of the Inspector, be opened for the public carriage of passengers, subject to the following conditions, namely:—

Exceptional provision.

(a) that the railway servant in charge of the works undertaken by reason of the accident has certified in writing that the opening of the restored line and works, or of the temporary diversion, will not, in his opinion, be attended with danger to the public using the line and works or the diversion ; and (b) that notice by telegraph of the opening of the line and works or the diversion shall be sent, as soon as may be, to the Inspector appointed for the railway.

Power to make rules with respect to the opening of railways.

22. The Governor-General in Council may make rules defining the cases in which, and in those cases the extent to which, the procedure prescribed in sections 17 to 20 (both inclusive) may be dispensed with.

Power to close an opened railway.

23. (1) When, after inspecting any open railway used for the public carriage of passengers or any rolling-stock used thereon, an Inspector is of opinion that the use of the railway or of any specified rolling-stock will be attended with danger to the public using it, he shall state that opinion, together with the grounds therefor, to the Governor-General in Council ; and the Governor-General in Council may thereupon order that the railway be closed for the public carriage of passengers, or that the use of the rolling-stock so specified be discontinued, or that the railway or the rolling-stock so specified be used for the public carriage of passengers on such conditions only as the Governor-General in Council may consider necessary for the safety of the public.

(2) An order under sub-section (1) must set forth the grounds on which it is founded.

Re-opening of a closed railway.

24. (1) When a railway has been closed under the last foregoing section, it shall not be re-opened for the public carriage of passengers until it has been inspected, and its re-opening sanctioned, in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

(2) When the Governor-General in Council has ordered, under the last foregoing section, that the use of any specified rolling-stock be discontinued, that rolling-stock shall not be used until an Inspector has reported that it is fit for use, and the Governor-General in Council has sanctioned its use.

(3) When the Governor-General in Council has imposed under the last foregoing section any conditions with respect to the use of any railway or rolling-stock, those conditions shall be observed until they are withdrawn by the Governor-General in Council.

Delegation of powers under this chapter to Inspectors.

25. (1) The Governor-General in Council may, by general or special order, authorize the discharge of any of his functions under this chapter by an Inspector, and may cancel any sanction or order given by an Inspector discharging any such function, or attach thereto any condition which the Governor-General in Council might have imposed if the sanction or order had been given by himself.

(2) A condition imposed under sub-section (1) shall, for all the purposes of this Act, have the same effect as if it were attached to a sanction or order given by the Governor-General in Council.

CHAPTER V.

RAILWAY COMMISSIONS AND TRAFFIC FACILITIES.

Railway Commissions.

Constitution of Railway Commission.

26. (1) For the purposes of this chapter the Governor-General in Council shall, as occasion may in his opinion require, appoint a commission, styled a Railway Commission (in this Act referred to as the Commissioners), and consisting of one Law Commissioner and two Lay Commissioners.

(2) The Commissioners shall sit at such times and in such places as the Governor-General in Council appoints.

(3) The Law Commissioner shall be such Judge of the High Court having jurisdiction in reference to European British subjects under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882,* in the place where the Commissioners are to sit as, in the case of a High Court established under the Statute 24 and 25 Victoria, chapter 104,† the Chief Justice, or, in the case of the Chief Court of the Punjab, the Senior Judge, or, in the case of the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon the Chief Commissioner of Burma, may, on the request of the Governor-General in Council, assign by writing under his hand.

(4) The Lay Commissioners shall be appointed by the Governor-General in Council, and one at least of them shall be of experience in railway business.

Restriction of jurisdiction of Railway Commission to cases specially referred.

27. The Commissioners shall take cognizance of such cases only as are referred to them by the Governor-General in Council.

Reference of cases to Railway Commission.

28. In any of the following circumstances, namely:—

(a) where complaint is made to the Governor-General in Council of anything done or any omission made by a railway administration in violation or contravention of any provision of this chapter;

(b) where any difference which is under the provisions of any agreement required or authorized to be referred to arbitration arises between railway administrations, and the railway administrations apply to the Governor-General in Council to have it referred to the Commissioners;

(c) where any other difference, being a difference between railway administrations, or one to which a railway administration is a party, arises, and the parties thereto apply to the Governor-General in Council to have it referred to the Commissioners;

the Governor-General in Council may, if he thinks fit, refer the case to the Commissioners for decision.

Constitution of Railway Commission in session.

29. The three Commissioners shall attend at the hearing of any case referred to them for decision under this chapter, and the Law Commissioner shall preside at the hearing.

(3) At the hearing the Commissioners may permit any party to appear before them either by himself or by any legal practitioner entitled to practise in any High Court.

Appeals from orders of Railway Commission.

31. (1) An appeal shall not lie from any order of the Commissioners upon any question of fact on which two of the Commissioners are agreed.

(2) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (1), an appeal shall lie from an order of the Commissioners—

(a) where the Law Commissioner was the Recorder or Additional Recorder of Rangoon, to the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, and

(b) in any other case, to the High Court of which the Law Commissioner was a member.

(3) Such an appeal must be presented within six months from the date of the order appealed from, and shall be heard by a bench of as many Judges, not being fewer than three, as the High Court may by rule prescribe.

(4) In the hearing of the appeal the High Court shall, subject to the other provisions of this chapter, have all the powers which it has as an Appellate Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, and may make any order which the Commissioners could have made.

Operation of orders of Railway Commission.

32. Notwithstanding any appeal to the High Court from an order of the Commissioners, the order shall, unless the Commissioners or the majority of them see fit to suspend it, continue in operation until it is reversed or varied by that Court.

Assessors.

33. (1) The Commissioners, in the exercise of their jurisdiction under this chapter, may from time to time, with the general or special sanction of the Governor-General in Council, call in one or more persons of engineering or other technical knowledge to act as assessors.

(2) There shall be paid to such persons such remuneration as the Governor-General in Council, upon the recommendation of the Commissioners, may direct.

Costs of proceedings under this chapter.

35. The costs of and incidental to any proceedings before the Commissioners or the High Court under this chapter shall be in the discretion of the Commissioners or the High Court, as the case may be, and the payment of costs awarded by the Commissioners may be enforced by the Court, of which the Law Commissioner was a Judge, as if the payment had been ordered by a decree of a High Court.

* For such rules, see Gazette of India, 1892, Pt. I., p. 658.

36. (1) The Court of which the Law Commissioner was a Judge may, if it appears on the application of any person who was a party to the proceedings before the Commissioners, or on appeal before the High Court, or of the representative of any such person, that an injunction made under this chapter by the Commissioners or by a High Court has not been obeyed by the party enjoined, order such party to pay a sum not exceeding one thousand rupees for every day during which the injunction is disobeyed after the date of the order directing such payment.

Execution of order of Railway Commission and High Court.

(2) The payment of such sum may be enforced by the Court which made the order as if that Court had given a decree for the same, and the Court may direct that the whole or any part of the sum shall be paid to the person making the application under sub-section (1), or to the Government.

37. A document purporting to be signed by the Commissioners, or any of them, shall be received in evidence without proof of the signature, and shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to have been so signed, and to have been duly executed or issued by the Commissioners.

Evidence of documents.

38. The Commissioners shall, as soon as may be, after the disposal of each case referred to them, submit to the Governor-General in Council a special report on the case, and the Governor-General in Council shall cause the report to be published in such manner as he thinks fit for the information of persons interested in the subject-matter thereof.

Submission to the Governor-General in Council of special reports by Railway Commission.

39. Except for the purpose of the last foregoing section, a Railway Commission shall be deemed to be dissolved at the close of the last of the sittings of the Commissioners for the decision of the cases referred to them:

Dissolution of Railway Commission.

Provided that, on the application of any person who was a party to the proceedings before the Commissioners, or of the representative of any such person, the Governor-General in Council may, if he thinks fit, in any case in which the order passed by the Commissioners is not open to appeal, re-appoint the Commissioners for the purpose of hearing an application for a review of their decision, and of granting the same, and re-hearing the case if they think that the case should be re-heard.

40. Subject to the foregoing provisions of this chapter, and to any direction of Her Majesty in Council, an order of the Commissioners shall be final, and shall not be questioned in or restrained by any Court.

Finality of orders of Railway Commission subject to the foregoing provisions of this chapter.

41. Except as provided in this Act, no suit shall be instituted or proceeding taken for anything done or any omission made by a railway administration in violation or contravention of any provision of this chapter, or of any order made thereunder by the Commissioners, or by a High Court.

Bar of jurisdiction of ordinary Courts in certain matters cognizable by Railway Commission.

Traffic Facilities.

42. (1) Every railway administration shall, according to its powers, afford all reasonable facilities for the receiving, forwarding, and delivering of traffic upon and from the several railways belonging to or worked by it, and for the return of rolling-stock.

Duty of railway administrations to arrange for receiving and forwarding traffic without unreasonable delay, and without partiality.

(2) A railway administration shall not make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to, or in favour of, any particular person or railway administration, or any particular description of traffic, in any respect whatsoever, or subject any particular person or railway administration, or any particular description of traffic, to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever.

(3) A railway administration having or working railways which form part of a continuous line of railway communication, or having its terminus or station within one line of the terminus or station of another railway administration, shall afford all due and reasonable facilities for receiving and forwarding by one of such railways all the traffic arriving by the other at such terminus or station, without any unreasonable delay, and without any such preference or advantage, or prejudice or disadvantage as aforesaid, and so that no obstruction may be offered to the public desirous of using such railways as a continuous line of communication, and so that all reasonable accommodation may, by means of such railways, be at all times afforded to the public in that behalf.

(4) The facilities to be afforded under this section shall include the due and reasonable receiving, forwarding, and delivering by every railway administration, at the request of any other railway administration, of through traffic to and from the railway of any other railway administration at through rates:

(a) the railway administration requiring the traffic to be forwarded shall give written notice of the proposed through rate to each forwarding railway administration, stating both its amount and its apportionment, and the route by which the traffic is proposed to be forwarded. The proposed through rate for animals or goods may be per truck or per maund;

(b) each forwarding railway administration shall, within the prescribed period after the receipt of such notice by written notice inform the railway administration requiring the traffic to be forwarded whether it agrees to the rate, apportionment, and route, and, if it has any objection, what the grounds of the objection are;

(c) if, at the expiration of the prescribed period, no such objection has been sent by any forwarding railway administration, the rate shall come into operation at the expiration of that period;

(d) if an objection to the rate, apportionment, or route has been sent within the prescribed period, the Governor-General in Council may, if he thinks fit, on the request of any of the railway administrations, refer the case to the Commissioners for their decision;

(e) if the objection is to the granting of the rate or to the route, the Commissioners shall consider whether the granting of the rate is a due and reasonable facility in the interest of the public, and whether, regard being had to the circumstances, the route proposed is a reasonable route, and shall allow or refuse the rate accordingly, or fix such other rate as may seem to the Commissioners to be just and reasonable;

(f) if the objection is only to the apportionment of the rate, and the case has been referred to the Commissioners, the rate shall come into operation at the expiration of the prescribed period, but the decision of the Commissioners as to its apportionment shall be retrospective: in the case of any other objection, the operation of the rate shall be suspended until the Commissioners make their order in the case;

(g) the Commissioners, in apportioning the through rate, shall take into consideration all the circumstances of the case, including any special expense incurred in respect of the construction, maintenance, or working of the route or any part of the route, as well as any special charges which any railway administration is entitled to make in respect thereof;

(h) the Commissioners shall not in any case compel any railway administration to accept lower mileage rates than the mileage rates which the administration may, for the time being, legally be charging for like traffic carried by a like mode of transit on any other line of communication between the same points, being the points of departure and arrival of the through route;

(i) subject to the foregoing provisions of this sub-section, the Commissioners shall have full power to decide that any proposed through rate is due and reasonable, notwithstanding that a less amount may be allotted to any forwarding railway administration out of the through rate than the maximum rate which the railway administration is entitled to charge, and to allow and apportion the through rate accordingly;

(j) the prescribed period mentioned in this sub-section shall be one month or such longer period as the Governor-General in Council may, by general or special order, prescribe.

Undue preference in case of unequal rates for like traffic or services.

43. (1) Whenever it is shown that a railway administration charges one trader or class of traders, or the traders in any local area, lower rates for the same or similar animals or goods, or lower rates for the same or similar services, than it charges to other traders or classes of traders, or to the traders in another local area, the burden of proving that such lower charge does not amount to an undue preference shall lie on the railway administration.

(2) In deciding whether a lower charge does or does not amount to an undue preference, the Commissioners may, so far as they think reasonable, in addition to any other considerations affecting the case, take into consideration whether such lower charge is necessary for the purpose of securing, in the interests of the public, the traffic in respect of which it is made.

Provision for facilities and equal treatment where ships or boats are used which are not part of a railway.

44. Where a railway administration is a party to an agreement for procuring the traffic of the railway to be carried on any inland water by any ferry, ship, boat, or raft which does not belong to, or is not hired or worked by, the railway administration, the provisions of the two last foregoing sections applicable to a railway shall extend to the ferry, ship, boat, or raft, in so far as it is used for the purposes of the traffic of the railway.

46. (1) The Governor-General in Council may, if he thinks fit, refer to the Commissioners for decision any question or dispute which may arise with respect to the terminals charged by a railway administration, and the Commissioners may thereupon decide what is a reasonable sum to be paid to the railway administration in respect of terminals.

(2) In deciding the question or dispute, the Commissioners shall have regard only to the expenditure reasonably necessary to provide the accommodation in respect of which the terminals are charged, irrespective of the outlay which may have been actually incurred by the railway administration in providing that accommodation.

(5) Nothing in this section shall be construed to derogate from the Indian Explosives Act, 1884, or any rule under that Act; and nothing in sub-sections (1), (3), and (4), shall be construed to apply to any goods tendered or delivered for carriage by order or on behalf of the Government, or to any goods which an officer, soldier, sailor, or police-officer, or a person enrolled as a volunteer under the Indian Volunteers Act, 1869, may take with him upon a railway in the course of his employment or duty as such.

CRIMINAL RULINGS UNDER FORMER RAILWAY ACTS.

The drunkenness of a guard or under-guard in charge of a railway-train or any part thereof is an offence included in s. 35 of Act XVIII. of 1862; but the High Court has no jurisdiction to try a prisoner charged with such offence where he was removed from his post at a place outside the local limits, although the train thereupon proceeded with him to Madras.—REG. v. MALONY; REG. v. JONES, 1 Mad. H. C. R. 193. [Scotland, C.J., and Bittleston, J. Feb. 3. 1863.]

A passenger by railway travelling in a carriage of higher class than that for which he has paid fare is not guilty of cheating under s. 417 of the Penal Code, but is indictable under the Railways Act (XVIII. of 1854).—REG. v. DAYABHAI PARJARAM, 1 Bom H. Held that a conviction by a Magistrate, F. P., under s. 26 of the Railways Act, was illegal for want of jurisdiction.—REG. v. LAKSHMAN BALAJI, 3 Bom. H. C. R. 10. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. June 13, 1866.]

minal Procedure.—REG. v. LARKINS, 4 Bom. H. C. R. 4. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. July 18, 1867.]

Where some coolies were employed in assisting a ballast train into motion at a railway-station, and one of them, after pushing the train, in getting up on the train, or in attempting to do so, fell, and was so injured that he afterwards lost his life, held that the evidence did not show that it was the duty of the guard to see that no one got up on the train when in motion.—QUEEN v. R. FLOOD, 8 W. R. 43. [Jackson and Hobhouse, JJ. July 22, 1867.]

Magistrates of all grades are, under Mad. Act III. of 1865, competent to try persons charged with offences under s. 26 of the Railways Act (XVIII. of 1854).—Pro., April 2, 1868, 4 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 9.

A notice prohibiting general traffic over certain level-crossings on a railway, provided for particular villages, forbidden, as not falling within the scope of Reg. XII. of 1827, s. 19, cls. 1, 6.—In the Matter of a Prohibitory Notice under Reg. XII. of 1827, s. 19, cl. 6. [Lloyd and Kemball, JJ. April 25, 1871.]

S. 34 of Act XVIII. of 1854 prescribes the mode in which fines levied under that Act are to be recovered. It is only on the return of the warrant of distress unsatisfied, or on the Magistrate being otherwise satisfied that no sufficient distress exists, that imprisonment can be imposed.—Pro., Nov. 13, 1871, 6 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 37.

A railway-watchman was charged before a Head Assistant Magistrate with an offence under s. 26 of Act XVIII. of 1854. That charge was dismissed, but the Sessions Judge ordered a fresh trial. Held that, in so doing, the Sessions Judge acted without jurisdiction.—Pro., Nov. 20, 1871, 6 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 41.

Accused was tried and convicted by a Sub-Magistrate of an offence under s. 25 of Act XVIII. of 1854, punishable with transportation for life or imprisonment for any term not exceeding seven years. Upon a reference, held that, by virtue of Mad. Act III. of 1865, the Sub-Magistrate had jurisdiction, that Act not being repealed by the schedule attached to Act VIII. of 1869.—Pro., June 29, 1872, 7 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 8.

The prisoner, a servant of a railway company, was convicted under s. 29 of Act XXV. of 1871, of endangering the lives of the persons in a certain train by negligence. There was no evidence that the safety of any persons in any train had been endangered by his neglect of duty. On the contrary, by reason of precautions taken by other persons any possible danger which might have resulted from his neglect was avoided. Held that he could not be convicted and punished under s. 29 of Act XXV. of 1871.—QUEEN v. MANPHOOL, 5 N.-W. P. 240. [Pearson, J. Aug. 11, 1873.]

By s. 35 of the Railways Act, district police-officers in the Presidency of Bombay could punish, to the extent of the powers conferred upon them in petty offences, any offence made punishable under the Act, by fine not exceeding Rs. 20. But s. 5 of Reg. XII. of 1827 (authorizing the appointment of district police-officers), and s. 41 of the same Regulation (defining the limit of their jurisdiction), being both repealed by Act XVII. of 1862, held that a Subordinate Magistrate had no jurisdiction to impose a fine under s. 17 of the Railways Act.—REG. v. TRIBHUVAN ISHWAR, 3 BOM. H. C. R. 54. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. Feb. 6, 1879.]

Liability to conviction under s. 26 of the Railways Act, 1879, arises, not from the consequences directly referable to the breach of the rule, but because of the danger which the breach of the rule entails.—SNELL v. QUEEN, I. L. R., 6 Mad 201. [Turner, C.J., and Kindersley, J. Feb. 9, 1883.]

K, knowing that he was suffering from cholera, entered a train as a passenger without informing the Railway Company's servants of his condition. M, knowing of K's condition, bought K's ticket, and travelled with him. Held that K was properly convicted under s. 269 of the Penal Code of negligently doing an act which was, and which he had reason to believe was, likely to spread infection of a disease dangerous to life, and M of abetment of K's offence.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KRISHNAPPA, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 276. [Turner, C.J., and Kernan, J. Dec. 14, 1883.]

A passenger who has obtained a monthly ticket is liable to be called upon to produce it at any time on the journey which it covers; and, if he does not so produce it, he is liable under ss. 17 and 31 of the Railways Act to pay the fare for the journey between the stations for which his ticket was issued. The order under s 31, in case of his refusal to pay it, should be one merely for recovery of the amount due as the fare, and not an order to pay such sum or any other sum as if it were a fine. A passenger who has such a ticket which is still in force, and in his possession, cannot be said to be travelling without a ticket within the meaning of s. 31, merely because he does not happen to have the ticket with him, and therefore cannot produce it when called upon to do so.—IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF E. G. BUSKIN; IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF C. F. THOMAS; E. W. HART v. E. G. BUSKIN; E. W. HART v. C. F. THOMAS, I. L. R., 12 Cal. 192. [Wilson and Ghose, JJ. Sep. 2, 1885.]

S. 113, sub-s. (4), of the Indian Railways Act (IX. of 1890), which directs that, on failure to pay on demand excess charge and fare when due, the amount shall, on application, be recovered by a Magistrate as if it were a fine, does not authorize the Magistrate to impose imprisonment in default. The excess charge and fare, referred to in the section, is not a fine, though it may be recovered as such.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KUTRAPA, I. L. R., 18 Bom. 440. [Candy and Fulton, JJ. Aug. 14, 1893.]

When the owner of cattle which have been allowed to stray upon a railway is prosecuted under Railway Act, 1890, s. 125 (1), the Magistrate is bound to ascertain whether the person charged was himself guilty.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. ANDI, I. L. R., 18 Mad. 228. [Collins, C.J., and Parker, J. Nov. 22, Dec. 5, 1894.]

S. 113, sub-s. (4), of the Indian Railways Act (IX. of 1890), which directs that, on failure to pay on demand excess charge and fare when due, the amount shall, on application, be recovered by a Magistrate as if it were a fine, does not authorize the Magistrate to impose imprisonment in default. The excess charge and fare, referred to in this section, is not a fine, though it may be recovered as such.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SUBRAMANIA AYYAR, I. L. R., 20 Mad. 385. [Collins, C.J., and Shephard, J. Jan. 14, 1897.]

Before a person can be convicted of wilfully obstructing or impeding a railway servant in the discharge of his duties as provided in s. 121 of the Railways Act (IX. of 1890), or of voluntarily obstructing a public servant in the discharge of his public functions as provided in s. 186 of the Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860), it must be shown that the obstruction or resistance was offered to a railway or public servant in the discharge of his duties or public functions as authorized by law. The mere fact of a public servant or railway servant believing that he was acting in the discharge of his duties will not be sufficient to make resistance or obstruction to him amount to an offence.—In re BARODA KANT PRAMANICK AND SHIBADA GATI PRAMANICK, 1 C. W. N. 74. [O'Kinealy and Banerjee, JJ. July 16, 1896.]

The Rajnaggar Spinning, Weaving, and Manufacturing Company had a mill on one side of the B. B. & C. I. Railway line, and a ginning factory on the other. To bring water from the mill to the factory, a pipe had been laid beneath the railway line, and brick-reservoirs built at each side to preserve the proper level of the water. Servants of the company, having entered on the railway premises to repair the pipe and reservoirs without having first obtained the permission of the Railway Company, were convicted by a Magistrate under s. 122 of the Indian Railways Act (IX. of 1890) of an unlawful entry upon a railway. It was proved that the repairs were necessary. Held, reversing the convictions and sentences, that, as the pipes and reservoirs belonged to the Spinning and Weaving Company, and were kept in repairs by them, they, as owners of the dominant tenement, had a right to enter on the premises of the Railway Company, the owners of the servient tenement, to effect any necessary repairs, and that the entry in question, being in the exercise of a right, could not be called unlawful.—IMPERATRIX v. VANMALI, I. L. R., 22 Bom. 525. [Parsons and Ranade, JJ. Oct. 31, 1896.]

A passenger who travels in a train without having a proper pass or ticket with him has not committed an "offence." He cannot, therefore, be legally sentenced to imprisonment in default of payment of the excess charge and fare, which may be recovered under the provisions of s. 113, cl. (4), of Act IX. of 1890.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAM PAL, I. L. R., 20 All. 95. [Knox, J. Aug. 2, 1897.]

(a) establish and maintain Reformatory Schools at such places as it may think fit;

(b) use as Reformatory Schools schools kept by persons willing to act in conformity with such rules, consistent with this Act, as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf;

(c) direct that any school so established or used shall cease to exist as a Reformatory School, or to be used as such.

Requisites of Schools.

6. Every school so established or used must provide—

(a) sufficient means of separating the inmates at night;

(b) proper sanitary arrangements, water-supply, food, clothing, and bedding for the youthful offenders detained therein;

(c) the means of giving such youthful offenders industrial training;

(d) an infirmary or proper place for the reception of such youthful offenders when sick.

Inspection of Reformatory Schools.

7. (1) Every school intended to be established or used as a Reformatory School shall, before being used as such, be inspected by the Inspector-General, and if he finds that the requirements of section 6 have been complied with, and that, in his opinion, such school is fitted for the reception of such youthful offenders as may be sent there under this Act, he shall certify to that effect, and such certificate shall be published in the local official Gazette, together with an order of the Local Government establishing the school as a Reformatory School, or directing that it shall be used as such, and the school shall thereupon be deemed to be a Reformatory School.

(2) Every such school shall, from time to time, and at least once in every year, be visited by the said Inspector-General, who shall send to the Local Government a report on the condition of the school in such form as the Local Government may prescribe.

Power of Courts to direct youthful offenders to be sent to Reformatory Schools.

8. (1) Whenever any youthful offender is sentenced to transportation or imprisonment, and is, in the judgment of the Court by which he is sentenced, a proper person to be an inmate of a Reformatory School, the Court may, subject to any rules made by the Local Government, direct that, instead of undergoing his sentence, he shall be sent to such a school, and be there detained for a period which shall be not less than three, or more than seven years.

(2) The powers so conferred on the Court by this section shall be exercised only by (a) the High Court, (b) a Court of Session, (c) a District Magistrate, and (d) any Magistrate specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, and may be exercised by such Courts, whether the case comes before them originally or on appeal.

Act 8.

(3) The Local Government may make rules for—

(a) defining what youthful offenders should be sent to Reformatory Schools, having regard to the nature of their offences or other considerations, and

(b) regulating the periods for which youthful offenders may be sent to such schools according to their ages or other considerations.*

Procedure where Magistrate is not empowered to pass an order under section 8.

9. (1) When any Magistrate not empowered to pass an order under the last foregoing section is of opinion that a youthful offender convicted by him is a proper person to be an inmate of a Reformatory School, he may, without passing sentence, record such opinion, and submit his proceedings, and forward the youthful offender to the District Magistrate to whom he is subordinate.

(2) The Magistrate to whom the proceedings are so submitted may make such further inquiry (if any) as he may think fit, and pass such sentence and order for the detention in a Reformatory School of the youthful offender, or otherwise, as he might have passed if such youthful offender had been originally tried by him.

Power of Magistrates to direct boys under fifteen sentenced to imprisonment to be sent to Reformatory Schools.

10. The officer in charge of a prison in which a youthful offender is confined in execution of a sentence of imprisonment may bring him, if he has not then attained the age of fifteen years, before the District Magistrate within whose jurisdiction such prison is situate ; and such Magistrate may, if such youthful offender appears to be a proper person to be an inmate of a Reformatory School, direct that, instead of undergoing the residue of his sentence, he shall be sent to a Reformatory School, and there detained for a period which shall be subject to the same limitations as are prescribed by or under section 8, with reference to the period of detention thereby authorized.

Preliminary inquiry and finding as to age of youthful offender.

11. (1) Before directing any youthful offender to be sent to a Reformatory School under section 8, section 9, or section 10, the Court or Magistrate shall inquire into the question of his age, and, after taking such evidence (if any) as may be deemed necessary, shall record a finding thereon, stating his age as nearly as may be.

(2) A similar inquiry shall be made and finding recorded by every Magistrate not empowered to pass an order under section 8 before submitting his proceedings, and forwarding the youthful offender to the District Magistrate as required by section 9, sub-section (1).

Government to determine Reformatory School to which such offenders shall be sent.

12. Every youthful offender directed by a Court or Magistrate to be sent to a Reformatory School shall be sent to such Reformatory School as the Local Government may, by general or special order, appoint for the reception of youthful offenders so dealt with by such Court or Magistrate:

Provided that, if accommodation in a Reformatory School is not immediately available for such youthful offender, he may be detained in the juvenile ward or such other suitable part of a prison as the Local Government may direct—

(a) until he can be sent to a Reformatory School, or

(b) until the term of his original sentence expires, whichever event may first happen. Should the term of his original sentence first expire, he shall thereupon be released, but, should he be sent to a Reformatory School, then the period of detention previously undergone shall be treated as detention in a Reformatory School.

Persons found to be over eighteen years not to be detained in Reformatory Schools.

13. (1) If, at any time after a youthful offender has been sent to a Reformatory School, it appears to the Committee of Visitors or Board of Management, as the case may be, that the age of such youthful offender has been understated in the order for detention, and that he will attain the age of eighteen years before the expiration of the period for which he has been ordered to be detained, they shall report the case for the orders of the Local Government.

(2) No person shall be detained in a Reformatory School after he has been found by the Local Government to have attained the age of eighteen years.

Discharge or removal by order of Government.

14. The Local Government may at any time order any youthful offender—

(a) to be discharged from a Reformatory School;

(b) to be removed from one Reformatory School to another such school situate within the territories subject to such Government: Provided that the whole period of his detention in a Reformatory School shall not be increased by such removal.

Power to Governor-General in Council to direct use of Reformatories in one province for reception of youthful offenders from another.

15. (1) The Governor-General in Council may, by general or special order, direct that any Reformatory School situated in one province shall be available for the reception of youthful offenders directed to be sent to any Reformatory School by any Court or Magistrate in any other province.

(2) Any such order may also provide for the removal of the youthful offender, and the cost of his maintenance, and may give any such further directions as may be necessary.

Certain orders not subject to appeal or revision.

16. Nothing contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882,* shall be construed to authorize any Court or Magistrate to alter or reverse in appeal or revision any order passed with respect to the age of a youthful offender or the substitution of an order for detention in a Reformatory School for transportation or imprisonment.

III.—Management of Reformatory Schools.

Appointment of Superintendent and Committee of Visitors or Board of Management.

17. (1) For the control and management of every Reformatory School, the Local Government shall appoint either (a) a Superintendent and a Committee of Visitors, or (b) a Board of Management.

(2) Every Committee and every Board so appointed must consist of not less than five persons, of whom two at least shall be Natives of India.

* See now the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V. of 1898).

1897. Act 8.

(3) The Local Government may suspend or remove any Superintendent or any Member of a Committee or Board so appointed.

Superintendent may license youthful offenders to employers of labour.

18. (1) Every Superintendent so appointed may, with the sanction of the Committee, by license under his hand, permit any youthful offender sent to a Reformatory School, who has attained the age of fourteen years, to live under the charge of any trustworthy and respectable person named in the license, or any officer of Government or of a Municipality, being an employer of labour, and willing to receive and take charge of him, on the condition that the employer shall keep such youthful offender employed at some trade, occupation, or calling.

(2) The license shall be in force for three months and no longer, but may, at any time and from time to time until the expiration of the period for which the youthful offender has been directed to be detained, be renewed for three months at a time.

Cancellation of license.

19. The license shall be cancelled at the desire of the employer named in the license.

Determination of license.

20. If, during the term of the license, the employer named therein dies or ceases from business or to employ labour, or the period for which the youthful offender has been directed to be detained in the Reformatory School expires, the license shall thereupon cease and determine.

Cancellation of license in case of ill-treatment.

21. If it appears to the Superintendent that the employer has ill-treated the youthful offender, or has not adequately provided for his lodging and maintenance, the Superintendent may cancel the license.

Superintendent to be deemed guardian of youthful offenders.

22. (1) The Superintendent of a Reformatory School shall be deemed to be the guardian of every youthful offender detained in such school, within the meaning of Act No. XIX. of 1850 (concerning the binding of apprentices).

Power to apprentice youthful offender.

(2) If it appears to the Superintendent that any youthful offender licensed under section 18 has behaved well during one or more periods of his license, the Superintendent may, with the sanction of the Committee, apprentice him under the provisions of the said Act, and, on such apprenticement, the right to detain such youthful offender in a Reformatory School shall cease, and the unexpired term (if any) of his sentence shall be cancelled.

Duties of Committee of Visitors.

23. (1) Every Committee of Visitors appointed under section 17 for a Reformatory School shall, at least once in every month—

(a) visit the school to hear complaints, and see that the requirements of section 6 have been complied with, and that the management of the school is proper in all respects;

(b) examine the punishment-book;

(c) bring any special cases to the notice of the Inspector-General; and (d) see that no person is illegally detained in the school.

(2) If any member of a Committee of Visitors so appointed fails or neglects, during a period of six consecutive months, to visit the school, and assist in the discharge of the duties aforesaid, he shall cease to be a member of such Committee.

24. If, in exercise of the power conferred by section 17, the Local Government appoints a Board of Management for any Reformatory School, such Board shall have the powers and perform the functions of the Superintendent under sections 18 to 22, both inclusive; and the license mentioned in section 18 may be under the hand of their Chairman; and they shall be deemed to be the guardians of the youthful offenders detained in such school.

Powers of Board of Management.

25. The Local Government may declare any body of Trustees or Managers of a school, who are willing to act in conformity with the rules referred to in section 5, clause (b), to be a Board of Management under this Act, and thereupon such body or Managers shall have all the powers and perform all the functions of such Board of Management.

Power to appoint Trustees or other Managers of a school to be a Board of Management.

26. (1) With the previous sanction of the Local Government, every Board of Management of a Reformatory School may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act—

Power of Board to make rules.

(i) to prescribe the articles which are to be deemed to be "prohibited articles"; and

(ii) to regulate—

(a) the conduct of business of the Board:

(b) the management of the school:*

(c) the education and industrial training of youthful offenders;

(d) visits to, and communication with, youthful offenders;

(e) the terms and conditions under which any articles declared by the Board to be "prohibited articles" may be introduced into or removed out of the school:

(f) the manner in which such articles are to be removed when introduced without due authority;

(g) the conditions and limitations under which such articles may be supplied outside the school to any youthful offender under order of detention therein;

(h) the conditions on which the possession by any such youthful offender of such articles may be sanctioned;

(i) the penalties to be imposed for the supply or possession of such articles when supplied or possessed without due authority;

(j) the punishment of offences committed by youthful offenders: and (k) the granting of licenses for the employment of youthful offenders.

1897. Act 8.

(2) In the absence of a Board of Management the Local Government may make rules consistent with this Act to regulate for any Reformatory School the matters mentioned in any clause of sub-section (1), other than clause (ii) (a), and also the mode in which the Committee of Visitors shall conduct their business.

IV.—Offences in relation to Reformatory Schools.

Penalty for introduction or removal or supply of prohibited articles and communication with youthful offenders.

27. Whoever, contrary to any rule made under section 26, introduces or removes, or attempts by any means whatever to introduce or remove, into or from any Reformatory School, or supplies or attempts to supply outside the limits of any Reformatory School to any youthful offender under order of detention therein, any prohibited article, and every officer or person in charge of a Reformatory School who, contrary to any such rule, knowingly suffers any such article to be introduced into, or removed from, any Reformatory School, to be possessed by any youthful offender detained therein, or to be supplied to any such youthful offender outside its limits, and whoever, contrary to any such rule, communicates or attempts to communicate with any such youthful offender, and whoever abets any offence made punishable under this section, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, or to both.

Penalty for abetting escape of youthful offender.

28. Whoever abets an escape, or an attempt to escape, on the part of a youthful offender from a Reformatory School, or from the employer of such youthful offender, shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, or with both.

Arrest of escaped youthful offender.

29. A police-officer may, without orders from a Magistrate, and without a warrant, arrest any youthful offender sent to a Reformatory School under this Act, who has escaped from such school or from his employer, and take him back to such school or to his employer.

V.—Miscellaneous.

30. [Application of Act XV. of 1869 to youthful offenders detained in Reformatory Schools.] Repealed by the Prisoners Act (III. of 1900)

Power to deal in other ways with youthful offenders, including girls.

31. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act or in any other enactment for the time being in force, any Court may, if it shall think fit, instead of sentencing any youthful offender to transportation or imprisonment, or directing him to be detained in a Reformatory School, order him to be—

(a) discharged after due admonition, or

(b) delivered to his parent, or to his guardian or nearest adult relative, on such parent, guardian, or relative executing a bond, with or without sureties, as the Court may require, to be responsible for the good behaviour of the youthful offender for any period not exceeding twelve months.

(2) For the purposes of this section the term "youthful offender" shall include a girl.

(3) The powers conferred on the Court by this section shall be exercised only by Courts empowered by or under section 8.

(4) When any youthful offender is convicted by a Court not empowered to act under this section, and the Court is of opinion that the powers conferred by this section should be exercised in respect of such youthful offender, it may record such opinion, and submit the proceedings and forward the youthful offender to the District Magistrate to whom such Court is subordinate.

(5) The District Magistrate to whom the proceedings are so submitted may thereupon make such order or pass such sentence as he might have made or passed if the case had originally been tried by him.

Procedure when youthful offender under detention in a Reformatory School is again convicted and sentenced.

32. When a youthful offender during his period of detention in a Reformatory School is again convicted by a Criminal Court, the sentence of such Court shall commence at once, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in section 397 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882,* but the Court shall forthwith report the matter to the Local Government, which shall have power to deal with the matter in any way in which it thinks fit.

RULINGS UNDER THE REFORMATORY SCHOOLS ACT.

WHERE a boy over fourteen, but otherwise of uncertain age, was ordered, upon conviction by a Magistrate, to be detained in a Reformatory School for two years, held that such sentence, having regard to the rule made by the Governor-General in Council on the 14th of March 1889 under s. 22 of Act V. of 1876, was illegal. The proper course for the Magistrate to have adopted with reference to the above-mentioned rules was to have ascertained, as near as might be, the exact age of the offender, and sentenced him to a specified period of detention, which should be that elapsing between his conviction and the attainment by him of the age of eighteen years.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. NARAIN, I. L. R., 15 All. 208. [Edge, C.J., and Aikman, J. April 27, 1893.]

THE Reformatory Schools Act, 1876, provides only for male juvenile offenders being sent to Reformatory Schools by Magistrates of the first class, and s. 399 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it authorizes a Magistrate not of the first class to direct that a male juvenile offender be sent to a Reformatory, is repealed. Held, therefore, when a second-class Magistrate directed a boy to be sent to a Reformatory under s. 399 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, that the order was illegal. — QUEEN-EMPRESS v. MADASAMI, I. L. R., 12 Mad. 94 [Kernan, Muttusami Ayyar, Parker, and Wilkinson, JJ. Sep. 7, 26, 1888.]

A MAGISTRATE, acting under s. 8 of the Reformatory Schools Act (V. of 1876), is bound to ascertain the age of the prisoner, and, in accordance with that finding, to direct the confinement in a Reformatory according to the rules made under s. 22 of the Act. It is not sufficient for the Magistrate merely to find that the prisoner is under a particular age Under s. 8 of the Act, evidence may be taken by the Magistrate as to the age of the prisoner; and as the proceeding of the Magistrate involves the alteration of a sentence after the exercise of judicial discretion, such proceeding is clearly a judicial proceeding within the meaning of ss. 4 and 435 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X. of 1882). The High Court is, therefore, competent to exercise its revisional jurisdiction in such cases.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. MANAJI, I. L. R., 14 Bom. 381. [Scott and Candy, JJ. Nov. 26, 1889.]

THE accused was convicted of the offence under s. 457 of the Penal Code by the Deputy Magistrate of Barisal, who found that the accused was a boy of fourteen or fifteen years, decidedly under sixteen, and passed the following order: "I find Ahmad Ali, boy, guilty of house-breaking by night for the purpose of committing theft, and instead of being imprisoned in the jail under s. 457 of the Penal Code, I direct, under s. 399 of the Criminal Procedure Code and s. 7 of Act V. of 1876, that Ahmad Ali be confined in the Calcutta Reformatory for two years for training in some branch of useful industry." Held that the order could not be sustained under s. 7 of Act V. of 1876, as that Act had been repealed before the date of the order and the commission of the offence, nor under s. 8 of Act VIII. of 1897, as the order does not comply with the provisions of the latter Act. Held, further, that s. 318 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1872), having been repealed by s. 2 of Act V. of 1876, the corresponding s. 399 of the present Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1882) must also be held by virtue of s. 3 of the Code to have been repealed in the provinces, including Bengal, to which Act V. of 1876 was extended. The repeal of a statute repealing another statute does not revive the repealed statute. The law in India as embodied in s. 7 of the General Clauses Act (X. of 1897) is the same as the law in England. Queen-Empress v. Madasami (I. L. R., 12 Mad. 94) and Queen-Empress v. Manaji (I. L. R., 14 Bom. 381) referred to and approved of.—DEPUTY LEGAL REMEMBRANCER v. AHMAD ALI, I. L. R., 25 Cal. 333; 2 C. W. N. 11. [Banarjee and Wilkins, JJ. Oct. 28, 1897.]

HELD that the High Court has no power to interfere in appeal or revision with an order for detention in a Reformatory School passed in substitution of an order of transportation or imprisonment.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. HIMAI, I. L. R., 20 All. 158, and QUEEN-EMPRESS v. GOBINDA, I. L. R., 20 All. 159. [Edge, C.J., and Burkitt, J. Nov. 20, 27, 1897.]

THE prohibition contained in s. 16 of Act VIII. of 1897 does not apply to an order for detention in a Reformatory School passed when the person to whom it relates has not been convicted of any offence, and has not been sentenced to any term of imprisonment or transportation for which detention in a Reformatory could be substituted.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. BILLAR, I. L. R., 20 All. 160. [Edge and Burkitt, JJ. Nov. 27, 1897.]

HELD by Shephard, Offg. C.J., affirming the judgment of Moore, J. (Davies, J., diss.), that the rules made by Government under Act V. of 1876 must be deemed to have been made under Act VIII. of 1897; and that Magistrates acting under Act VIII. of 1897 must order the detention of a juvenile offender until he attains the age of eighteen.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAMALINGAM, I. L. R., 21 Mad. 430. [Shephard, C.J. July 15, 25, 29, 1898.]

Held that the High Court has power to interfere in appeal or revision with an order for detention in a Reformatory School passed in substitution for transportation or imprisonment when such order is made without jurisdiction, and is not an order warranted by Act VIII. of 1897. S. 16 of Act VIII. of 1897 only precludes the interference of a superior Court with the original Court's order so far as it (1) determines the age of a youthful offender, or (2) directs the substitution of detention in a Reformatory School for transportation or imprisonment, where such substitution is not made without jurisdiction, or is not otherwise illegal, having regard to the provisions of the Act. Queen-Empress v. Himai (I. L. R., 20 All. 158) and Queen-Empress v. Gobinda (I. L. R., 20 All. 159) overruled. Queen-Empress v. Billar (I. L. R., 20 All. 160), Queen-Empress v. Kaidya Husain (1 Bombay Law Reports 162), Deputy Legal Remembrancer v. Ahmed Ali (I. L. R., 25 Cal. 333), Queen-Empress v. Ramalingam (I. L. R., 21 Mad. 430), Roop Lall Dass v. Manook (2 C. W. N. 572), Queen-Empress v. Partap Chunder Ghose (I. L. R., 25 Cal. 852), Ex-parte Bradlaugh (L. R., 3 Q. B. D. 509), and The Colonial Bank of Australasia v. William (L. R., 5 P. C. 417 at p. 442) referred to. In interpreting statutes, the more literal construction ought not to prevail if it is opposed to the intention of the Legislature as apparent by the statute, and if the words are sufficiently flexible to admit of some other construction by which that intention will be better effectuated. Caledonian Railway Company v. North British Railway Company (L. R., 6 App. Cas. 114 at p. 122) referred to.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. HORI, I. L. R., 21 All. 391. [Strachey, C.J., and Knox and Banerji JJ. May 27, 1899.]

S. 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII. of 1897) does not entitle any Appellate Court to order the alteration or the substitution of an order for detention in a Reformatory School to imprisonment. Before an order for detention in a Reformatory School can be passed in lieu of a sentence for imprisonment, there should be a definite finding as to the age of the boy, and as to his being a fit subject for a Reformatory School.—EMPRESS v. HARIDAS MUKERJEE, 3 C. W. N. 576. [Prinsep and Hill, JJ. June 12, 1899.]

If an order for detention in a Reformatory School in substitution for transportation or imprisonment be not properly passed, a Court is not debarred by s. 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII. of 1897) from altering or reversing such order. A boy of about 9 years of age was found in the grounds of the residence of the Commissioner of Patna at 3 A.M. in the morning with a brass lota in his hand. He was tried summarily, and, without any preliminary inquiry as to the age of the boy being made, was sentenced to three months' rigorous imprisonment, or in lieu thereof to be detained in a Reformatory School for seven years. Held, the accused did not come within the definition of "youthful offenders" as given in the Rules (1) framed by the Local Government under s. 8 of the Reformatory Schools Act; and the offence of the accused being his first offence the case should have been dealt with under s. 31 of the Act. It is not that a Magistrate is under no circumstances competent to find from the appearance of a person convicted by him that he is a youthful offender, but it is generally desirable that there should be some reliable evidence on the point, and especially when it is necessary to determine the period of detention. The age of the accused being under twelve years the Magistrate should, considering the provisions of s. 83 of the Penal Code, have found that the accused had attained sufficient maturity of understanding to judge of the nature and consequences of his act.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. MAKIMUDDIN, I. L. R., 27 Cal. 133. [Prinsep and Hill, JJ. July 26, 1899.]

S. 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII. of 1897) does not in any way take away the jurisdiction of the High Court, as a Court of revision, to alter or set aside the sentence in substitution of which an order for detention in a Reformatory School is made. A young lad was found abstracting a piece of coal from a wagon, and was, on a charge for theft, sentenced to a month's rigorous imprisonment, and ordered, in lieu thereof, to be detained in a Reformatory School for 4 years. The High Court, on the ground of its being the first offence and a trivial one, set aside the sentence, and passed one of whipping by way of school discipline.—SHEIKH REASUT v. J. COURTENEY, 5 C. W. N. 211. [Ameer Ali and Stevens, JJ. Nov. 28, 1900.]

S. 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII. of 1897) does not affect the jurisdiction of the High Court, as a Court of revision, to consider the legality or propriety of the conviction or sentence or of any order passed by a Subordinate Court other than that mentioned in that section. Sheikh Reasut v. J. Courteney (5 C. W. N. 211) referred to. The law requires that a Magistrate trying a case, or one to whom the proceedings of the case are submitted under s. 9 of the Reformatory Schools Act, should, in the first instance, sentence the accused to a term of imprisonment or transportation, which he may then commute into one of detention in a Reformatory School for such period as the law prescribes. An order for the detention of a youthful offender in a Reformatory School, when no sentence of imprisonment or of transportation has been passed, is bad in law.—IN THE MATTER OF RADHA KRISTO BARAT v. GOKULA NUT, 5 C. W. N. 210. [Ameer Ali and Stevens, JJ. Jan. 3, 1901.]

RULINGS UNDER THE REGISTRATION ACT.

THE notes of an inquiry held before a registering officer are not admissible as evidence of what the prisoner said on that occasion.—QUEEN v. PURMANUND BARICK, 11 W. R. 13 [Jackson and Glover, JJ. Mar. 2, 1869.]

S. 29 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, does not affect the jurisdiction given to a Second-class Magistrate by s. 83 of the Registration Act, 1877, as amended by Act XII. of 1879.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KRISHNA, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 347. [Brandt, J. Feb. 29, 1884.]

WHERE the accused was tried for intentionally making a false statement in the course of certain proceedings taken before a Registrar, held that, even assuming that such proceedings were taken under s. 72 of the Registration Act, and not, as they should have been, under s. 73, the appearance of the accused before the Registrar, and his taking no objection to the form of the proceedings, will cure the irregularity for the purposes of a criminal trial under the provisions of the Registration Act; nor, under similar circumstances, will the want of verification of a petition of appeal on the part of the applicant, as provided by s. 73 of the Act, oust the jurisdiction of the Criminal Court.—Reg. v. James Berry (28 L. J. M. C. 86; 8 Cox C. C. 121); Queen v. Thomas Fletcher (L. R., 1 C. C. R. 320); Turner v. Postmaster-General (5 B. and S. 756); Queen v. Hughes (L. R., 4 Q. B. D. 614; 14 Cox C. C. 10) followed. Held also that, except as directed by s. 82 of Act III. of 1877, the Magistrate has no authority, on his own mere motion, to frame a charge against the accused in consequence of evidence given in the course of the trial by the registering officer in respect of certain statements made before him during registration-proceedings.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. BATESAR MANDAL, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 604. [Tottenham and Norris, JJ. Mar. 24, 1884.]

UNDER s. 435 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the High Court has power to go into questions of fact, but it will only exercise this power in cases in which it finds that it will be in the interests of justice to do so. N was charged with having made a false statement before a sub-registrar in identifying K, a person who had executed a mortgage-deed in favour of R, and who was a neighbour of his (N's), as being the person to whom R had agreed to advance the money, the consideration of the mortgage. The false statement consisted in his stating to the sub-registrar that he "knew K as his neighbour." During the hearing of the case it was sought to prove a statement made by R to a third party (R having died pre-

A Registrar acting under s. 73 of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, is not a Court within the meaning of s. 193 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Atchayya v. Gangayya (I. L. R., 15 Mad. 138) dissented from.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAM LAL, I. L. R., 15 All. 141. [Knox, J. Feb. 7, 1893.]

A Sub-Registrar holding such an inquiry under an order of the Registrar cannot be said to be acting in execution of the Registration Act in any proceeding or inquiry under that Act. An order for the prosecution, under s. 82 of the Registration Act, of a witness who gives evidence before the Sub-Registrar in such an inquiry, is wrong in law.—MATA DAYAL v. QUEEN-EMPRESS I. L. 16. Any salt-revenue officer may stop and detain any person whom he has reason to believe to be liable to punishment under this Act;

When any penalty, the amount of which has been deposited under the second clause of this section, is sanctioned, or when any sum refundable under this section has not been claimed within the said period of six months,

REFERENCE AND REVISION.

Revision of certain decisions of Courts regarding the sufficiency of stamps.

61. (1) When any Court, in the exercise of its civil or revenue jurisdiction, or any Criminal Court in any proceeding under Chapter XII. or Chapter XXXVI. of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898,* makes any order admitting any instrument in evidence as duly stamped or as not requiring a stamp, or upon payment of duty and a penalty under section 35, the Court to which appeals lie from, or references are made by, such first-mentioned Court, may, of its own motion, or on the application of the Collector, take such order into consideration. S. 50, Act 14 of 1879.

(2) If such Court, after such consideration, is of opinion that such instrument should not have been admitted in evidence without the payment of duty and penalty under section 35, or without the payment of a higher duty and penalty than those paid, it may record a declaration to that effect, and determine the amount of duty with which such instrument is chargeable, and may require any person in whose possession or power such instrument then is to produce the same, and may impound the same when produced.

(3) When any declaration has been recorded under sub-section (2), the Court recording the same shall send a copy thereof to the Collector, and, where the instrument to which it relates has been impounded or is otherwise in the possession of such Court, shall also send him such instrument.

(4) The Collector may thereupon, notwithstanding anything contained in the order admitting such instrument in evidence, or in any certificate granted under section 42, or in section 43, prosecute any person for any offence against the Stamp law which the Collector considers him to have committed in respect of such instrument:

Provided that—

(a) no such prosecution shall be instituted where the amount (including duty and penalty), which, according to the determination of such Court, was payable in respect of the instrument under section 35, is paid to the Collector, unless he thinks that the offence was committed with an intention of evading payment of the proper duty:

(b) except for the purposes of such prosecution, no declaration made under this section shall affect the validity of any order admitting any instrument in evidence, or of any certificate granted under section 42.

In s. 61 (1), the italicized words are new, and the italicized figures 35 have been substituted for "34" throughout the section.

In sub-s. (2), the words first italicized have been substituted for the words, "if it," and the italicized word it is new.

CHAPTER VIII.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS.

* * * * * * *

S. 55, Act I. of 1879.

74. The Local Government, subject to the control of the Governor-General in Council, may make rules for regulating—

Powers to make rules relating to sale of stamps.

(a) the supply and sale of stamps and stamped papers,

(b) the persons by whom alone such sale is to be conducted, and

(c) the duties and remuneration of such persons:

New.

Provided that such rules shall not restrict the sale of one-anna adhesive stamps.

"Consistent herewith" after "rules" in line 3 omitted.

* Act V. of 1898.

THE mere engrossing of a document, requiring a stamp, on unstamped paper, constitutes no offence under the Stamp Act (X. of 1862).—REG. v. JOTI BIN SATU, 1 Bom. H. C. R. 37. [Newton and Tucker, JJ. Aug. 12, 1863.]

THE refusal to give a stamped receipt for money paid not being in itself an offence at law, to make a false charge against a party of refusing to give such a stamped receipt, is not an indictable offence.—REG. v GAPAU KOM KUSAJI, 1 Bom. H. C. R. 92. [Erskine, Newton, and Westropp, JJ. Nov. 13, 1863.]

HELD that the mere engrossing of a deed on stamped paper does not constitute an offence under s. 3 of Act X. of 1862, nor does the signing such a deed as a witness.—REG. v. JETHA MOTI; REG v. VIRJI KUVARJI, 2 Bom. H. C. R. 129. [Couch and Warden, JJ. Mar. 16, 1865.]

THE passing off a one-anna stamp as a one-rupee stamp is not counterfeiting a one-rupee stamp.—QUEEN v. SHUROOP CHUNDER DOSS, 2 W. R. 65. [Jackson and Glover, JJ. April 24 1865.]

CONVICTION and sentence for an offence under the Stamp Act reversed on a reference by a Sessions Judge, as the proceedings of the Magistrate who tried the case were highly irregular.—REG. v. DEVSANVAT BIN SHIVRAMSANVAT, 3 Bom. H. C. R. 34. [Couch, C.J., and Newton and Warden, JJ. Oct. 3, 1866.]

THE words in s. 3 of Act X. of 1862, "unless in any case in which a higher penalty is imposed" and "not exceeding," apply both to the penalty of Rs. 100 and to one higher than ten times the value of the omitted stamp. Attesting witnesses and persons who draft documents, and note the fact with their signatures at the foot, do not come within the words, "make, execute, sign, or be a party to" used in the section, and are therefore not punishable under it.—PRO. FEB. 15, 1867, 3 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 27.

CONVICTION and sentence under s. 3 of Act X. of 1862 (Stamp Act) reversed, because no complaint had been made before the trying Magistrate. A memorandum, under the signature of the Collector, sanctioning the prosecution, cannot be accepted in the place of a complaint so as to authorize the issuing of a summons.—REG. v. BAI DIVALI, 5 Bom. H. C. R. 48. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. June 18, 1868.]

A COMPLAINT preferred by a Munsif under s. 168 of the Criminal Procedure Code need not, though it do not bear the seal of the Munsif's Court, be on stamped paper.—REG. v. SAJJAN VALAD VITHU, 5 Bom H.C.R. 104. [Newton and Tucker, JJ. Dec. 17, 1868.]

A PROSECUTION, under s. 3 of Act X. of 1862, not having been authorized by the Collector of the stamp-revenue of the district or any other officer specially authorized by the Government in that behalf, is, under s. 52 of that Act, altogether irregular.—QUEEN v. ADJOODHYA PERSHAD, 2 N.-W. P. 188. Spankie, J. May 13, 1870.]

S. 409 of the Penal Code does not limit the mode in which a trust arises, whether by specific order, or by reason of its being part of the proper duty of a public functionary. Where, therefore, it was proved that the head clerk of an office entrusted the management of stamps, with the knowledge and sanction of his superiors, to one of his assistants, the latter was held to be guilty of criminal misappropriation by a public servant within the meaning of s. 409 when he made away with the stamps.—QUEEN v. RAM DHUN DEY, 13 W. R. 77. [Jackson and Glover, JJ. May 28, 1870.]

INTENTION to evade payment of stamp-duty is not an essential ingredient in the offence described by s. 29 of Act XVIII. of 1869. Held that the donor under a deed insufficiently stamped was properly convicted, but that the donee had committed no offence under the section.—PRO., Nov. 28, 1870, 6 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 5.

THE exemption of the Government of India, dated the 19th September 1870, cannot be extended to copies of the statement of evidence and grounds of conviction. Persons desirous of obtaining copies of such documents for the purpose of appeal must furnish stamped paper on which the copies are to be written.—PRO., JAN 5, 1871, 6 Mad. H. C R. Ap. 12.

THE illegal seizure and detention of cattle, to which s. 14 of Act III. of 1857 refers, is not an "offence" within the meaning of s. 31 and Sch. II., art. 1, cl. b, of the Court-fees Act (VII. of 1870). Complaints of such illegal seizure and detention do not require a stamp. If such complaints be stamped, it is not competent for the Court to direct that the accused shall repay the amount of such stamp to the complainant.—REG. v. AVJI BIN NARU, 8 Bom. H. C. R. 22. [Bayley and Melvill, JJ. May 17, 1871.]

THE accused, being entrusted to put a proper amount of stamps on a letter, and return such as might not be required, did not return them, but misappropriated stamps to the value of two annas, and was convicted and punished under s. 49 of the Post-office Act (XIV. of 1866), instead of under the Penal Code for criminal breach of trust. As the accused had not been sentenced to a larger amount of punishment than could

Act 2. have been awarded for criminal breach of trust, nor shown to have been prejudiced by the error of convicting him under the Post-office Act, the High Court could not, under s. 426, Code of Criminal Procedure, reverse or alter the sentence, pointing out at the same time that this was one of those cases in which it was a mistake to look at the smallness of the amount misappropriated rather than to the gravity of the offence.—IN THE MATTER OF NOBIN CHUNDER DUTT, 17 W. R. 50. [Couch, C.J., and Ainslie, J. April 13, 1872.]

By s. 6 of Act I. of 1868 an offence committed under s. 3 of Act X. of 1862, when that enactment was in force, is still an offence, and may be tried under that enactment. By force of s. 3, cl. 1, of Act I. of 1868, the mere repealing of s. 2 and Sch. III. of Act XVIII. of 1869 by Act XIV. of 1870 did not per se revive the repealed portions of Act X. of 1862.—PRO., JULY 30, 1872, 7 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 8.

THAT which the Magistrate has to adjudicate upon, on a prosecution coming before him under s. 24 of the Stamp Act, is, whether an offence against the Act has been committed, and whether the prosecution has been brought before him by the proper officer. Any person who makes himself liable by committing an offence within the terms of s. 29 and the following sections, and who is prosecuted by the Collector or other officer duly empowered, may be convicted by the Magistrate under s. 44. If an instrument called a promissory note or other document of that kind, and as such liable to the duty imposed by the Act, is not duly stamped, the person subject to penalty is the person who makes it, and not the person in whose favour it is made. The Magistrate of the District should not himself try a case in which he instituted the prosecution as Collector.—QUEEN v. NADI CHUND PODDAR, 24 W. R. 1. [Jackson and McDonell, JJ. April 29, 1875.]

THE accused was prosecuted under Act XVIII. of 1869, s. 29, for executing a document on insufficiently-stamped paper. The document recited that, "whereas A and B have sold to me 2 gandas 3 cowries of land under a kobala, dated the 9th of Jeyt 1283, in lieu of a consideration of Rs. 695, and whereas I have returned to the vendors in all 4 cottas of land worth about Rs. 25, and whereas, in lieu of the said land, the said vendors have given me 4 cottas of zerait land held by them, now I or my heirs shall have no objection or contest whatever in regard to the mutual exchange of lands between the vendors and me, the purchaser; hence I have executed this chitti by way of conveyance or deed of exchange, which may be of service when required." This document bore a stamp of eight annas, and it was executed only by the accused, and presented by him for registration. Held that the document was an instrument of transfer within the meaning of art. 38, Sch. II., Act XVIII. of 1869. Held also that a Magistrate is bound, for the purpose of ascertaining whether any and what penalty should be imposed, to consider whether a person, prosecuted under s. 29, Act XVIII. of 1869, had any intention to defraud by evading payment of stamp-duty.—EMPRESS v. DWARKANATH CHOWDHRY, I. L. R., 2 Cal. 399. [Garth, C.J., and Kemp, Macpherson, Markby, and Ainslie, JJ. Jan. 22, 1877.]

A MAGISTRATE, who has been authorized by the Collector of a district, under s. 43 of the Stamp Act, to prosecute offenders against the stamp-laws, is not competent also to try persons whom he prosecutes. The Collector should appoint some person other than a Magistrate to conduct the prosecution.—EMPRESS v. GANGADHUR BHUNJO, I. L. R., 3 Cal. 622; 2 C. L. R. 179. [Markby and Prinsep, JJ. April 16, 1878.]

THE Collector, being primarily responsible for the prosecution of offences against the Stamp Acts of 1869 and 1879, should not himself try, as a Magistrate, a person accused of an offence against either of those Acts.—EMPRESS v. DEOKI NANDAN LAL, I. L. R., 2 All. 806. [Straight, J. April 12, 1880.]

SIX persons acted as arbitrators in a dispute between two of their fellow-villagers, and delivered their award in writing. Subsequently, the award was filed in evidence by one of the disputants in the civil suit in the Court of the Munsif of Cuttack, who, on the ground that the document bore no stamp, impounded it, and forwarded it to the Collector, who ordered the writer to be prosecuted. The Deputy Magistrate, to whom the case was referred, summoned the six persons who had acted as arbitrators, and fined them Rs. 25 each. On a reference to the High Court by the District Magistrate, held that the conviction was illegal, and should be set aside; held also that the procedure laid down in s. 37 of the Stamp Act must be strictly followed, and that, before a prosecution can be instituted under s. 40, the Collector is bound to form an opinion as to whether the offence was committed with the intention of evading payment of the proper duty.—EMPRESS v. SODDANUND MAHANTY, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 259; 10 C. L. R. 365. [Pontifex and Field, JJ. Dec. 14, 1881.]

JALLU, I. L. R., 4 All. 216. [Stuart, C.J., and Straight, Oldfield, Brodhurst, and Tyrrel, JJ. Jan. 17, 1882.]

S. 51, Ch. VI. of Act I. of 1879, enacts that, "subject to such rules as may be made by the Governor-General in Council as to the evidence which the Collector may require, allowance shall be made by the Collector for impressed stamps spoiled in the cases hereinafter mentioned," &c. According to a rule made with reference to that section, "the Collector may require every person claiming a refund under Ch. VI. of the said Act, or his duly-authorized agent, to make an oral deposition on oath, &c. Held, therefore, that the Collector himself is the officer, and no other, to whom power is given by law to make inquiries into applications for allowances for spoiled stamps, to take evidence on oath in reference thereto, and to grant or refuse such applications, and he cannot delegate his authority in the matter. Held, therefore, where a person had applied for a refund under Ch. VI. of Act I. of 1879, and the Collector made over the application for inquiry to a Deputy Collector, that the Deputy Collector was not entitled to put the witnesses produced by the applicant on their oaths, and consequently, in reference to the statement of such witnesses, no charge under s. 181 or s. 193 of the Penal Code was sustainable.—EMPRESS v. NIAZ ALI, I. L. R., 5 All. 17. [Stuart, C.J., and Straight, J. July 24, 1882.]

A EXECUTED to B on plain paper an instrument which should have been executed on a paper bearing a four-anna stamp. B filed a suit against A in the Civil Court, and produced the instrument in evidence. The Civil Court called upon A to pay the duty and penalty, and, on A's refusal to pay, impounded the instrument, and sent it to the Collector. The Collector, concurring with the opinion of the Civil Court, sanctioned the prosecution, in the Criminal Court, of both A and B, but without requiring the payment of the duty and penalty. The prosecution resulted in the conviction of A under s. 61 of the Stamp Act (I. of 1879), and of B of abetment of A's offence. Held that the convictions were illegal, inasmuch as the Collector failed to allow an opportunity of paying the duty and penalty. Held, further, that mere receipt of an unstamped instrument did not constitute the offence of an abetment of the execution of such an instrument.—EMPRESS v. JANKI, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 82. [West and Pinhey, JJ. Nov. 2, 1882.]

THE term "accepting" used in s. 61 of the Stamp Act, 1879, does not mean "receiving," but "executing as acceptor." To receive a promissory note not duly stamped, and put it in suit, does not constitute an offence under s. 61 of the Stamp Act, 1879.—QUEEN v. GOLAM HOSSEIN SAHEB, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 71. [Turner, C.J. June 7, 1883.]

A COLLECTOR is not bound to hold a formal inquiry, or to record proceedings, before directing a prosecution under s. 40 of the Stamp Act, 1879, for an offence against the Stamp-law. The law does not require intention to be proved as a part of such offence.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. PALANI, I. L. R., 7 Mad. 537. [Turner, C.J., and Hutchins, J. July 25, 1884.]

PROSECUTION for an offence committed in contravention of s. 64 of the Stamp Act (I. of 1879) cannot be instituted unless with the previous sanction of the Collector under s. 69 of the same Act.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. JETHMAL, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 27. [West and Nanabhai Haridas, JJ. Aug. 24, 1884.]

AN entry made by a creditor in the khatta-book of the debtor, and signed by him for the payment of a sum of money in discharge of a debt, is a "receipt" within the meaning of s. 3, cl. 17, of the Stamp Act, and, as such, must be stamped under art. 52, Sch. I., of that Act.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. JAGGERNATH, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 267. [Tottenham and Ghose, JJ. Feb. 24, 1885.]

A DEBTOR, having paid a sum of money to his creditor, accepted from the latter an unstamped receipt, promising to affix a stamp thereto. Held that this did not constitute abetment, within the meaning of s. 107 of the Penal Code, of the offence of making an unstamped receipt. Empress v. Bahadur Singh (Weekly Notes, 1885. p. 30) distinguished. Empress v. Janki (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 82) and Empress v. Bhairon (Weekly Notes, 1884, p. 37) referred to.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. MITTHU LAL, I. L. R., 8 All. 18 [Petheram, C.J. Oct. 26, 1885.]

THE first paragraph of s. 11 of the General Stamp Act (I. of 1879) applies to cases in which the instrument chargeable with duty may be stamped after execution. A bill for the monthly salary of a Government official was sent to the Treasury for payment, when it was discovered that the one-anna receipt stamp affixed thereto was not cancelled, and a prosecution was thereupon instituted by the Collector against the official in question, who had executed the instrument, under s. 62 of the General Stamp Act. The accused was convicted under that section by the Deputy Magistrate, and the District Magistrate on appeal, holding that, upon the evidence, the conviction should have been for abetment, and not for the principal offence,

Act 2. altered the finding accordingly to a conviction under s. 109 of the Penal Code, read with ss. 11 and 62 of the General Stamp Act. Held that the receipt to the salary-bill in question was an instrument which was required to be stamped before or at the time of execution, and was not of the kind contemplated by the first paragraph of s. 11 of the General Stamp Act; that consequently there was no abetment of any offence under ss. 11 and 62 of the Act; that the offence which appeared to have been committed was one under the 2nd paragraph of s. 61; but that, no sanction having been given by the Collector under s. 69 for a prosecution under s. 61, it was not advisable to interfere further than by setting aside the conviction and sentence.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAHAT ALI KHAN, I. L. R., 9 All. 210. [Edge, C.J. Nov. 30, 1886.]

M ACKNOWLEDGED receipt of a cheque for Rs. 100 by letter. The letter was not stamped. Held that M was properly convicted under s. 61 of the Indian Stamp Act, 1879.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. MUTTIRULANDI, I. L. R., 11 Mad. 329. [Collins, C.J., and Muttusami Ayyar, J. Oct. 20, 1887.]

A DISTRICT JUDGE impounded a partition-deed produced before him, and forwarded it to the Collector under s. 35 of the Stamp Act, 1879, being of opinion that the executant of the deed had committed an offence under s. 63. The Collector, under s. 69, sanctioned the prosecution of the executant, who was convicted by the Magistrate of an offence under s. 63 of the Act. On appeal the Sessions Court acquitted him on the ground that the Collector had not complied with s. 37 (b) or s. 40 of the Act. Held that the acquittal was wrong. Empress v. Dwarkanath Chowdhry (I. L. R., 2 Cal. 399), Empress v. Soddanund Mahanty (I. L. R., 8 Cal. 259), Empress v. Janki (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 82), considered.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. VENKATRAYADU, I. L. R., 12 Mad. 231. [Collins, C.J., and Wilkinson, J. Jan. 18, 1888.]

DOCUMENTS which are in form acknowledgments only are not converted into bonds as defined in s. 3, cl. 4 (b), of the Stamp Act (I. of 1870), merely because they contain memoranda as to the rate of interest at which the loan is made, and are attested by witnesses. No document can be a bond within the above section, unless it is one which, by itself, creates an obligation to pay the money.—HIRA LAL SIRCAR v. QUEEN-EMPRESS, I. L. R., 22 Cal. 757. [Petheram, C.J., and Beverley, J. May 10, 1895.]

THE amount payable on a conveyance under the Stamp Act, Sch. I., art. 21, is properly calculated on the consideration set forth therein, and not on the intrinsic value of the property conveyed.—REFERENCE UNDER STAMP ACT, s. 46, I. L. R., 20 Mad. 27. [Collins, C.J., and Subramania Ayyar and Davies, JJ. Sep. 5, 1896.]

UNDER s. 61 of Act I. of 1879, the "person accepting" a promissory note not duly stamped is the person who executes such note as acceptor, not a person who merely receives the note. The mere receiver of an unstamped or insufficiently stamped promissory note is not as such liable to any penalty under this section either as principal or abettor. Queen v. Gulam Husain Saheb (I. L. R., 7 Mad. 71), The Queen v. Nadi Chand Peddar (24 W. R. 1), Empress v. Janki (I. L. R., 7 Bom. 82), and Empress v. Gopal Das (Weekly Notes, 1883, p. 145), referred to.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. NIHAL CHAND, I. L. R., 20 All. 440. [Aikman, J. May 26, 1898.]

A made a payment of Rs. 22 to B. At A's request, C made a memorandum in writing to the following effect: "B has received Rs. 22," but affixed no stamp to it. He was charged and convicted, under s. 61 of the Stamp Act (I. of 1879), for not affixing a receipt-stamp to the memorandum. Held (reversing the conviction) that the memorandum was not a receipt. To constitute a receipt within the meaning of s. 3 (17) of the Stamp Act, there must be an acknowledgment, either express or implied, of the receipt, and not a mere statement that money was received.—In re JAMNADAS HARINARAN, I. L. R., 23 Bom. 54. [Parsons and Ranade, JJ. Dec. 26, 1897.]

THE expression "signing otherwise than as a witness, etc.," as used in s. 61 of the Stamp Act, means the writing of a person's name by himself or by his authority, with the intent of authenticating a document as being that of the person whose name is so written. An ordinary agent authorized to sign on behalf of his principal would fall within this description, and consequently within the purview of the section. Where, therefore, a person signed a firm's name to certain letters under the authority of the firm, the circumstance that the body of the letters were written at the dictation of the manager of the firm was held not to be sufficient to distinguish his case from that of any other agent. The term "person" in sections 61 and 64 of the Stamp Act, includes the members of a trading partnership. So where certain persons, members of a firm carrying on business in Calcutta as general dealers (which firm had acknowledged the receipt of certain sums of money from one L, and had refused to grant him a stamped receipt), were charged under section 61 of the Stamp Act with having granted an unstamped receipt, and under section 64 of that Act with having refused to grant a duly stamped receipt, it was held that their liability depended on whether they were in contemplation of law the persons who signed the letters of acknowledgment or refusal to give the receipt, and not on whether they were present at the writing of the letters, or knew of the writing of them; provided that it was established by evidence that a requisition for a receipt had been made under section 58 of that Act.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KHETTER MOHUN CHOWDHRY, I. L. R., 27 Cal. 324. [Prinsep and Hill, JJ. Jan. 8, 1900.]

ART. 29 of Sch. I. of the Stamp Act (I. of 1879) applies to an instrument evidencing an agreement to secure the repayment of a loan, executed at the time the loan is made, and not to the case of an assignment by way of mortgage of a valuable security to secure a pre-existing debt. It contemplates an instrument contemporaneous with the advance and with the loan. For the purpose of ascertaining what stamp-duty is payable on an instrument alleged to be a mortgage, it is necessary to see if the instrument is a mortgage as defined in the Stamp Act.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. DEBENDRA KRISHNA MITTER, I. L. R., 27 Cal. 587. [Maclean, C.J., and Macpherson, J. Feb. 23, 1900.]

Two letters were written to petitioner in which the writer recommended him to advance sums of money to the bearers of the letters, and bound himself to repay those sums, if lent, in case of default on the part of the borrowers. The loans were made by petitioner, who kept the letters. A prosecution having been subsequently commenced against petitioner under section 67 of the Stamp Act, 1879, for defrauding Government of stamp revenue by an illegal device, and he having been convicted on the ground that when the loans were granted the documents became letters of guarantee, and as such liable to stamp duty: Held that the execution of a document which on its face required to be and was not stamped could not be said to be an act "contrivance or device not specially provided for by this Act or any other law for the time being in force;" and that punishment for the act of the executant of such a document, if it were punishable at all, was provided for under section 61 of the Stamp Act, 1879, and it could not therefore be dealt with under section 67. Also that the act of a person receiving an unstamped document might amount to abetment of an offence, having regard to section 61 of the Stamp Act, 1879, and to the definition of an "offence" in s. 40 of the Indian Penal Code, and, if so, would be an act provided for by "any other law for the time being in force," and so not within the terms of s. 67 of the Stamp Act, 1879.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SOMASUNDARAM CHETTI, I. L. R., 23 Mad. 155. [Subrahmania Ayyar, C.J., and O'Farrell, J. Aug. 24; Sep. 14, 19, 1899.]

PART II.

PRIVILEGES AND POWERS OF THE GOVERNMENT.

Exclusive privilege in respect of telegraphs and power to grant licenses.

4. Within British India, the Governor-General in Council shall have the exclusive privilege of establishing, maintaining, and working telegraphs:

Provided that the Governor-General in Council may grant a license, on such conditions and in consideration of such payments as he thinks fit, to any person to establish, maintain, or work a telegraph within any part of British India.

Power for Government to take possession of licensed telegraphs, and to order interception of messages.

5. (1) On the occurrence of any public emergency, or in the interest of the public safety, the Governor-General in Council or a Local Government, or any officer specially authorized in this behalf by the Governor-General in Council, may—

(a) take temporary possession of any telegraph established, maintained, or worked by any person licensed under this Act, or

(b) order that any message or class of message to or from any person or class of persons, or relating to any particular subject, brought for transmission by, or transmitted, or received by, any telegraph, shall not be transmitted, or shall be intercepted or detained, or shall be disclosed to the Government or an officer thereof, mentioned in the order.

(2) If any doubt arises as to the existence of a public emergency, or whether any act done under sub-section (1) was in the interest of the public safety, a certificate signed by a Secretary to the Government of India or to the Local Government shall be conclusive proof on the point.

Power to establish telegraph on land of Railway Company.

6. Any Railway Company, on being required so to do by the Governor-General in Council, shall permit the Government to establish and maintain a telegraph upon any part of the land of the Company, and shall give every reasonable facility for working the same.

Power to make rules for the conduct of telegraphs.

7. (1) The Governor-General in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, make rules* consistent with this Act for the conduct of all or any telegraphs established, maintained, or worked by the Government or by persons licensed under this Act.

(2) Rules under this section may provide for all or any of the following, among other matters, that is to say:—

---

* For rules framed under this section, see Gazette of India, 1897, Pt. I., p. 559, and ibid, 1898, Pt. I., p. 139.

(a) the rates at which, and the other conditions and restrictions subject to which, messages shall be transmitted;

(b) the precautions to be taken for preventing the improper interception or disclosure of messages;

(c) the period for which, and the conditions subject to which, telegrams and other documents belonging to, or being in the custody of, telegraph-officers shall be preserved; and

(d) the fees to be charged for searching for telegrams or other documents in the custody of any telegraph-officer.

(3) When making rules for the conduct of any telegraph established, maintained, or worked by any person licensed under this Act, the Governor-General in Council may, by the rules, prescribe fines for any breach of the same:

Provided that the fines so prescribed shall not exceed the following limits, namely:—

(i) when the person licensed under this Act is punishable for the breach, one thousand rupees; and, in the case of a continuing breach, a further fine of two hundred rupees for every day after the first during the whole or any part of which the breach continues;

(ii) when a servant of the person so licensed, or any other person, is punishable for the breach, one-fourth of the amounts specified in clause i.

Revocation of licenses.

8. The Governor-General in Council may, at any time, revoke any license granted under section 4, on the breach of any of the conditions therein contained, or in default of payment of any consideration payable thereunder.

Government not responsible for loss or damage.

9. The Secretary of State for India in Council shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in consequence of any telegraph-officer failing in his duty with respect to the receipt, transmission, or delivery of any message; and no such officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage, unless he causes the same negligently, maliciously, or fraudulently.

PART III.

POWER TO PLACE TELEGRAPH LINES AND POSTS.

Power for telegraph-authority to place and maintain telegraph lines and posts.

10. The telegraph-authority may, from time to time, place and maintain a telegraph-line under, over, along, or across, and posts in or upon, any immoveable property:

Provided that—

(a) the telegraph-authority shall not exercise the powers conferred by this section except for the purposes of a telegraph established or maintained by the Government, or to be so established or maintained;

(b) the Government shall not acquire any right other than that of user only in the property under, over, along, across, in, or upon which the telegraph-authority places any telegraph-line or post; and

* For power of Governor-General in Council to confer upon any public officer any of the powers of the telegraph-authority with respect to the placing of lines and posts, see the Electricity Act (XIII. of 1887), s. 6.

(c) except as hereinafter provided, the telegraph-authority shall not exercise those powers in respect of any property vested in or under the control or management of any local authority, without the permission of that authority; and

(d) in the exercise of the powers conferred by this section, the telegraph-authority shall do as little damage as possible; and, when it has exercised those powers in respect of any property other than that referred to in clause (c), shall pay full compensation to all persons interested for any damage sustained by them by reason of the exercise of those powers.

Power to enter on property in order to repair or remove telegraph-lines or posts.

11. The telegraph-authority may, at any time, for the purpose of examining, repairing, altering, or removing any telegraph-line or post, enter on the property under, over, along, across, in, or upon which the line or post has been placed.

Provisions applicable to Property vested in or under the Control or Management of Local Authorities.

Power for local authority to give permission under section 10, clause (c), subject to conditions.

12. Any permission given by a local authority under section 10, clause (c), may be given subject to such reasonable conditions as that authority thinks fit to impose, as to the payment of any expenses to which the authority will necessarily be put in consequence of the exercise of the powers conferred by that section, or as to the time or mode of execution of any work, or as to any other thing connected with or relative to any work undertaken by the telegraph-authority under those powers.

Power for local authority to require removal or alteration of telegraph-line or post.

13. When, under the foregoing provisions of this Act, a telegraph line or post has been placed by the telegraph-authority under, over, along, across, in, or upon any property vested in or under the control or management of a local authority, and the local authority, having regard to circumstances which have arisen since the telegraph-line or post was so placed, considers it expedient that it should be removed, or that its position should be altered, the local authority may require the telegraph-authority to remove it or alter its position, as the case may be.

Power to alter position of gas or water-pipes or drains.

14. The telegraph-authority may, for the purpose of exercising the powers conferred upon it by this Act in respect of any property vested in or under the control or management of a local authority, alter the position thereunder of any pipe (not being a main) for the supply of gas or water, or of any drain (not being a main drain):

Provided that—

(a) when the telegraph-authority desires to alter the position of any such pipe or drain, it shall give reasonable notice of its intention to do so, specifying the time at which it will begin to do so, to the local authority, and, when the pipe or drain is not under the control of the local authority, to the person under whose control the pipe or drain is;

(b) a local authority or person receiving notice under clause (a) may send a person to superintend the work, and the telegraph-authority shall execute the work to the reasonable satisfaction of the person so sent.

15. (1) If any dispute arises between the telegraph-authority and a local authority in consequence of the local authority refusing the permission referred to in section 10, clause (c), or prescribing any condition under section 12, or in consequence of the telegraph-authority omitting to comply with a requisition made under section 13, or otherwise in respect of the exercise of the powers conferred by this Act, it shall be determined by such officer as the Local Government may appoint either generally or specially in this behalf.

Disputes between telegraph-authority and local authority.

(2) An appeal from the determination of the officer so appointed shall lie to the Local Government; and the order of the Local Government shall be final.

Provisions applicable to other Property.

16. (1) If the exercise of the powers mentioned in section 10 in respect of property referred to in clause (d) of that section is resisted or obstructed, the District Magistrate may, in his discretion, order that the telegraph-authority shall be permitted to exercise them.

Exercise of powers conferred by section 10, and disputes as to compensation, in case of property other than that of a local authority.

(2) If, after the making of an order under sub-section (1), any person resists the exercise of those powers, or, having control over the property, does not give all facilities for their being exercised, he shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 188 of the Indian Penal Code.

(3) If any dispute arises concerning the sufficiency of the compensation to be paid under section 10, clause (d), it shall, on application for that purpose by either of the disputing parties to the District Judge within whose jurisdiction the property is situate, be determined by him.

(4) If any dispute arises as to the persons entitled to receive compensation, or as to the proportions in which the persons interested are entitled to share in it, the telegraph-authority may pay into the Court of the District Judge such amount as he deems sufficient, or, where all the disputing parties have in writing admitted the amount tendered to be sufficient, or the amount has been determined under sub-section (3), that amount; and the District Judge, after giving notice to the parties, and hearing such of them as desire to be heard, shall determine the persons entitled to receive the compensation, or, as the case may be the proportions in which the persons interested are entitled to share in it.

(5) Every determination of a dispute by a District Judge under sub-section (3) or sub-section (4) shall be final:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall affect the right of any person to recover by suit the whole or any part of any compensation paid by the telegraph-authority from the person who has received the same.

17. (1) When, under the foregoing provisions of this Act, a telegraph-line or post has been placed by the telegraph authority under, over, along, across, in, or upon any property not being property vested in or under the control or management of a local authority, and any person entitled to do so desires to deal with that property in such a manner as to render it necessary or convenient that the telegraph line or post should be removed to another part thereof, or to a higher or lower level or altered in form, he may require the telegraph-authority to remove or alter the line or post accordingly:

Removal or alteration of telegraph-line or post on property other than that of a local authority.

Provided that, if compensation has been paid under section 10, clause (d), he shall, when making the requisition, tender to the telegraph-authority the amount requisite to defray the expense of the removal or alteration, or half of the amount paid as compensation, whichever may be the smaller sum.

(2) If the telegraph-authority omits to comply with the requisition, the person making it may apply to the District Magistrate within whose jurisdiction the property is situate to order the removal or alteration.

(3) A District Magistrate receiving an application under sub-section (2) may, in his discretion, reject the same, or make an order, absolutely or subject to conditions, for the removal of the telegraph-line or post to any other part of the property, or to a higher or lower level, or for the alteration of its form, and the order so made shall be final.

Provisions applicable to all Property.

RULINGS UNDER THE WHIPPING ACT.

IN the case of adults on a first conviction, or in the case of juvenile offenders, whether for a first or any other offence, whipping can only be in lieu of any other punishment.—QUEEN v. ABDOOL KHITMUTGUR, W. R., 1864 (Cr.), 38. [Loch and Seton-Karr, JJ. July 5, 1864.]

MEANING of the words "execution shall be stayed," in s. 11, Act VI. of 1864.—PRO., JULY 25, 1864, 3 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 1.

WHIPPING cannot be added to a sentence of imprisonment in the case of a first conviction for the offence under punishment.—QUEEN v. KANTIRAM, 1 W. R. 24. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Nov. 18, 1864.]

S. 3, Act VI. of 1864, does not allow of whipping in addition to imprisonment in the case of a fresh conviction. House-breaking by night and theft form a single and entire offence, and cannot be punished separately. —QUEEN v. TONAOKOCH, 2 W. R. 63. [Jackson and Glover, JJ. April 19, 1865.]

AN Honorary Magistrate of Calcutta convicted the accused of receiving stolen property with a guilty knowledge, and sentenced him to two months' imprisonment, and at the expiration of the term of his imprisonment, to 20 stripes with a light rattan. Phear, J., in quashing the conviction, remarked: "This conviction is bad on the face of it, as well because it does not disclose that the Court had jurisdiction in respect of the subject-matter of the conviction, as because the sentence is illegal. The Act of the Legislature (XIII. of 1856), s. 27, directs imprisonment or whipping. There cannot be both imprisonment and whipping: the one is in lieu of the other."—QUEEN v. SPARK FYZO, Bourke's Rep. 269 (O.J.). [Phear, J. June 12, 1865.]

WHIPPING may be substituted for any other punishment for the offence of theft in a dwelling-house, etc.—QUEEN v. JUNGHOO KHAN, 3 W. R. 36. [Kemp, J. June 26, 1865.]

IN order to legalize whipping in addition to imprisonment in the case of a second conviction, the offence must be the same in both cases—QUEEN v. AMARUT SHEIKH, 4 W. R. 20. [Glover, J. Oct. 28, 1865.]

IN the case of a conviction of attempting to commit house-breaking by night with intent to commit theft, a sentence of whipping was annulled as being illegal.—REG. v. YELLA VALAD PARSHIA, 3 Bom. H. C. R. 37. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. Nov. 21, 1866.]

ON a reference by a Sessions Judge, under s. 434 of the Criminal Procedure Code, a sentence of whipping in addition to one of rigorous imprisonment, in the case of an offence specified in s. 2 of Act VI. of 1864, was annulled, as the offence was not committed after previous conviction.—REG. v. SURYA BIN KRISHNA MANDAVAKAR, 3 Bom. H. C. R 38. [Couch, C.J., and Newton and Warden, JJ. Dec. 12, 1866.]

ON a reference by a Sessions Judge, under s. 434 of the Criminal Procedure Code, a sentence of whipping in addition to one of rigorous imprisonment, in the case of an offence specified in s. 4 of Act VI. of 1864, was annulled, as the prisoner had not been previously convicted of the same offence—REG. v. BARJI VALAD BAPU, 4 Bom. H. C. R. 5. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. July 24, 1867.]

HELD by the majority that, when a person who has not been "previously convicted" (vide s. 4, Act VI. of 1864) is convicted at one time of two or more offences, it is illegal to sentence him to whipping for one of those offences, in addition to imprisonment or fine for the other or others; but it is not illegal to sentence him to one whipping in lieu of all other punishments. Held further

Act 6. that, when a person who has been "previously convicted" is convicted at one time of two or more offences, he may be punished with one, but only one, whipping in addition to any other punishment to which, under s. 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, he may be liable—NASSIR v. CHUNDER, 9 W. R. 41; B. L. R., Sup. Vol., 951. [Peacock, C.J., and Seton-Karr, Jackson, Phear, and Macpherson, JJ. Mar. 12, 1868.]

WHEN a prisoner, convicted of "house breaking in order to commit theft," and of "theft," both offences being portions of one continuous criminal act, was sentenced, on the first head of charge, to one year's rigorous imprisonment, under s. 457 of the Penal Code, and on the second head of charge to receive twenty stripes under s. 2 of the Whipping Act (VI. of 1864), the separate sentences (though not illegal) were disapproved of, as contrary to the spirit and intention of the Whipping Act.—REG. v. GENU BIN AKU, 5 Bom. H. C. R. 83. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. Sep. 16, 1868.]

UNDER Act VI. of 1864 (the Whipping Act) a juvenile offender means a person under the age of sixteen years.—REG. v. MUHAMMAD ALI VALAD ABDUL ALI, 8 Bom. H. C. R. 9. [Newton and Tucker, JJ. Oct. 12, 1868.]

A SENTENCE of whipping, founded on a previous conviction of the prisoner, is only warranted where the subsequent conviction is for the same specific offence as that in respect of which the previous conviction applied. A Sessions Judge has no power to suspend a sentence in a case in the absence of appeal.—PRO., OCT. 25, 1869, 5 Mad H. C. R. Ap. 1.

A SENTENCE of whipping under s. 4, Act VI. of 1864, can only be inflicted in addition to other punishment on a second conviction of the offences specified therein when the first offence was committed some time previous to the second conviction, though after the passing of the Penal Code.—QUEEN v. UDOY PUTNAICK, 12 W. R. 68, 4 B. L. R. A. Cr. 5. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Oct. 28, 1869.]

WHEN a person is convicted at one time of two or more offences punishable under the Penal Code, the Court is empowered to sentence the prisoner in the one case to rigorous imprisonment, and in the other case to whipping, under Act VI. of 1864.—PRO., FEB. 18, 1870, 5 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 18.

FOLLOWS the Full Bench decision ruling that, when a person who has been previously convicted (s. 4, Act VI. of 1864) is a second time convicted at one time of two or more offences, he may be punished with only one whipping in addition to any other punishment to which, under s. 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act XXV. of 1861), he may be liable.—RUTTEN BEWA v. BUHUR; JHOWLA v. BUHUR, 14 W. R. 7. [Loch and Hobhouse, JJ. June 18, 1870.]

A PRISONER convicted of "theft in a dwelling-house," who has previously been convicted of "simple theft" is not thereby rendered liable to whipping under Act VI. of 1864, s. 3.—REG. v. CHANGIA VALAD SHUMIA, 7 Bom. H. C. R. 68. [Westropp, C.J., and Gibbs and Lloyd, JJ. Sep. 22, 1870.]

THE Magistrate convicted the accused under s. 380 of the Penal Code, and a previous conviction having been proved under s. 379 of the Penal Code, sentence of imprisonment and whipping was passed. Held that, in order to justify the sentence of whipping, the previous conviction should have been in respect of the same specific offence.—PRO., OCT. 28, 1870, 5 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 38.

S. 3 of Act VI. of 1864 (the Whipping Act) applies to juvenile as well as to adult offenders. That section does not apply to cases in which the second conviction is for an offence committed previously to the first conviction.—REG. v. KUSA VALAD LAKHSMAN, 7 Bom. H. C. R. 70. [Gibbs and Melvill, JJ. Nov. 17, 1870.]

A DEPUTY Magistrate passed a sentence of six months' rigorous imprisonment and whipping of 20 stripes on a person whom he convicted of house-breaking. The Sessions Judge on appeal set aside the sentence of whipping, and commuted that portion of the sentence into one of rigorous imprisonment for three months. Held that the Sessions Judge acted rightly in setting aside the sentence of whipping, as the conviction was a first conviction of the offence; but that the commutation of the sentence of whipping into one of three months' rigorous imprisonment amounted to an enhancement of the sentence which had been passed by the Deputy Magistrate, and was therefore illegal, having regard to s. 419 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The High Court accordingly set aside the sentence of three months' additional rigorous imprisonment. Per Mitter, J.—S. 12 of the Whipping Act (VI. of 1864) refers to the Court by which a case is tried in the first instance, and not to a Court of appeal. Quære.—Can a sentence of fine be substituted for one of imprisonment.—QUEEN v. BUNDA ALI, 15 W. R. 7; 6 B. L. R. Ap. 95. [Loch and Mitter, JJ. Jan. 24, 1871.]

As a rule, before flogging is given as an additional punishment, there ought to be formal evidence upon the record of the previous convictions relied on. The conviction and identity of the prisoner ought to be proved in the regular way. A mere kaifiat is no evidence whatever.—QUEEN v. NUZER NUSHYO, 15 W. R. 52. [Bayley and Macpherson, JJ. April 21, 1871.]

HELD (Kemp and Phear, JJ., dissenting) that, notwithstanding s. 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act XXV. of 1861), a person convicted at the same time of two or more offences punishable under the Penal Code may, in addition to the punishments prescribed by the Penal Code, be sentenced to whipping under Act VI. of 1864. The Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure must be read as if the Whipping Act formed a part of the Penal Code from the date of its enactment, and s. 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is applicable to all offences and punishments as prescribed by the Penal Code in its present and amended form.—MONIRUDDEEN SHAMADAR v. GOUR CHUNDER SHAMADAR, 15 W. R 89; 7 B. L. R. 165. [Norman, Offg C.J., and Loch, Bayley, Kemp, Phear, Macpherson, and Mitter, JJ. May 30, 1871.]

A SENTENCE of flogging cannot be carried out after the expiration of the limit of 15 days from date of sentence provided in s 9 of Act VI. of 1864.—PRO., Nov. 13, 1871, 6 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 38.

IN passing a sentence of whipping in addition to six months' imprisonment, a Deputy Magistrate ordered that the prisoner should be brought before him at the termination of the imprisonment and that the sentence of whipping should then be carried out. On the recommendation of the Sessions Judge (who referred to ss 305 and 310, Act X. of 1872), the High Court cancelled the sentence of whipping as having become inoperative and incapable of being carried out.—HUR CHUNDER KULAL v. JUFER ALI, 20 W. R. 72 [Macpherson and Morris, JJ. Oct. 24, 1873.]

A SENTENCE of whipping cannot, with reference to Act VI. of 1864, s. 7, be passed on a conviction for theft under s. 379, Penal Code, as the former section only provides for sentences of imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years. The fact of previous conviction should, under Act X. of 1872, s. 439, be stated in the charge, when it is intended to prove them for the purpose of enhancing punishment. The question of proof of previous conviction is one of fact which ought to go to the jury, and must be determined by a jury.—QUEEN v. ESAN CHUNDER DEY, 21 W. R. 40. [Jackson and Ainslie, JJ. Feb. 5, 1874.]

UNDER Act VI. of 1864, s. 7, a sentence of whipping cannot be superadded to one of imprisonment where the imprisonment is for more than five years. A Sessions Judge has no power under s. 464, Code of Criminal Procedure, to alter or set aside a conviction and sentence once made and signed by him.—QUEEN v. PORAN MAL, 23 W. R. 49. [Kemp and Morris, JJ. Mar. 19, 1875.]

A SENTENCE of whipping passed on a person who is already under sentence of death or transportation or penal servitude, or imprisonment for more than five years, is illegal. If the sentence of whipping precede, instead of follow, the other sentence, the passing of the latter sentence renders the infliction of the whipping illegal.—PRO., APL. 19, 1876, I L. R., 1 Mad. 56. [Morgan, C.J., and Holloway, Innes, Kernan, and Kindersley, JJ.]

P WAS convicted by a Magistrate of the first class of dishonestly receiving stolen property. He confessed on his trial that he had twice previously been convicted of theft. He was sentenced to be whipped, to be rigorously imprisoned, and, on the expiration of the term of imprisonment, to furnish security for good behaviour. Held that the offence of theft not being the same offence as that of dishonestly receiving stolen property, the punishment of whipping was illegal. Held also, with some hesitation, that there was evidence as to general character adduced before the Magistrate which justified him in dealing with P under s. 505 of Act X. of 1872. Held also that the order requiring security should not have formed part of the sentence for the offence of which P was convicted. A proceeding should have been drawn out, representing that the Magistrate was satisfied, from the evidence as to general character adduced before him in the case, that P was by repute an offender within the terms of s. 505 of Act X. of 1872, and therefore security would be required from him, and an order should have been recorded to the effect that, on the expiry of imprisonment, P should be brought up for the purpose of being bound.—EMPRESS v. PARTAB, I. L. R., 1 All. 666. [Spankie, J. May 20, 1878.]

WHEN an accused person is liable to be punished under the Whipping Act, 1864, the charge must state the liability, and the judgment should set out the grounds thereof, when that punishment is imposed.—BADYA v. REG., I. L. R., 5 Mad. 158. [Innes, J. Mar. 15, 1882.]

Act V.

A PERSON appointed a Magistrate of the second class under Act X. of 1872 is incompetent, since the coming into force of Act X. of 1882, to pass a sentence of whipping, unless he is specially empowered so to do according to the provisions of s. 32 of the latter Act.—EMPRESS v. BHAGVANT RAVJI, I. L. R., 7 Bom. 303. [Kemball and Pinhey, JJ. Mar. 20, 1883.]

BY the term "juvenile offender" in s. 5, Act VI. of 1864 (Whipping Act), is meant an offender under the age of sixteen years. Reg. v. Mahammad Ali (8 Bom. H C R. 9) referred to.—EMPRESS v. DIN ALI I L. R., 6 All. 482. [Duthoit J. June 14, 1884.]

A COURT has no power, under s. 395 of the Criminal Procedure Code, to revise its sentence of whipping by inflicting a fine. In cases where the sentence of whipping cannot be carried out, all that the Court can do is either to remit the whipping altogether, or to sentence the offender, in lieu of such whipping, or of so much of the sentence of whipping as was not carried out, to imprisonment, &c. The word "imprisonment" in s. 395 of the Criminal Procedure Code means a substantive sentence of imprisonment, and not imprisonment for default in payment of a fine.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SHEODIN, I. L. R., 11 All. 308. [Straight, J. Jan. 5, 1889.]

WHEN an accused person is sentenced to whipping under s. 2 of the Whipping Act (VI. of 1864), the punishment of fine or imprisonment, or both, cannot be legally inflicted under the Penal Code in addition to the whipping. The word "punishment" in s. 2 of the Act means the total of punishments awardable under the Penal Code.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. DAGADU, I. L. R., 16 Bom. 357. [Jardine and Parsons, JJ. Aug. 6, 1891.]

THE INDIAN PENAL CODE.

ACT NO. XLV. OF 1860.*

---

CHAPTER I.

INTRODUCTION.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide a General Penal Code for British India: It is enacted as follows:—

Title and extent of operation of the Code.

1. This Act shall be called "The Indian Penal Code," and shall take effect . . . † throughout the whole of the territories which are or may become vested in Her Majesty by

---

* All offences under the Penal Code are to be enquired into and tried according to the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898).—See ss 5 and 28 of Act V. of 1898.

The Penal Code is superseded by the Sindh Frontier Regulation (V. of 1872), s. 11, in so far as that Regulation is inconsistent with it.

As to offences which may be tried summarily, see ss. 260 and 261 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V. of 1898).

The Penal Code has been applied to offences committed before the 1st January 1862—

(1) in the Punjab, by Act IV of 1872, s. 39
(2) in Ajmere-Merwara, by Reg. III. of 1877, s. 29

The Code has been declared in force—

(1) in the Santhal Parganas, by Reg. III. of 1872, s. 3 as amended by Reg. III. of 1886
(2) in the Arakan Hill District, by Reg. IX. of 1874, s. 3
(3) in Upper Burma generally (except the Shan States) by the Burma Laws Act (XIII. of 1898), s 4 (1) and Sch. I.
(4) in British Baluchistan, by Reg. I. of 1890, s. 3.
(5) in Angul and the Khondmals, by Reg. I of 1894, s. 3:
(6) in the Kachin Hill-tracts, as regards hill-tribes (with modifications), by Reg. I. of 1895, s. 3.
(7) in Chin Hills as regards hill-tribes (with modifications), by Reg. V. of 1896.

The Code has been declared, by notification under s. 3 (a) of the Scheduled Districts Act (XIV. of 1874), to be in force in the following Scheduled Districts, namely:—

(1) the N.-W. P. Tarai Districts (see Gazette of India, 1876, Pt. I., p. 505); and
(2) the Districts of Hazaribagh, Lohardaga now called the Ranchi District, see Calcutta Gazette, 1899, Pt. I., p. 44], and Manbhum, and Pargana Dhalbhum, and the Kolhan in the District of Singbhum (see Gazette of India, 1881, Pt. I., p. 504).

By notification under ss. 3 and 5A of the same Act it has been declared in force in the Pargana of Manpur, in Central India (see Gazette of India, 1899, Pt. II., p. 419). It has been extended, under s. 5 of the same Act, to the Lushai Hills (see Notification No. 923-P., Gazette of India, 1898, Pt. II., p. 345).

† In s. 1, the words and figures, "on and from the first day of May, 1861," repealed by the Repealing and Amending Act (XII. of 1891), Sch. I., have here been omitted.

the Statute 21 and 22 Victoria, chapter 106,* entitled "An Act for the Better Government of India." . . . .†

Penal Code extended to Straits Settlements.—Act V. of 1867 extends the Penal Code to the Straits Settlements.

Duty of Magistrate where it is doubtful whether an offence has been committed in British or Foreign Territory.—In a case where it is doubtful whether the offence is committed in British or Foreign Territory, the question of jurisdiction cannot be fully determined, unless the Magistrate proceeds with the investigation, and states what in his opinion is proved by the evidence of the witnesses.—MOTEE CHAND BABOO ON BEHALF OF HORIK CHAND BABOO v. MOHENDRONATH HALDAR, 9 W. R. 29 [Kemp and Jackson, JJ. March 7, 1868.]

Tributary Mehal of Mohurbhunj: British Courts have no jurisdiction to try offences committed in.—A British subject, residing in Midnapore, in Bengal, was charged before the Maharaja of Mohurbhunj with having committed the offence of defamation in Mohurbhunj in the Tributary Mehals. On an application made by the accused to the Magistrate of Midnapore, objecting to be tried by the Raja of Mohurbhunj, the Commissioner of Cuttack, who was also Superintendent of the Tributary Mehals, directed that the case should be transferred to Midnapore, and tried by the Magistrate of that district, who had the power of an Assistant Superintendent of the Tributary Mehals. The accused, while being tried, moved the High Court to set aside the proceedings at Midnapore, on the ground that, the offence not having been committed within the district, the Magistrate was acting without jurisdiction. Held that the proceedings were without jurisdiction. Per Cunningham, J.—The Tributary Mehals are now, as they were in 1874, a portion of British India, which the Government of India has been pleased to exempt from the ordinary law and jurisdiction of the Courts, and to govern by means of special officials and enactments. Whatever may be the powers of Government as to Mohurbhunj, those powers do not extend to empowering the legally-constituted tribunals of a British district to follow in that district, and in the case of residents in it, any procedure, and to exercise any other jurisdiction than that created by the law. Per Prinsep, J.—The territory of Mohurbhunj is a part of British India, but at present not subject to any laws not specially extended to it. The Tributary Mehals being British India, and being excluded from the operation of all the laws in force in British India, unless expressly extended to them, the orders of Government conferring powers on particular officers over criminal offences committed within those Mehals are ultra vires.—HURSEE MAHAPATRO v. DINOBUNDO PATRO, I. L. R., 7 Cal. 523. [Cunningham and Prinsep, JJ. July 13, 1881.]

A conviction in British India for an offence committed without the limits of British India is good.—The prisoners, residents of the district of Singbhum, a district in British India, were convicted, under s. 331 of the Penal Code, at Singbhum, of an offence committed in Mohurbhunj. Per Garth, C.J., and Pontifex and Morris, JJ.—The territory of Mohurbhunj is not within the limits of British India; but, under the provisions of s. 9 of Act XXI. of 1879, a conviction in British India for an offence committed without the limits of British India is good. Per Mitter, J.—Mohurbhunj is within the limits of British India, but seeing that the Tributary Mehals constitute a 'district' within the meaning of the Criminal Procedure Code, and that the superintendent of these mehals has been vested with the powers of a Sessions Judge under an order of the Government of India, a conviction under the Penal Code (having regard to the provisions of s. 70 of the Criminal Procedure Code) ought not to be set aside. Per Prinsep, J.—Mohurbhunj is within the limits of British India; but the Acts which extend to British India do not extend to Mohurbhunj. The territory having been expressly placed beyond the ordinary legislation, the law in force in British India cannot come into operation there until this exemption has been removed.—EMPRESS v. KESHUB MOHAJAN, and EMPRESS v. UDIT PRASAD, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 985. [Garth, C.J., and Pontifex, Morris, Mitter, and Prinsep, JJ. Mar. 11, 1882.]

Theft at Rajkot: Sessions Court at Thana has no jurisdiction to try accused for.—The civil station at Rajkot is not part of British India within the meaning of Stat. 21 and 22 Vict., c. 106. Where the accused, a subject of a Native State, committed theft at Rajkot civil station, and was found in possession of the stolen property at Thana, held that, as the offence was not committed in British India, and as the accused was the subject of a Native State, the Sessions Court at Thana had no jurisdiction to try the accused for theft, under s. 381 of the Penal Code. But it was competent to try him for dishonest retention of stolen property under s. 410 of the Penal Code as amended by Act VIII. of 1882.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. ABDUL LATIB valad ABDUL RAHIMAN, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 186. [Birdwood and Jardine, JJ. Nov. 24, 1885.]

* This Statute may now be cited as the Government of India Act, 1858.—See the Short Titles Act, 1896 (59 & 60 Vict., c. 14).

† In s. 1, the words, "except the Settlement of Prince of Wales's Island, Singapur, and Malacca," repealed by the Repealing and Amending Act (XII. of 1891), Sch. I., have here been omitted.

Island of Perim: Penal Code and Criminal Procedure Code extend to.—The island of Perim, having been occupied with a view to its permanent retention by officers of the Government of Bombay, became a part of British India within the definition of Stat 21 and 22 Vict., c. 106, and vested in Her Majesty along with the other Indian territories under that Act, which became law on 2nd September 1858 The Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860) and the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X of 1882) extend in their entirety to the whole of British India, and therefore to the island of Perim. S. 7 of the Criminal Procedure Code gives to the Local Government the power to alter the local limits of Sessions Divisions, and continues the Divisions existing when that Code came into force. A notification was issued by the Government of Bombay on the 6th May 1884 under the above section, including the island of Perim within the Sessions Division or District of Aden, and empowering the officer, from time to time, commanding the troops stationed at Perim, in virtue of his office, to exercise the powers of a Magistrate of the second class within the island, and to commit persons for trial to the Court of Session at Aden. Held, having regard to the language of the Aden Act (II of 1864), that, for the purposes of s. 7 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the Resident's Court at Aden might be considered as a Court of Session, and that the local area to which the Aden Act (II. of 1864) applied was the Sessions Division which was in existence at the date of the above notification, when the limits thereof were altered by the inclusion of the island of Perim A prisoner charged with having committed murder in the island of Perim was committed by the Magistrate at Perim to be tried before the Political Resident at Aden. Having been found guilty, and sentenced to death, he appealed to the High Court of Bombay. By the Aden Act (II. of 1864), s. 29, it is provided that "no appeal shall lie from an order or sentence passed by the Resident in any criminal case." The High Court, however, admitted the appeal, being doubtful as to whether the above provision applied to cases arising in the island of Perim.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. MANGAL TEKCHAND, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 258. [Birdwood and Jardine, JJ. Dec. 6, 1885.]

Island of Perim: Court of Political Resident at Aden has no jurisdiction over the.—Notwithstanding the notification of the Government of Bombay (No. 2336), dated the 6th May 1884, including the island of Perim within the Sessions Division and District of Aden, and empowering the officer in command of the troops stationed at Perim to commit persons for trial to the Court of Session at Aden, the Court of the Political Resident at Aden had no jurisdiction over the island of Perim, and the Political Resident at Aden was not a Judge of a Court of Session for that island. Where, therefore, a person charged with having committed murder at Perim was committed by the Magistrate at Perim for trial in the Court of the Political Resident at Aden, where he was convicted and sentenced to death, the conviction was annulled, and the prisoner was ordered to be retried before a Court of competent jurisdiction The island of Perim, although under the control of the Political Resident at Aden, cannot be regarded as part of Aden, and the provisions of the Aden Act (II. of 1864) are not in force at Perim Act II of 1864 did not create a separate Court of Session at Aden. The Court created was the Court of the Resident, and the powers of that Court and of a Court of Session are not commensurate.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. PRIVATE MANGAL TEKCHAND, I. L. R., 10 Bom. 263 [Birdwood and Jardine, JJ Jan. 25, 1886.]

Tributary Mehal of Kheonjur: Penal Code and Criminal Procedure Code not applicable to.—The Penal Code and Criminal Procedure Code have no application to the Tributary Mehal of Kheonjur, which is on precisely the same footing in that respect as Mohurbhunj. Certain persons, officers of the Maharaja of Kheonjur, one of whom was a resident of the Cuttack district, and the others residents of Kheonjur, were charged before the Deputy Magistrate of Tajpur with certain offences under the Penal Code. They were convicted, and on appeal to the Sessions Judge, the conviction was upheld. It was found by the Sessions Judge that the scene of the occurrence which gave rise to the charges was within the Territory of Kheonjur. Held that the Deputy Magistrate and Sessions Judge had no jurisdiction to try the case, and that the conviction must be set aside. Held further that ss. 182 and 531 of the Criminal Procedure Code had no application to the case. The words "local area" used in s. 182 only apply to a "local area" over which the Criminal Procedure Code applies, and not to a local area in a foreign country, or in other portions of the British Empire to which the Code has no application; and similarly s. 531 only refers to districts, divisions, sub-divisions, and local areas governed by the Code of Criminal Procedure.—IN THE MATTER OF BICHITRANUND DASS v. BHUGBUT PERAI; IN THE MATTER OF BICHITRANUND DASS v. DUKHAIJANA, I. L. R., 16 Cal. 667. [Prinsep and Hill, JJ. May 13, 1889.]

Penal Code and Criminal Procedure Code are in force in the Laccadive Islands: Conviction quashed, as procedure not observed.—The Scheduled Districts Act having been extended to the Laccadive Islands, but no notifications having been made under that Act with regard to the criminal law to be administered there, the Penal Code and the Criminal Procedure Code are in force. Accordingly, when the Sub-Collector of Malabar, as such, tried and sentenced certain persons on one of the Laccadive Islands, not observing the procedure prescribed by the Criminal Procedure Code, held that the proceedings were void, and should be quashed.—I. L. R., 13 Mad. 353. [Muttusami Ayyar and Weir, JJ. Mar. 10, 21, 1890.]

The Agency Tract of Vizagapatam: High Court has jurisdiction over.—The High Court set aside a conviction by the Agent to the Governor in Vizagapatam on a charge of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, and directed that the accused be tried in the Sessions Court at Vizagapatam on a charge of murder. The accused was tried accordingly, and was convicted of murder, and he appealed to the High Court. The Agency Tract of Vizagapatam is a scheduled district under Act XIV. of 1874, and the Governor in Council extended the operation of the Criminal Procedure Code of 1861 to it by a notification made under that Act in 1862. In 1863 the Governor in Council, by a notification under Act XXIV. of 1839, constituted the Agent a Sessions Judge under the Criminal Procedure Code. Held that the High Court had jurisdiction to direct that the accused be tried by the Sessions Judge under the provisions both of the Letters Patent, and of the Criminal Procedure Code.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. BUDARA JANNI, I. L. R., 14 Mad. 121. [Handley and Weir, JJ. Sep. 15, 23 1890.]

2. Every person shall be liable to punishment under this Code, and not otherwise, for every act or omission contrary to the provisions thereof, of which he shall be guilty within the said territories. . . . .*

Punishment of offences committed within the said territories.

Every person.—Stat. 3 and 4 Will. IV., c. 85, empowers the Governor-General in Council "to make laws and regulations for repealing, amending, or altering any laws or regulations whatever now in force, or hereafter to be in force, in the territories of India, or any part thereof, and to make laws and regulations for all persons, whether British or native foreigners or otherwise, and for all Courts of Justice, whether established by His Majesty's Charters or otherwise, and the jurisdictions thereof; and for all places and things whatsoever, within and throughout the whole and every part of the said territories; and for all servants of the said Company within the dominions of Princes and States in alliance with the said Company, except that he shall not have the power of making any laws or regulations which shall in any way repeal, vary, suspend, or affect any of the provisions of this Act, or any provisions of the Acts for punishing mutiny and desertion of officers and soldiers, whether in the service of Her Majesty or the said Company; or any provision or Act hereafter to be passed in anywise affecting the said Company or the said territories, or the inhabitants thereof; or any laws which shall in any way affect any prerogative of the Crown or the authority of Parliament, or any part of the unwritten laws or constitution of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, whereon may depend in any degree the allegiance of any person to the Crown of the United Kingdom or the sovereignty or dominion of the said Crown over any part of the said territories." The question of jurisdiction, however, is dealt with by the

* In s. 2, the words and figures, "on and from the first day of May, 1861," repealed by the Repealing and Amending Act (XII of 1891). Sch. I., have here been omitted. As to offences in territorial waters, see the Territorial Waters Jurisdiction Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict., c. 73).

Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X. of 1882, now Act V. of 1898).

And not otherwise.—By the expression, "and not otherwise," is meant that no person can be punished for any act which amounts to an offence under the Code otherwise than according to the provisions thereof, except when the same act is made punishable by some local or special law.—Commissioners' Second Rep, ss. 537, 538

Within the said territories.—Stat. 21 and 22 Vict., c. 106, s. 1, defines the territories throughout which this Act is to take effect to be all territories then in the possession or under the Government of the East India Company, and all territories which may become vested in Her Majesty by virtue of any rights vested in, or which might, but for the passing of that Act, have been exercised by, the said Company in relation to any territories.

Kidnapping from British territories: Conviction for murder committed in Kuch Behar by British subjects temporarily resident there.—The subject of an Independent State, though not amenable to the British Courts on a charge of culpable homicide committed out of British territories may be so amenable on a charge of kidnapping from those territories. The Calcutta High Court, under Act I. of 1849, confirmed the conviction of two persons for murder committed in the independent territory of Kuch Behar, they being British subjects, and only temporary residents of that State.—QUEEN v. DHURMONARAIN MOITRO, 1 W. R. 39. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Dec. 9 1864.]

When a subject of the British Government is liable to be tried by the Courts of this country.—A person who is admittedly a subject of the British Government is liable to be tried by the Courts of this country for acts done by him, whether wholly within or wholly without, or partly within and partly without, the British territory in India, provided they amount together to an offence under the Penal Code.—QUEEN v. MOULVIE AHMUDOOLLAH, 2 W. R. 60 [Trevor and Loch, JJ. April 13, 1865.]

Offence on high seas beyond three miles of shore: Charge and punishment according to English law; but trial according to procedure of local Court.—In prosecuting a British subject for an offence committed on board a British ship upon the high seas, held (dubitante, Phear, J.) that he must be charged with an offence under the English law; 2, that the punishment must be according to English law; 3, that the trial must be according to the procedure of the local Court. Therefore, where a British subject was charged before the High Court with having committed an offence under 7 Will. IV. and 1 Vict., c. 85, s. 2, on board a British ship, upon the high seas, within the admiralty juriadiction of the Court, and found guilty of an offence under 14 and 15 Vict., c. 19, s. 5, held that the conviction was good, and that the prisoner would be rightly punished with "rigorous imprisonment," which is defined by s. 53 of the Penal Code to be "imprisonment with hard labour," and that the trial had been rightly proceeded with under Act XIII. of 1865. It ought to appear upon the face of a charge that it had been delivered to the Clerk of the Crown by a Justice of the Peace or a Magistrate, but its not so appearing is a formal defect only, to which objection can only be taken under s. 41 of Act XVIII. of 1862 before the jury has been sworn, and it is not ground for arrest of judgment.—QUEEN v. THOMPSON, 1 B. L. R. O. Cr. 1. [Peacock, C.J., and Phear and Macpherson, JJ. Sep. 3, 1867]

Tindal of vessel convicted of criminal breach of trust committed in Goa: New trial.—Where a tindal of a small vessel had been convicted of criminal breach of trust which appeared to have been committed in the Portuguese possession of Goa, but no order was recorded by the Sessions Judge of Mangalore, who tried the case under s. 9 of Act I. of 1849, held that there ought to be a new trial—PRO., Jan. 10, 1870, 5 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 13.

British-born subject destroying British ship on high seas beyond three miles of shore. The substantive law applicable is the English law, but the procedure is the Indian law —The substantive law applicable to a British-born subject tried in the High Court of Judicature at Bombay for destroying a British ship on the high seas, at a distance of more than three miles from the shores of British India, is the English law, and not the Penal Code, notwithstanding the provisions of Stat. 30 and 31 Vict, c. 124, s. 11. The same substantive law is applicable to prisoners who conspire together in Bombay to destroy such ship on the high seas, and such ship is to be destroyed in consequence. The procedure applicable in such cases is the ordinary criminal procedure of the High Court The question whether the Indian Legislature has power to legislate with reference to offences committed on the high seas considered There is not any Act of the Indian Legislature now in force which provides for the offence of destroying a ship when committed at a greater distance than three miles from the coast, or for the abetment in British India of such an offence so committed.— REG. v. ELMSTONE WHITWELL, et al., 7 Bom. H. C.

R. 89. [Westropp, C.J., and Bayley and Green, JJ. July 30, 1870]

Offence committed on high seas within three miles of shore: Punishment under Penal Code.—An offence committed on the high seas, but within three miles from the coast of British India, as being committed within the territorial limits of British India, is punishable under the provisions of the Penal Code. The ordinary Criminal Courts of the country have jurisdiction over such offence by virtue of the Stat. 12 and 13 Vict., c. 96, ss. 2 and 3, extended to India by Stat. 23 and 24 Vict., c. 88. Semble.—The Governor-General of India in Council has no power to legislate for offences committed on the high seas outside the territorial limits of British India, though he has power to legislate in respect of offences committed on the high seas within three miles of its coasts. Meaning and effect of Stat. 12 and 13 Vict., c. 69, ss. 2 and 3, considered. Queen v. Thompson (1 B. L. R. O. Cr. 1) commented on. Where certain of the inhabitants of the village of Manori, in the Thana District, sallied out in boats, and pulled up and removed a number of fishing stakes lawfully fixed in the sea within three miles from the shore by the villagers of a neighbouring village, it was held (i) that a Magistrate, F. P., in the Thana District, had jurisdiction over the offenders; (ii) that the Penal Code was the substantive law applicable to the case; and (iii) that the offence amounted to mischief within the meaning of ss 425 and 427 of that Code.—REG. v. KASTYA RAMA, 8 Bom. H. C. R 63 [Kemball, J. Sep. 20 1871.]

Mysore no part of British India: Magistrate of Tellicherry has no jurisdiction to try a resident of Mysore for criminal acts done in Mysore.—The Madras High Court, having held in Reg. v. Watson that Mysore was no part of British India, held in a subsequent case that the Joint Magistrate of Tellicherry had no jurisdiction to try a resident of Mysore for criminal acts done in Mysore.—PRO., 1870, 21st November, 6 Mad. H. C. R 3.

Where special law provides punishment, but not Penal Code.—Where there is no provision in the Penal Code, and any other law provides punishment for an offence, any person committing such offence may be tried under that law.—MESSRS WATSON & Co. v. BAIKANT NATH DASS, 14 W. R. 80. [Bayley and Paul, JJ. Dec. 12, 1870.]

What led to the passing of the Territorial Waters Jurisdiction Act 1878 (41 and 42 Vict., c. 73).—In 1876, in the case of Queen v. Keyn (L. R., 2 Ex. D. 63), the accused, who was a foreigner in command of a foreign ship, ran, while passing within three miles of the shore of England, on a voyage to a foreign port, into a British ship, and sank her, thereby causing a passenger to be drowned. The accused was thereupon charged with manslaughter; but it was held that the English Courts had no jurisdiction to try him. In consequence of this ruling, the Territorial Waters Jurisdiction Act, 1878 (41 and 42 Vict., c. 73) was passed, enacting (s 2) that "an offence committed by a person, whether he is or is not a subject of Her Majesty, on the open sea, within the territorial waters of Her Majesty's dominions, is an offence within the jurisdiction of the Admiral, although it may have been committed on board or by means of a foreign ship, and the person who committed such offence may be arrested, tried, and punished accordingly."

Conviction for murder committed in 1861 set aside.—A prisoner was found guilty, and sentenced, under Reg. IV. of 1797, to transportation for life, for a murder committed in 1861, before the Penal Code came into operation, and the case was sent up to the High Court to confirm the sentence. Reg. IV. of 1797 was repealed by Act XVII. of 1862, and that Act was wholly repealed by Acts VIII. of 1868 and X. of 1872. Held, on a reference to a Full Bench, that the conviction was illegal, s. 6 of Act I. of 1868, which provides that the repeal of any Act or Regulation shall not affect any offence committed before the repealing Act shall have come into operation, not being applicable.—EMPRESS v. DILJOUR MOSER, I L. R., 2 Cal. 225. [Garth C.J., and Kemp, Macpherson, Markby, and Ainslie, JJ. Feb. 20, 1877]

Person committing murder in 1855 punishable under Regulations.—Up to the 1st January 1862, a person committing the offence of murder was liable to trial and punishment under the Regulations. By Act XVII. of 1862, the Regulations prescribing punishments for offences were repealed, 'except as to any offence committed before the 1st January 1862" By the same Act it was declared that no person who should claim the same should be deprived of any right of appeal or reference which he would have enjoyed under such Regulations. By s 6 of Act I. of 1868, the repeal of an Act does not affect anything done, or any offence committed, or any fine or penalty incurred before the repealing Act shall have come into operation Under the provisions of this section the repeal of Act VII. of 1862 by Act VIII of 1868 and Act X. of 1872 did not, in respect of offences committed before the 1st January 1862, affect the penalties prescribed by such Regulations, nor were any of the Regulations prescribing punishments for offences, which were in force before the passing of Act XVII. of 1862, repealed in respect of offences committed before the 1st January 1862, prior to the passing of Act I. of 1868. Held, accordingly, where a person committed murder in the year 1855, that such person was punishable under the Regulations. Held also that, inasmuch as such right as the right of reference given by s 3 of Reg. IV. of 1797 accrues on conviction, and therefore in the present case had not accrued before Act XVII. of 1862 was repealed, it is doubtful whether a person convicted of murder committed before the 1st January 1862 has such right.—EMPRESS v. MULUA, I. Bills of exchange stolen at Mauritius, where Penal Code not in force Such Bills of exchange cannot therefore be regarded as stolen property: Conviction quashed.—The prisoner was tried at Bombay, under s. 411 of the Penal Code, on a charge of having dishonestly received and retained stolen property, knowing or having reason to believe the same to be stolen property. He was also charged, under ss. 108 (expl. 3) and 109, with having abetted that offence. It appeared at the trial that the prisoner was a clerk in the employment of a mercantile firm at Port Louis, in the island of Mauritius. On the 29th October and the 1st November 1879, certain letters addressed by the firm to their commission-agent at Bombay were abstracted from the post-office at Port Louis. The letters contained six bills of exchange belonging to the firm for an aggregate amount of Rs. 26 550. On the 1st November 1879, the prisoner sent all six bills of exchange in a letter to the manager of a bank at Bombay, requesting that the several amounts might be collected on the prisoner's own account, and remitted to him by bills on Mauritius. The sums were accordingly realized by the bank, and duly remitted to the prisoner. It was not denied that the prisoner obtained possession of the money, and used it as his own. His defence was that the bills had been given to him in payment of a debt. The prisoner was convicted on all the charges; but the jurisdiction of the Court having been challenged on his behalf, the question was reserved. Held per Sargent and Melvill, JJ. (West J., dissentiente), "that the bills of exchange, having been stolen at Mauritius, in which island the Penal Code is not in force, could not be regarded as 'stolen property' within the provisions of s. 410, so as to render the person receiving them at Bombay liable under s. 411; that the High Court of Bombay had, therefore, no jurisdiction; and that the conviction must be quashed." Previously to the trial at the Sessions the prisoner had applied to the Court for commissions to Pondicherry and Mauritius to take evidence on his behalf. The application was refused on the ground that the High Court had no authority to issue a commission in such a case, but the learned Judge (West, J) reserved the question for the Full Court. Held that the High Court had no power to issue a commission out of the jurisdiction in a criminal case on an application by the accused.—EMPRESS v. S. A carrier entrusted with rice at a port in British India to convey it to another port in British India took it to a port in foreign territory, and there sold it: Conviction for criminal breach of trust as carrier set aside —B, entrusted with rice at M (a port in British India) for conveyance to C (also a port in British India), took the rice to G, a port in foreign territory, and there sold it. He was convicted at M of criminal breach of trust as a carrier under s. 407 of the Penal Code. Held that the Sessions Court at M had no jurisdiction to try the offence under the Code of Criminal Procedure. Held also that no offence was committed on the high seas so as to give the Court jurisdiction under 12 & 13 Vict., c. 29, extended by 23 & 24 Vict., c. 88.—BAPU DALDI v. REG., I L. Penal Code and Criminal Procedure Code are in force in the Laccadive Islands: Conviction quashed as procedure not observed.—The Scheduled Districts Act having been extended to the Laccadive Islands, but no notifications having been made under that Act with regard to the criminal law to be administered there, the Penal Code and the Criminal Procedure Code are in force. Accordingly, when the Sub-Collector of Malabar, as such, tried and sentenced certain persons on one of the Laccadive Islands, not observing the procedure prescribed by the Criminal Procedure Code, held that the proceedings were void, and should be quashed.—I. Foreigners Act (III. of 1864): Powers of legislation of the Governor-General in

Council.—On the 3rd July 1894, certain foreigners resident in Bombay having been arrested by the police, and sent to jail under warrants issued under ss. 3 and 4 of the Foreigners Act (III. of 1864), they applied to the High Court, and obtained a rule nisi under s. 491 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1882), and under Stat. 31 Car. II., c. 2 (Habeas Corpus Act), calling on the Superintendent of the Jail to show cause why they should not be set at liberty. In the affidavits filed in showing cause against the rule, the only reason suggested for their arrest was that they were connected with loose women residing in a certain district of Bombay. It was contended for the prisoners that their arrest and imprisonment were illegal—(1) inasmuch as Act III. of 1864 was ultra vires of the Indian Legislature; (2) that the Act, being intended only to secure the "peace and security" of British India, was in this case improperly applied. Held (1) that Act III. of 1864 was not ultra vires of the Governor General of India in Council; (2) that it was rightly applied in the case of the foreigners in question, although their residing in Bombay may not have been likely to have affected or endangered the peace and security of British India. Per Starling, J.—S. 3 of Act III of 1864 gives the fullest power to the Government to order any foreigner to remove himself from British India. The Government is the sole judge of what is necessary for the peace and security of British India, and, if it acted in accordance with the letter of the Act, the Court could not inquire into the sufficiency of its reasons for so acting A separate warrant was issued in the case of each of the foreigners in question; and all were in the same form. The warrant directed the person whose name appeared in it forthwith to "remove himself from British India by sea," and it further contained the following words: "All officers to whom this order may be communicated are required to see that it is duly obeyed, and, in the event of its being infringed, to apprehend and detain the said ( ) in safe custody in the jail of Bombay under s. 4 of the said Act, until he shall be lawfully discharged therefrom." Each warrant was signed by the Secretary to Government, and was directed to the Commissioner of Police, and to the Superintendent of the Jail. Held that the warrants were not valid warrants for the following reasons: (1) They were irregular, in that they contained an order to the person named in them to do a certain thing with a further conditional order for his imprisonment in the event of his not doing it. There ought to have been a separate order to each prisoner to remove himself from British India, which order should have been duly served upon him. Then, in case of his refusal or neglect to comply with its terms, there ought to have been a further order by the Governor in Council authorizing his arrest and detention in jail. (2) The persons named in them were not indicated with sufficient certainty and particularity. The warrants contained no description of the persons against whom they purported to be directed, and did not give their place of residence. (3) By reason of the direction contained in them that the persons named in them were to remove themselves from British India by sea to the places mentioned in the warrant The particular route to be specified under s. 3 of Act III. of 1864 is intended to be a route in British India, and not a route beyond the high seas. The Government has no jurisdiction to direct a person's movements at sea beyond the limits of three miles from the shore. (4) Per Starling, J.—The warrants were also defective inasmuch as they bore no seal.—ALTER CAUFMAN v. THE GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY, I. L. R., 18 Bom 636 [Bayley, Acting C.J. and Starling, J. British-born subject destroying British ship on high seas beyond three miles of shore: The substantive law applicable is the English law, but the procedure is the Indian law.—The substantive law applicable to a British-born subject tried in the High Court of Judicature at Bombay for destroying a British ship on the high seas, at a distance of more than three miles from the shores of British India, is the English law, and not the Penal Code, notwithstanding the provisions of Stat. 30 and 31 Vict.,

* S. 3 relates to the extra-territorial operation of the Code.

† The words "for any act," &c., extend also to illegal omissions. See s. 32, infra.

c. 124, s. 11. The same substantive law is applicable to prisoners who conspire together in Bombay to destroy such ship on the high seas, and such ship is to be destroyed in consequence. The procedure applicable in such cases is the ordinary criminal procedure of the High Court. The question whether the Indian Legislature has power to legislate with reference to offences committed on the high seas considered. There is not any Act of the Indian Legislature now in force which provides for the offence of destroying a ship when committed at a greater distance than three miles from the coast, or for the abetment in British India of such an offence so committed.—REG. v. ELMSTONE WHITWELL, et. al., 7 Bom. Trial of British seamen for offences committed on British ship on the high seas.—A British seaman, who stood charged with the murder of a fellow-sailor on board a British ship on the high seas, was tried by a Judge of the High Court under the Code of Criminal Procedure; the chief evidence against the prisoner being that given in the depositions of the captain and second officer of the ship, taken on commission; this evidence was admitted in evidence, and the prisoner was convicted and sentenced. It was objected that, under s. 267 of the Merchant Shipping Act of 1854 (17 and 18 Vict., c. 104), the prisoner ought to have been tried in every respect as though the trial had been held at the Central Criminal Court in London, and that the law of evidence to be applied was that prevailing in England. Held, on a case certified by the Advocate-General under cl. 26 of the Letters Patent, 1865, that the prisoner had been properly tried according to the ordinary practice of the High Court, and that the evidence was admissible against him.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. BARTON, I. Law applicable to offence committed within three miles of Goa.—The rule laid down in Regina v. Elmstone (7 Bom. H. C Rep., C. C., 89), to the effect that English and not Indian law is applicable to offences committed on the high seas, is altered by Stat. 37 and 38 Vict., c. 27, which provides that such offences shall be tried and punished according to the local law. The accused, who was captain of a native craft, was charged with having dishonestly sold his cargo, and scuttled his ship in the course of a voyage from Aleppy to Bombay. The accused was arrested in the Ratnagiri District, and committed for trial to the Sessions Judge of Ratnagiri, who convicted him under ss. 407 and 437 of the Penal Code, and sentenced him to five years' rigorous imprisonment. In appeal the accused contended that the Sessions Judge of Ratnagiri had no jurisdiction to try the case, 1st, because the first offence, if it took place at all, was committed within the territorial waters of Goa, and, 2ndly, because the offence, if committed on the high seas, could only be tried according to the law of England, and not according to the Indian Penal Code. Held (1) that the Court at Ratnagiri had jurisdiction. If the offence were committed within three miles of Goa, the Treaty Act (IV. of 1880) between England and Portugal as regards the Goa territory conferred the right to try such cases in British India. (2) If the offence were committed beyond the three mile limit and on the high seas, the Court had jurisdiction, and the Indian Penal Code applied under the provisions of Stat. 30 and 31 Vict., c. 124, s. 11, and Stat. 37 and 38 Vict., c. 27.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SHEIK ABDOOL RAHIN, I. Offence committed on high seas beyond three miles of shore: Charge and punishment under English law: Procedure under Indian law.—The following is a true copy of a judgment delivered by the High Court on a reference. "This is a reference made by the Chief Presidency Magistrate for the town of Calcutta under s. 432, Code of Criminal Procedure. In it he states that Henry Thomson, steward of the British ship Lord Brassey, charged Captain Gunning, master of the said ship, with offences committed on the high seas under ss. 323 and 504, Indian Penal Code, and he asks whether the accused must be tried under the English law, or whether he can be tried under the Indian Penal Code. It would appear from the case of Queen v. Anderson (L. R., 1 Crown Cases Reserved, p. 161) that if Captain Gunning is guilty of any offences, it is because of the General Admiralty jurisdiction, or under 17 and 18 Vict., c. 104, s. 267, or 18 and 19 Vict., c. 91, s. 21. In each case the offence of which he must be tried is an offence under the English law. In the case of Queen v. Mount (L. R., C. P C., p. 283) a question arose, not as to the nature of the offence, but as to the amount of punishment that should be inflicted. All doubts on that point are now settled by 37 and 38 Vict., c. 27. The answer, therefore, is that the trial must be conducted under the Code of Criminal Procedure, though the offence charged must be an offence under the English law.—EMPRESS v. GUNNING, I. L. R., 21 Cal. 782. [O'Kinealy and Hill, JJ. April 24, 1894.]

"188. When a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty commits an offence at any place without and beyond the limits of British India, or

"(a) when any British subject commits an offence in the territories of any Native Prince or Chief in India, or

"(b) when a servant of the Queen (whether a British subject or not) commits an offence in the territories of any Native Prince or Chief in India,

"he may be dealt with in respect of such offence as if it had been committed at any place within British India at which he may be found:

"Provided that no charge as to any such offence shall be inquired into in British India unless the Political Agent, if there is one, for the territory in which the offence is alleged to have been committed, certifies that, in his opinion, the charge ought to be inquired into in British India; and where there is no Political Agent, the sanction of the Local Government shall be required:

"Provided, also, that any proceedings taken against any person under this section which would be a bar to subsequent proceedings against such person for the same offence, if such offence had been committed in British India, shall be a bar to further proceedings against him under the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879,‡ in respect of the same offence in any territory beyond the limits of British India.

"189. Whenever any such offence as is referred to in s 188 is being inquired into or tried, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, direct that copies of depositions made or exhibits produced before the Political Agent or a judicial officer in or for the territory in which such offence is alleged to have been committed, shall be received as evidence by the Court holding such inquiry or trial in any case in which such Court might issue a commission for taking evidence as to the matters to which such depositions or exhibits relate."

‡ Act XXI. of 1879.

High Court can try offences committed in Mysore.—The defendant, a European British subject, was charged with having committed three offences at Bangalore, punishable under the Penal Code. Held that the High Court has the same criminal jurisdiction which the late Supreme Court had, and that Bangalore being within the territories of the Maharaja of Mysore, a native prince in alliance with the Government of Madras, the defendant was subject to the jurisdiction of the High Court in respect of criminal offences committed in the territory of Mysore.—REG. v WATKINS, 2 Mad. H. C. R. 444. [Scotland, C.J. Nov. 4. 1865.]

Sessions Court of Bellary: Native subjects of the Jaghirdar or Raja of Sundoor: Offence committed in the plateau of Ramandroog.—The Sessions Court of Bellary has no jurisdiction under the Penal Code to try native subjects of the Jaghirdar or Raja of Sundoor for offences committed in the plateau of Ramandroog upon native inhabitants of the village of Ramandroog. Ramandroog is a portion of the territory of Sundoor, and the Raja is in the position of a native chief or ruler. A treaty entered into by the late Raja of Sundoor with the Government of Madras contained the following stipulation: "It being probable that, as European officers take up their residence on the said hill, many servants, tradesmen, private persons, and others, will reside there, I have relinquished to the Company's Government the police and magisterial functions of maintaining peace, and trying and punishing offences committed by such people such as violence, petty crimes, thefts, murder, &c. The Collector is to have jurisdiction in such matters." Held that this treaty did not give the Sessions Court of Bellary jurisdiction, but it surrendered exclusive criminal jurisdiction over a limited class of persons, namely, Europeans and their servants, and all other resident persons, not native subjects of the Raja, and left the Government unfettered to provide, in the way they deemed right, for the trial and punishment of offences committed by such persons.—REG. v. VENCANNA, 3 Mad. H. C. R. 354. [Scotland, C.J., Holloway and Collet, JJ. 1867.]

Foreign subject receiving stolen property outside British territories: Magistrate cannot try such subject.—S. 31 of the Criminal Procedure Code does not confer jurisdiction upon a Magistrate to try the subject of a Foreign State for "receiving stolen property," when the offence of receiving such property has been committed outside the British territories.—REG. v. BECHAR MAVA, 4 Bom. H. C. R. 38. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. Dec. 5. 1867.]

European British subject committing offence under Penal Code in the territories of a Native Prince in alliance with Government: High Court can try him.—The above section applies to servants of the Queen who commit offences against this Code within the dominions of any Prince or State in alliance with the Queen. The High Court has jurisdiction to try a European British subject for an offence against this Code committed in the territories of a Native Prince in alliance with Government on charges framed under this Code—REG. v. CHILL, 8 Bom. H. C. R. 92. [Sargent, J. July 3, 1871.]

Foreign subject residing in foreign territory instigated commission of offence, which was committed in British territory: British Courts no jurisdiction.—Where a foreign subject, resident in foreign territory, instigated the commission of an offence which, in consequence, was committed in British territory, held that the instigation not having taken place in any district created by the Code of Criminal Procedure, the instigator was not amenable to the jurisdiction of a British Court established under that Code, s. 66.—REG. v. PIRTAI, 10 Bom. H. C. R. 356. [Melvill and West, JJ. July 19, 1873.]

Dacoity at Velanpor, foreign territory: Retention of stolen property in British territory.—Where dacoity was committed at Velanpor, a village in the territory of H. H. the Gayakwad, and a part of the stolen property found, where it had been concealed by the accused in British territory, it was held that a conviction of dacoity could not be sustained, that being a substantive offence completed as soon as perpetrated at Velanpor; although, had Velanpor been in British territory, the subsequent acts in the process of taking away the property might, in the legal sense, have coalesced with the first and principal one so as to give jurisdiction under s. 67 of the Code of Criminal Procedure in each district into which the property was conveyed. But, on a conviction of retaining stolen property, the sentences awarded could, it was held, be sustained, the retaining having taken place in British territory.—REG. v. LAKHYA GOVIND, I. L. R., 1 Bom. 50. [West and Nanabhai Haridas, JJ. Oct. 18, 1875.] But see Empress v. Moorga Chetty, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 338, which overrules Reg. v. Lakhya Govind, I. L. Theft in foreign territory: Arrest of thief in British territory: No jurisdiction to try for theft.—The accused stole property in foreign territory, and was apprehended with it in his possession in a district in British territory. Held that s. 67 of Act X. of 1872 did not give the Courts of such district jurisdiction to try the prisoner for the theft.—REG. v. ADIVIGADU, I. L. R., 1 Mad. 171. [Holloway, Innes, and Kindersley, JJ. Oct. 31, 1876.]

High Court can try criminal cases sent from Zanzibar.—The High Court at Bombay has jurisdiction to try a prisoner accused of having committed murder at Zanzibar, and sent by the British Consul at Zanzibar for trial to Bombay. A prisoner accused of having committed murder at Zanzibar was sent by the British Consul there for trial before the High Court at Bombay. The Consul could not enforce the attendance of witnesses at Bombay, but he transmitted to the High Court the depositions which he had taken in the course of the inquiry he had held with regard to the commission of the alleged offence. In the absence of the witnesses, these depositions were tendered in evidence at the trial in Bombay. Held that the British Consul at Zanzibar was authorized to take the depositions, and that they were admissible in evidence at the trial under s. 33 of the Evidence Act (I. of 1872). —EMPRESS v. DOSSAJI GULAM HUSEIN, I. L. R., 3 Bom. 334. [Sargent, J. Dec. 3, 1878.]

Illegal commitment and conviction of European British subject in Mysore.—A European British subject, committed by a Justice of the Peace in Mysore for trial by the Judicial Commissioner of Mysore on a charge under s. 348 of the Penal Code, was convicted on 10th March 1880. Held that the commitment and conviction were illegal. Quære.—Whether, when a European British subject in Mysore, being a Christian, is accused of an offence not punishable with death or transportation for life, a commitment to the High Court at Madras would be legal?—WARD v. Offence committed in foreign territory by Native Indian subject.—A Native Indian subject of Her Majesty committed an offence (viz., theft in a dwelling-house) in the territory of a Native State in alliance with Her Majesty, and was discovered in the territory of another Native State in alliance with Her Majesty, and from there brought down, or came of his own accord, to Ahmedabad. A certificate was granted by the Political Agent that the offence ought, in his opinion, to be inquired into in British India. At Ahmedabad a preliminary inquiry was held by a Magistrate, who committed the accused for trial by the Court of Session. Held that the Sessions Court at Ahmedabad was competent to try the offence committed in foreign territory as if it had been committed in the Ahmedabad District under s. 9 of the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act (XXI. of 1879), for when the accused was brought from foreign territory to Ahmedabad, he was "found" at a place in British India within the meaning of the section. The expression "was found," used in this section, must be taken to mean, not where a person is discovered, but where he is actually present.—EMPRESS v. MAGANLAL, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 622. [Kemball and Pinhey, JJ. June 29, 1882.]

Dacoity committed in British territory: Dishonest receipt of stolen property in foreign territory.—Certain persons, who were not proved to be British subjects, were found in possession, in a Native State, of property the subject of a dacoity committed in British India. They were not proved to have taken part in the dacoity, and there was no evidence that they had received or retained any stolen property in British India. They were convicted of offences punishable under s. 412 of the Penal Code. Held that no offence was proved to have been committed within the jurisdiction of a British Court.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KIRPAL SINGH, I. L. R., 9 All. 523. [Edge, C.J. and Brodhurst, J. April 25, 1887.]

Jurisdiction of High Court over European British subjects in Bangalore.—The Civil and Military Station of Bangalore is not British territory, but a part of the Mysore State; and the Code of Criminal Procedure is in force therein by reason of declarations made by the Governor-General in Council, in exercise of powers conferred by the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879. Justices of the Peace for the State of Mysore are also Justices of the Peace for Bangalore, and both the Civil and Sessions Judge and the District Magistrate of Bangalore, being such Justices of the Peace, are, by virtue of s. 6 of the said Act, subordinate to the High Court at Madras. —In re HAYES, I. L. R., 12 Mad. 39. [Muttusami Ayyar and Parker, JJ. July 27, Aug. 1, 1888.]

Liability of native Indian subjects for offences committed out of British India.—The accused were charged under s. 407 of the Penal Code with committing criminal breach of trust in respect of certain property entrusted to them as carriers. They were all native Indian subjects of Her Majesty. The offence was alleged to have been committed in Portuguese territory, and they were found in a place in British territory. Held that, under s. 188 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1882), the accused could be tried in the place where they were found.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. DAYA BHIMA, I. L. R., 13 Bom. 147. [Birdwood and Parsons, JJ July 5, 1888.]

Offence committed in foreign territory: Trial without certificate of Political Agent.—A District Magistrate instituted criminal proceedings in British India against a native Indian subject of the Queen in respect of offences under ss. 419, 467, and 114 of the Penal Code, said to have been committed by him in French territory, without a certificate under s. 188 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X of 1882). The accused was committed to the Sessions Court. Held, although the District Magistrate was the Political Agent who might have certified under the Criminal Procedure Code, s. 188, that the proceedings were void for want of the certificate, and the commitment should be quashed.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KATHAPERUMAL, I. L. R., 13 Mad. 423. [Muttusami Ayyar and Shephard, JJ. Oct 11, 15, 1889.]

Jurisdiction of British Consular Court at Zanzibar over foreign subjects enjoying British protection.—The Greek residents at Zanzibar having been, by international action, placed under British protection, are liable to the British criminal law in force at Zanzibar. The accused, who was a Greek under British protection at Zanzibar, was convicted by the British Consular Court at Zanzibar of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, and sentenced to ten years' rigorous imprisonment under s 304 of the Penal Code. He appealed to the High Court of Bombay, contending (inter alia) that he was a Greek subject, and, as such, not liable to be tried by the Consular Court. Held that it was competent to Her Majesty to exercise jurisdiction in one foreign State over the subjects of another foreign State, that under s. 6, cl. b, of Her Majesty's Order in Council, dated 29th November 1884, the provisions referring to British subjects were applicable to foreigners enjoying British protection, in so far as by treaty, capitulation, grant, usage, sufferance, or other lawful means, Her Majesty had jurisdiction at Zanzibar in relation to such persons; and that the prisoner, being a British protected person within the meaning of s. 4, cl. b, of the Order, was amenable to the jurisdiction of the Consular Court.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. REGO MONTOPOULO, I. L. R., 19 Bom. 741. [Jardine and Ranade, JJ. Jan. 21, 1895.]

Kidnapping from lawful guardianship: Offence committed outside British territory: Absence of certificate of Political Agent.—The absence of the certificate of the Political Agent required by s. 188 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is an absolute bar to the trial of a case to which the provisions of that section apply. Semble—that the offence of kidnapping from lawful guardianship punishable under s 363 of the Penal Code is not a continuing offence.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAM SUNDAR, I. L. R., 19 All. 109. [Edge, C.J., and Blennerhassett, J. July 30, 1896.]

Uganda: Jurisdiction of Consular Court over persons not resident within a British Protectorate · Aiding the waging of war against a friendly power.—Two natives of a German Protectorate were convicted by the English Consular Court of Uganda of aiding and abetting the King of Unyoro in waging war against the King of Uganda and the Queen-Empress under ss. 48 and 50 of the Africa Order in Council of 1889 as supplemented by the Order of Council of 1892 and 1893. One of them was also convicted of slave-dealing. Held that the English Consular Court had no jurisdiction, inasmuch as the accused, even if subjects of a Signatory Power, were not resident, and their offences were not committed, within a British Protectorate. Held also that the alleged fact that the 'locus in quo' was in British military occupation gave no jurisdiction to the Consular Court.—IMPERATRIX v. JUMA, I. L. R., 22 Bom. 54 [Jardine and Ranade, JJ. March 17, 1896.]

Sentence imposed in British India postponed till expiry of a sentence imposed in Mysore.—It is competent to a Magistrate in British India to pass a sentence which should take effect after the expiration of a sentence in Mysore.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. VENKATARAM JETTI, I. L. R., 20 Mad. 444. [Collins, C.J., and Shephard, J. Jan. 14, 1897.]

Criminal jurisdiction along the railway through Indian Independent State.—The authority for the exercise of criminal jurisdiction by the Government of India upon lands within the limits of the Hyderabad State Railway is derived from a grant to that Government in 1887 by His Highness the Nizam as ruler of the territory. The railway lands remain part of his dominions. The grant of civil and criminal jurisdiction contained in the correspondence of that year between the Nizam's Minister and the Resident at Hyderabad is expressed to be "along the line of railway as is the case on other lines running through Independent States" This jurisdiction, notwithstanding any words in the Notification of the Government of India of the 22nd March 1888 (which could not of itself give any authority, or add to that granted by the Nizam), does not justify the arrest on the lands of the Hyderabad State Railway of a subject of the Nizam under the warrant of the Magistrate of a District in British India, on a charge of a criminal offence committed in British India, and unconnected with the Hyderabad Railway Administration. The mere presence of the accused on the railway lands, over which criminal jurisdiction had been granted as above, was no legal ground for his arrest under the warrant of the Court in British India, his offence, if committed at all, not having been committed on those lands, and not having been connected with the railway. —MUHAMMAD YUSF-UD-DIN v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS, I. L. R., 25 Cal. 20. [Chancellor, Watson, Hobhouse, Macnaghten, James, Couch, and Way, JJ. July 7, 1897.]

5. Nothing in this Act is intended to repeal, vary, suspend, or affect any of the provisions of the Statute 3 and 4 William IV., chapter 85,* or of any Act of Parliament passed after that Statute, in anywise affecting the East India Company, or the said territories or the inhabitants thereof; or any of the provisions of any Act† for punishing mutiny and desertion of officers and soldiers in the service of Her Majesty, . . . . ‡ or of any special or local law.§

Certain laws not to be affected by this Act.

Special and local law.—For definition of "special" and "local law," see ss 41, 42, Ch. II, infra.

Conviction under special law (Police Act) held good, though the facts would cover an offence under Penal Code.—A conviction under a special law (e.g., s. 29, Act V. of 1861) should not be quashed merely because the facts would cover an offence punishable under the Penal Code.—QUEEN v. KASSIMUDDIN, 8 W. R. 55; 4 Wyman's Rev., Civ., and Crim Rep. 17. [Jackson and Hobhouse, JJ. July 30, 1867.]

Conviction for making a false declaration under s. 465, Penal Code, though the offence also came under a special law, the Ship Registry Act.—When a prisoner was convicted of making a false declaration under s. 465 of the Penal Code, the High Court upheld the conviction, though the offence also came under a special law, the Ship Registry Act (X. of 1841), s. 5.—MAD. H. C. RULINGS of 1865 on s. 5.

Illegality of conviction under both the Penal Code and a special law in respect of one and the same offence.— A conviction under the Penal Code, and also under a special law, in respect of one and the same offence, is illegal.—QUEEN v. HUSSUN ALI, 5 N.-W. P. 49 [Turner, J. Feb. 22, 1873.]

Disobedience to summons of village-munsif: Charge laid and punished under s. 174, Penal Code, though it might have been dealt with under the Regulation — The provisions of s. 174 of the Penal Code are not in conflict with the special provisions of ss 15 and 16 of Reg. IV. of 1816 (Mad.). In ordinary cases disobedience to the summons of a village-munsif should be dealt with under the Regulation. But if a charge is laid under the Penal Code, the Criminal Court must deal with it.—QUEEN v. RAMACHANDRAPPA, I. L. R., 6 Mad. 249. [Turner, C.J., and Muttusami Ayyar, J. Jan. 25, 1883.]

CHAPTER II.

GENERAL EXPLANATIONS.

6. Throughout this Code, every definition of an offence, every penal provision, and every illustration of every such definition or penal provision, shall be understood subject to the exceptions contained in the chapter‖ entitled "General

Definitions in the Code to be understood subject to exceptions.

* This Statute may now be cited as the Government of India Act, 1833 —See the Short Titles Act, 1896 (59 & 60 Vict., c. 14).

† See now the Army Act (44 & 45 Vict., c. 58) as continued and amended by subsequent annual Army Acts.

‡ In s. 5, the words, "or of the East India Company, or of any Act for the Government of the East India Company," repealed by the Repealing Act (XIV. of 1870), have here been omitted.

§ A similar saving as to special and local laws was enacted in the Indian Penal Code Amendment Act (XXVII. of 1870). The amendments made by that Act have been embodied in this edition of the Penal Code.

‖ See Ch. IV., infra.

Exceptions," though those exceptions are not repeated in such definition, penal provision, or illustration.

Illustrations.

(a.) The sections in this Code which contain definitions of offences do not express that a child under seven years of age cannot commit such offences; but the definitions are to be understood subject to the general exception* which provides that nothing shall be an offence which is done by a child under seven years of age.

(b.) A, a police-officer, without warrant, apprehends Z, who has committed murder. Here A is not guilty of the offence of wrongful confinement; for he was bound by law to apprehend Z, and therefore the case falls within the general exception† which provides that "nothing is an offence which is done by a person who is bound by law to do it."

Sense of expression once explained.

7. Every expression which is explained in any part of this Code is used in every part of this Code in conformity with the explanation.

Judge to follow ruling of High Court of his own Presidency.—The lower Courts are bound to follow the concurrent decisions of the Court to which they are subordinate, and are not at liberty to adopt a contrary opinion expressed by another High Court. —KORBAN ALLY MIRDHA v. SHARODA PROSHAD AICH, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 82. [Prinsep and O'Kineally, JJ. July 26, 1883.]

(2) A Judge should follow the ruling of the High Court of his own Presidency.— BALAJI GANESH v. SAKHARAM PARASHRAM ANGAL, I. L. R., 17 Bom. 555. [Bayley, C.J., and Candy, J. Aug. 18, 1892.]

Proceedings of Legislature.—Proceedings of the Legislature in passing a Statute are excluded from consideration on the judicial construction of Indian, as well as of British, Statutes. —ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL OF BENGAL v. PREMLAL MULLICK, I. L. R., 22 Cal. 788. [Watson, Hobhouse, Macnaghten, Shand, and Couch, JJ. Feb. 20. Mar. 30, 1895.]

Object of codifying a particular branch of law.—The object of codifying a particular branch of the law is that on any point specifically dealt with, the law should thenceforth be ascertained by interpreting the language used in that enactment, instead of, as before, searching in the authorities to discover what may be the law, as laid down in prior decisions. The language of such an enactment must receive its natural meaning, without any assumption as to its having probably been the intention to leave unaltered the law as it existed before. Bank of Bengal v. Vagliano (1891, A. C., 107) referred to.—NORENDRA NATH SIRCAR v. KAMALBASINI DASI, I. L. R., 23 Cal. 563. [Macnaghten, Morris, and Couch, JJ. Feb. 22, 1896.]

Proceedings of Legislature.—The proceedings of the Legislative Council which result in the passing of an Act cannot be referred to as aids to the construction of that Act. Administrator-General of Bengal v. Premlal Mullick (I. L. R., 22 Cal. 788; S.C., L. R., 22 I. A. 107) followed. Strachey, J., adds: But in India the law is now clear. It is true that there have been decisions in the Courts in India in favour of allowing the proceedings in the Legislative Council to be referred to for the purpose of construing an Act, but the Privy Council in a case decided so recently as 1895 (The Administrator-General of Bengal v. Premlal, I. L. R., 22 Cal. 788; S.C., L. R., 22 I. A. 107) held that this ought not to be done. If there has been a practice to the contrary in the Courts in India, that practice is wrong, and cannot be permitted any longer. I am bound by this decision of the Privy Council, and I must hold that it is inadmissible to take as an aid in the construing of an Act the proceedings in the Legislative Council which resulted in the passing of an Act. But if I were free to consider the question apart from authority, I may say that I agree entirely with the judgment of Edge, C.J., in Kadir Buksh v. Bhawani (I. L. R., 14 All. 145 at p. 150), in which he condemned the practice of referring to the proceedings in the Legislature in order to ascertain the meaning of an Act. I think with him that "if Judges were to allow their minds to be influenced in the construing of a statute by debates in Parliament or reports of Select Committees or other bodies on the bill, statute law would be reduced to confusion, and instead of there being one principle of construction of statutes well understood by lawyers, the construction of statutes would be reduced to no principle at all." Mr. Pugh can, of course, read any passages from Sir James Stephen's speech as a part of his address, and as stating his own argument in words which he adopts as his own, but he cannot cite them as Sir James Stephen's opinion and as authority showing the construction to put upon the section.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. BAL GANGADHAR TILAK, I. L. R., 22 Bom. 112, at p. 128. [Strachey, J. Sep. 8 to 11, 13, and 14, 1897].

"Government."

Surveyor employed by Collector is a public servant—The Collector, acting in the management of a khas mehal, the property of the Government, is as much "the Government" within the meaning of s. 17 of the Penal Code as when he is exercising any other of the duties of his official position. A surveyor employed by the Collector in the khas mehal department to make a survey of a certain portion of a water-course is a "public servant" within the meaning of s. 21 of the Penal Code Reg. v. Ramajira (12 Bom. What constituted offering a bribe to a juryman.—Although what passed between the prisoner and the juryman might not have amounted to an offer of a bribe to the latter, yet it was held to be so when taken in connection with what passed between the prisoner and the juryman's brother.—QUEEN v. BAWOOL CHUNDER BISWAS, 1 W. R 36. [Steer and Jackson, JJ. Aug. 26, 1864.]

Izaphatdar not a public servant.—The word "officer" in s. 21, cl. 9, of the Penal Code, means a person employed to exercise to some extent a delegated function of Government. He must be either himself armed with some authority or representative character, or his duties must be immediately auxiliary to those of some one who is so armed. Hence, an izaphatdar, i.e., a lessee of a village who has undertaken to keep an account of its forest-revenues, and pay a certain proportion to the Government, keeping the remainder for himself, is not an officer, and therefore not a public servant within the meaning of s. 21.—REG. v. RAMAJIRAV, JIVBAJIRAV, 12 Bom. L. R., 3 Cal. 758. [Ainslie and White, JJ. June 5. 1878.]

Poddar in bank not a public servant.—The manager of a Court of Wards' estate paid into a bank, carrying on the treasury business of the Government, a sum of money on behalf of Government. B, a poddar in the bank, demanded and took a reward for his trouble in receiving the money. On B being prosecuted and charged under s. 161 of the Penal Code, held that although the money might have been paid on account of Government, it was on behalf of the bank, and not on behalf of the Government, that the money was received by the accused; and that the poddar was a servant of the bank only, and not a public servant within the meaning of cl. 9, s 21 of the Penal Code —IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF MODUN MOHUN, I. L. R., 4 Cal 376. [Ainslie and Broughton, JJ. Dec. 10, 1878.]

L. R., 8 All. 201. [Straight, J. Feb. 5, 1886.]

Obstruction of a public servant.—In a suit filed in a Mamlatdar's Court under Bom. Act III. of 1876, the plaintiff obtained a decree against the accused for possession of a certain piece of land. When the Mamlatdar proceeded to execute the decree, he found that there was no land corresponding to the boundaries set forth in the plaint, and that the parties were joint-owners and in joint-occupation of the land in dispute. Finding himself unable to execute the decree, the Mamlatdar referred the matter to the Collector for advice. The Collector, on looking into the papers of the case, ordered a surveyor to execute the decree by dividing the land in dispute, and putting the decree-holder in possession of his share. The surveyor, in attempting to execute the decree, was obstructed by the accused, who was thereupon tried and convicted of the offence of voluntarily obstructing a public servant in the discharge of his public functions under s. 186 of the Penal Code. Held, reversing the conviction, that, as the Collector had no legal authority to issue the order to the surveyor in execution of the Mamlatdar's decree, the surveyor acting under that order was not discharging a public function, and the act of the accused was not an offence against s 186 of the Penal Code. Held, further, that the Collector's order was so entirely ultra vires as to leave no room for the operation of either the first or the second clause of s. 99 of the Penal Code —QUEEN-EMPRESS v. TULSIRAM I. Whoever dishonestly severs such earth from the earth commits theft. Where a person dishonestly carried away 100 cart-loads of earth from the complainant's land, held that he was guilty of theft. Queen-Empress v. Kotayya (I. L. "Wrongful gain."

23. "Wrongful gain" is gain by unlawful means of property to which the person gaining it is not legally entitled.

"Wrongful loss."

"Wrongful loss" is the loss by unlawful means of property to which the person losing it is legally entitled.

Gaining wrongfully; losing wrongfully.

A person is said to gain wrongfully when such person retains wrongfully, as well as when such person acquires wrongfully. A person is said to lose wrongfully when such person is wrongfully kept out of any property, as well as when such person is wrongfully deprived of property.

Taking moveable property to coerce payment of debt.—A creditor, by taking any moveable property of his debtor from the debtor's possession without his consent, with the intention of coercing him to pay his debt, commits the offence of theft as defined in s. 378 of the Penal Code. Pledgee of a turban does not commit criminal breach of trust if he uses it.—In this case, the prisoner, the pledgee of a turban, has been convicted of criminal breach of trust for using that turban. The offence consists of dishonestly using or disposing of property in violation of any direction of law as to the mode in which any trust affecting such property is to be discharged. The word "dishonestly" in the Penal Code means the doing of an act with the intention of causing wrongful loss or wrongful gain, and wrongful gain is gain by unlawful means of property to which the person gaining is not legally entitled. For either wrongful loss or gain, the property must be lost to the owner, or the owner must be kept out of it. The High Court are of opinion that the deterioration of the article by use is not such a loss of property to the owner, and the wrongful use of property by the prisoner is not such a gain to him. The High Court, are, therefore, of opinion that the facts found do not amount to criminal breach of trust, and they accordingly resolve to quash the sentence, and direct the release of the prisoner.—PRO., Sep. 18, 1866, 3 Mad. H. C R. Ap. vi.

When a person takes charge of fishing nets, and retains possession pending orders of his employers, does not commit theft.—The prisoner, acting bonâ fide in the interest of his employers, and finding a party of fishermen poaching on his masters' fisheries, took charge of the nets, and retained possession of them, pending the orders of his employers. Held that the prisoner was not guilty of theft, as there was no dishonest intention in taking the property.—QUEEN v NOBIN CHUNDER HOLDAR, 6 W. Fraudulent intention in respect of a forged document.—In a case in which the accused was charged with dishonestly using as genuine a patta which he knew to be forged, and in which there was a fraudulent insertion, it was held that it was not necessary to prove that he personally inserted the word, but it was sufficient if it was inserted with his knowledge.—QUEEN v. HEMORUDDI MUNDUL, 9 W. Abetment of theft.—The carrying off of certain buffaloes belonging to the complainant by order of the accused, and the retention of them in the custody of the latter's servant, were held to amount to an abetment of theft as defined in the Penal Code. —TARINEE PROSAUD BANERJEE, 18 W. R. 8. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. June 14, 1872.]

Illegal impounding of cattle not theft — The illegal seizure and impounding of cattle is not theft within the meaning of the Penal Code, even if effected with the malicious intent of subjecting the owners to additional expense, inconvenience, and annoyance. A Sessions Judge has no power to release on bail persons convicted by the Magistrate, pending a reference to the High Court under Act X. of of 1872, s. 296 —AKADHUN MUNDUL v. MYAN KHAN TAKADGEER, 24 W. Snatching away a document produced before arbitrator, and running away with it, constitutes "secreting," not theft — Where the plaintiff in a suit referred to arbitration by consent, with a view to prevent a witness from referring to an endorsement on a bond (which tended to show that defendant had paid more than it was alleged had been paid by him) snatched up the bond which was lying beside the arbitrator, ran away, and refused to produce it, held that the offence committed was not theft, but secreting a document under s. 204 of the Penal Code.—SUBRAMANIA GHANAPATI v. QUEEN, I. L. R., 3 Mad. 261. [Turner, C.J., and Muttusami Ayyar, J. Sep. 2, 1881.]

Using as genuine a forged document with intent to defraud. Doing a thing dishonestly. —The accused, in order to obtain a recognition from a settlement officer that they were entitled to the title of "Loskur," filed a sanad before that officer, purporting to grant that title. This document was found not to be genuine. The Sessions Judge convicted the accused under ss 471, 464 of the Penal Code. Held, on appeal, that, even supposing the accused had used the document knowing it not to be genuine, they could not be found guilty, as the intention of the accused was not to cause wrongful gain or wrongful loss to any one; their intention being to produce a false belief in the mind of the settlement-officer that they were entitled to the dignity of "Loskur," and that this could not be said to constitute "an intention to defraud" A sanad, conferring a title of dignity on a person, is not a valuable security within the meaning of the Penal Code.—JAN MAHOMED AND JABAR MAHOMED v. EMPRESS; WARI MRAH v. EMPRESS, I. L. R., 10 Cal. 584. [Mitter and Norris, JJ. April 17, 1884.]

Speculation as to intention.—The creditors of a police-constable applied to the District Superintendent of Police that Rs. 2 might be deducted monthly from the debtor's pay until the debt was satisfied. Upon an order being passed directing that the deduction asked for should be made, the debtor produced a receipt purporting to be a receipt for Rs. 18, the whole amount due. It subsequently appeared that the receipt was one for Rs. 8, which the debtor had altered by adding the figure "1" so as to make it appear that the receipt was for Rs. 18. Held that the real intent in the prisoner's mind being to induce his superior officer to refrain from the illegal act of stopping a portion of his salary, the Court in a criminal case ought not to speculate as to some other intent over and above this that might have presented itself to him: that it did not necessarily follow that he contemplated setting up the altered receipt to defeat his creditor's claim; and that therefore he ought not to have been convicted of an offence under s. 471 of the Penal Code.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SYED HUSAIN, I. L. R., 7 All. 403. [Petheram, C.J., and Straight, J. Feb. 27, 1885.]

Dishonestly and fraudulently.—In a trial upon a charge, under s. 471 of the Penal Code, of fraudulently or dishonestly using as genuine documents known to be forged, it was found that four forged receipts for the payment of rent, used by the prisoner, had been fabricated in lieu of genuine receipts which had been lost. Held that, with reference to the definitions of the terms 'dishonestly' and "fraudulently" in ss 24 and 25 of the Penal Code, the prisoner, upon the facts as found, had not committed the offence punishable under s. 471.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SHEO DAYAL, I. It is not theft to take a boat in order to escape, and then abandon it.— When an accused, charged with murder, was alleged to have taken a boat from a place where it had been secured by its owner, and after proceeding some distance in it had abandoned it, and when he was charged with the theft of the boat, held that the charge was unsustainable, inasmuch as it was evidently not his intention to convert it to his own use, and make it permanently his own property, but merely to make use of it for the purpose of aiding him in escaping — ADU SHIKDAR v. EMPRESS, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 635. [Mitter and Norris, JJ. May 29, 1885.] See contra, p. 24, infra, col. 2.

Making false report to stave off discovery of previous fraud.—A treasury accountant was convicted of offences under ss. 218 and 465 of the Penal Code under the following circumstances. A sum of Rs. 500, which was in the treasury, and was payable to a particular person through a Civil Court, was drawn out and paid away to other persons by means of forged cheques. After the withdrawal of the Rs. 500, but before such withdrawal had been discovered, the representative of the payee applied for payment. The prisoner then, upon two occasions, wrote reports to the effect that the Rs. 500 in question then stood at the payee's credit as a revenue-deposit, and that it was about to be transferred to the Civil Court. Upon the first of these reports, an order was signed by the treasury-officer for the transfer of the money to the Civil Court concerned, and to effect such transfer a cheque was prepared by the sale-muharrir, which, as originally drawn up, related to the sum of Rs. 500 already mentioned. The signature of the cheque by the treasury-officer was delayed for some time, and meanwhile the cheque was altered by the prisoner in such a manner as to make it relate to another deposit of Rs. 500 which had been made subsequently to the above and to the credit of another person. The result of this was the transfer of the second payee's Rs. 500 to the Civil Court, as if it had been the first Rs. 500, and to the credit of the first payee's representative. The prisoner was convicted under s. 465 of the Penal Code in respect of the cheque, and under s. 218 in respect of the two reports above referred to. Held, with respect to the charge under s. 465, that the prisoner's immediate and more probable intention—which alone, and not his remoter and less probable intention, should be attributed to him—was not to cause wrongful loss to the second payee by delaying payment of the Rs. 500 due to her, though the act might have caused her loss, but to conceal the previous fraudulent withdrawal of the first payee's Rs. 500; that, under these circumstances, he could not be said to have acted "dishonestly" or "fraudulently" within the meaning of s. 24 or s. 25 of the Penal Code; and that, therefore, his guilt under s. 465 had not been made out, and the conviction under that section must be set aside. Held also that prisoner's intention in making the false reports was to stave off the discovery of the previous fraud, and save himself or the actual perpetrator of that fraud from legal punishment, and that, having prepared the reports in a manner which he knew to be incorrect, he was rightly convicted under s. 218 of the Penal Code. Held further that as the prisoner, who was a public servant, made these reports, and assumed to make them in due course and as a part of his duty, and held them out as reports which were made by the proper officer, and as no question was put in the examination of the witnesses from the office which suggested that it was not his business to make such reports, it must be inferred that he made them, because it was his business to do so, and as a public servant within the meaning of s. 218 of the Penal Code.—QUEEN EMPRESS v. GRIDHARI LAL, I. L. R., 8 All. 653. [Edge, C.J. Aug. 24, 1886.]

Joint property, Theft of.—Theft of joint property may be committed by a co-parcener if he takes it from joint possession, and converts such possession into separate possession.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. PONNURANGAM, I. L. R., 10 Mad. 186. [Kernan and Muttusami Ayyar, JJ. Mar. 1, 1887.]

Person held guilty of theft of boat, though it was not his intention to convert it to his own use, or to deprive complainant permanently of its possession.—A charge of theft will lie under s. 378 of the Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860), even where there is no intention to assume entire dominion over the property taken, or to retain it permanently. When a person takes another man's property, believing, under a mistake of fact and in ignorance of law, that he has a right to take it, he is not guilty of theft, because there is no dishonest intention, even though he may cause wrongful loss within the meaning of the Penal Code. The accused was the brother of a farmer or contractor of a public ferry on the Tadri river. He seized a boat belonging to the complainant while conveying passengers across the creek which flows into the river at a point within three miles from the public ferry. His intention was apparently to compel persons who had to cross the creek to use the ferry in the absence of the complainant's boat, and thereby increase his brother's income derived from fees to be paid by passengers crossing the creek. The accused had no reason to believe that he was justified in seizing the boat. Held that the accused was guilty of theft, though it was not his intention to convert the boat to his own use, or deprive the complainant permanently of its possession.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. NAGAPPA, I. L. R., 15 Bom. 344. [Birdwood and Jardine, JJ. Jan. 27, 1890.]

Primary intention.—In construing ss. 24 and 25 the primary and not the remote intention of the accused must be looked at. Queen-Empress v. Girdhari (I. L. R., 8 All. 653) cited.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. HARADHAN alias RAKHAL DASS GHOSH, I. L. R., 19 Cal., 380. [Norris and Beverley, JJ. April 20 1892.]

Carrying off cattle to prevent them being killed.—Where several Hindus acting in concert forcibly removed an ox and two cows from the possession of a Mahomedan, not for the purpose of causing "wrongful gain" to themselves or "wrongful loss" to the owner of the cattle, but for the purpose of preventing the killing of the cows, held that they could not properly be convicted of dacoity, but only of riot.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAGHUNATH RAI, I. L. R., 15 All. 22. [Tyrrell, J. Aug. 6, 1892.]

Illegal seizure of cattle, and taking them to a pound, constitutes theft.—An accused was found to have loosed the complainant's cattle at night from a cattle-pen, and to have driven them to the pound with the object of sharing with the pound-keeper the fees to be paid for their release. He was proceeded against under Act I. of 1871 (Cattle Trespass Act), and under the provisions of s 22 ordered to pay compensation to the complainant, and in default to undergo one month's rigorous imprisonment. Held that s. 22 was inapplicable to the facts of the case, and that the order must be set aside. On the facts it was not a case of "illegal seizure and detention" of cattle, but rather one of theft, as all the elements of that offence were present, and the accused should have been charged with and tried for, that offence Held, further, that the sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of the compensation was not warranted by law. Compensation may be levied as a fine, and the ordinary mode of levying fines is laid down in s 386 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The law nowhere provides that fines may be levied by means of imprisonment.—PARYAG RAI v. ARJU MIAN, I. L. R., 22 Cal. 139 [Petheram C.J., and Beverley, J. Aug. 18, 1894.]

When removal of debtor's property by creditor does not amount to theft.—With a view to coerce the complainant to pay a sum of Rs. 14, which he owed to the accused, three head of cattle worth Rs. 60 were removed from the complainant's homestead under the order of the accused Held the offence of theft was not committed by the accused. The illustrations to s. 378 of the Penal Code indicate that it was the intention of the Legislature that, in order to have committed theft within the meaning of the section, the taker must have taken the thing with the intention of keeping it himself, or disposing of it for his own benefit or in some way which would compel the owner to pay him money which he did not owe him in order to regain his property. The words "intending to take dishonestly any moveable property" in the above section, read with s. 23 and s 24 of the Penal Code, mean "with the intention of gaining by unlawful means property to which he is not legally entitled." "To gain property by unlawful means" means "to gain the thing moved for the use of the gainer," and not "the gaining possession of it for a time for a temporary purpose." S. 363 of the Penal Code, as drafted in 1837, discussed.—PROSONNO KUMAR PATRA v. UDOY SANT, I. L. R., 22 Cal. 669. [Petheram, C.J., and Beverley, J. April 30, 1895.]

Removal by creditor of his debtor's property with a view to obtaining payment of his debt constitutes theft.—Held that the removal by a creditor, against the will of his debtor, of property belonging to such debtor, with the view of compelling such debtor to discharge his debt, amounts to theft within the meaning of s. 379 of the Penal Code. Queen-Empress v Sumeshar Rai (Weekly Notes, 1888, p. 97) referred to. Prosonno Kumar v. Udoy Sant (I. L. R., 22 Cal. 669) dissented from.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. AGHA MUHAMMAD YUSUF, I. L. R., 18 All. 88. [Edge, C.J., and Burkitt, J. Nov. 16, 1895.]

When removal of debtor's property by creditor amounts to theft.—A creditor by taking any moveable property of his debtor from the possession without his consent, with the intention of coercing him to pay his debt, commits the offence of theft as defined in s 378 of the Penal Code. Ss. 23, 24 of the Penal Code discussed and explained. Prosonno Kumar Patra v. Udoy Sant (I. L. R., 22 Cal 669) overruled. Per Pigot, J.—Proceedings of the Legislature cannot be referred to as legitimate aids to the construction of an Act. Administrator-General of Bengal v. Prem Lall Mullick (I. Removing a thing with the object of causing trouble to the owner does not constitute theft.—The accused, who was charged by his master with having committed theft of a box, stated that he had removed the box, and left it concealed in the cow-shed to give a lesson to his master. The Sessions Judge, in his charge to the jury, said "If the jury find that the accused removed the box to put the owner to trouble, that is causing wrongful loss to the owner, and the act is theft;" and the jury returned a verdict of guilty, finding "that the taking was with the intention of putting the owner to trouble." Held the above charge and verdict were based on an erroneous view of the law. It cannot be said that removing a thing to put the owner to trouble is necessarily and in every case causing "wrongful loss."—NABI BAKSH v. QUEEN-EMPRESS, I.

Cutting and removal of paddy not theft, unless done dishonestly.—The accused cut and removed paddy from certain land, alleging that the land and the paddy belonged to his uncle. He cited witnesses in support of his story, and also produced a deed of compromise in support of title. The Magistrate disbelieved the defence-witnesses, and found that the land and paddy belonged to the complainant, and that the deed related to other land, but there was nothing in his judgment to show that the petitioner did not bonâ fide believe that the paddy belonged to his uncle. Held that the findings did not support the conviction of theft. To constitute the offence it was necessary that the taking away of the paddy should have been done dishonestly, i.e., with the knowledge that it belonged to the complainant and not to his uncle. Where a rule was issued to show cause why the conviction should not be set aside and a retrial ordered, and it appeared that the accused had already suffered the whole imprisonment, less one day, the Court in setting aside the conviction did not direct a retrial.—ABDOOL BISWAS v. KHATER MONDAL, 3 C. W. N. 332. [Prinsep and Stanley, JJ. March 10, 1899.]

Cutting and carrying away crops sown by another: Bona-fide belief as to title: Facts constituting theft. Dishonest intention.—An accused person alleged and claimed that certain paddy was grown upon his jote, and that he cut and removed it as a matter of right and in an assertion of a bonâ-fide claim to the land. It was admitted by the complainant, who also claimed the paddy and the land, that there had been a boundary dispute between his landlord and the landlord of the accused. The accused was convicted in a summary trial of the paddy. Held per Prinsep, J.: That, if the complainant's bargadars had grown the crops as found, and nevertheless the accused cut and carried them off, there could be no bonâ-fide belief that he was entitled to do so to justify his action in regard to the complainant. With the fact found that possession was with the complainant by the growing by him of the crops cut by the accused, the accused was without justification in thus taking the law into his hands, even if he was entitled to hold the lands, because he was not in actual possession of them. His Lordship refused to interfere. Per Stevens, J.: The findings of the lower Court taken as a whole amounted to a finding that the accused acted mali fide, and the mere fact that he brought some witnesses to speak to his long possession of the land, and the cultivation of the crops by him, could not be taken as showing that a bonâ-fide dispute as to title existed between the complainant and himself. To constitute theft it is sufficient if property is removed against his wish from the custody of a person who has an apparent title or even a colour of right to such property. In the present case the complainant had an apparent title as tenant of the land, together with long possession; and he had, on the strength of that apparent title and long possession, raised the crops which the accused removed. The application should be dismissed. Queen-Empress v. Gangaram Santram (I. L. R., 9 Bom 135) referred to. Per Stanley, J., contra.—That the evidence, as well for the prosecution as for the defence, conclusively established that there was a bonâ fide dispute as to the title to the land upon which the paddy was sown. Once this was shown the criminal charge failed. The fact, if it be the fact, that the paddy was sown by the complainant, would not give him the property in the crop, if it were sown on the land of the accused. If the land was the land of the accused, it was an act of trespass on the part of the complainant to sow it with paddy, and the complainant had no right to complain if the accused resented his act of aggression by cutting and removing the crop. A dishonest intent is a necessary ingredient in the offence of theft. No such intention has been found on the part of the accused. That the conviction and sentence should be set aside. [PANDITA alias RAHMATULLA PRAMANIK v. RAHIMULLA AKUNDO, I. L. R., 27 Cal. 501. [Prinsep, Stevens, and Stanley, JJ. Jan. 15, 1900.]

"Fraudulently."

25. A person is said to do a thing fraudulently if he does that thing with intent to defraud, but not otherwise.

Using a forged document to support a title is fraudulent.—Where a person in the course of an action brought against him to gain possession of a property uses a forged document for the purpose of supporting his title, though there may be no necessity for the use of it, such a user is clearly fraudulent. A general intention to defraud, without the intention of causing wrongful gain to one person or wrongful loss to another, would, if proved, be sufficient to support a conviction; and such intention is a necessary inference which the jury should be directed to draw if they are satisfied that the accused has uttered a forged document as a true one, meaning it to be taken as such, and knowing it to be forged.—EMPRESS v. DHUMUM KAZEE, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 53. [Maclean and Norris, JJ. July 13, 1882.]

Making false entries in account-book with the intention of concealing criminal breach of trust.—Where a clerk, who had committed criminal breach of trust, subsequently made false entries in an account-book with the intention of concealing such offence, held that the making of such entries did not constitute the offence of forgery, and he had, therefore, been improperly convicted under s. 465 of the Penal Code. Queen v. Jageshur Pershad (N.-W. P. H. C. R., 1874, p. 56) and Queen v. Lal Gumul (N.-W. P. H. C. R., 1870, p. 11) followed.—EMPRESS v. JIWANAND, I. L. R., 5 All. 221. [Mahmood, J. Oct. 5, 1882.]

Fraudulently using as genuine a forged document: "Dishonestly;" "Fraudulently."—The creditors of a police-constable applied to the District Superintendent of Police that Rs 2 might be deducted monthly from the debtor's pay until the debt was satisfied. Upon an order being passed directing that the deduction asked for should be made, the debtor produced a receipt purporting to be a receipt for Rs. 18, the whole amount due. It subsequently appeared that the receipt was one for Rs. 8, which the debtor had altered by adding the figure "1," so as to make it appear that the receipt was for Rs. 18. Held that the real intent in the prisoner's mind being to induce his superior officer to refrain from the illegal act of stopping a portion of his salary, the Court, in a criminal case, ought not to speculate as to some other intent over and above this that might have presented itself to him; that it did not necessarily follow that he contemplated setting up the altered receipt to defeat his creditor's claim; and that, therefore, he ought not to have been convicted of an offence under s. 471 of the Penal Code.—EMPRESS v. SYUD HUSSAIN, I. L. R., 7 All. 403. [Petheram, C.J., and Straight, J. Feb. 27, 1885.]

Fraudulently using as genuine a forged document: "Dishonestly:" "Fraudulently."—In a trial upon a charge under s 471 of the Penal Code, of fraudulently or dishonestly using as genuine documents known to be forged, it was found that four forged receipts for the payment of rent, used by the prisoner, had been fabricated in lieu of genuine receipts which had been lost. Held that, with reference to the definitions of the terms "dishonestly" and "fraudulently" in ss. 24 and 25 of the Penal Code, the prisoner, upon the facts as found, had not committed the offence punishable under s. 471.—EMPRESS v. SHEO DAYAL, I. L. R., 7 All. 450. [Brodhurst, J. Mar. 6, 1885.]

Making false report to stave off discovery of previous fraud.—A treasury-accountant was convicted of offences under ss. 218 and 465 of the Penal Code under the following circumstances: A sum of Rs. 500, which was in the treasury, and was payable to a particular person through a Civil Court, was drawn out, and paid away to other persons by means of forged cheques. After the withdrawal of the Rs. 500, but before such withdrawal had been discovered, the representative of the payee applied for payment. The prisoner then, upon two occasions, wrote reports to the effect that the Rs. 500 in question then stood at the payee's credit as a revenue-deposit, and that it was about to be transferred to the Civil Court. Upon the first of these reports, an order was signed by the treasury-officer for the transfer of the money to the Civil Court concerned, and to effect such transfer a cheque was prepared by the sale-muharrir, which, as originally drawn up, related to the sum of Rs. 500 already mentioned. The signature of the cheque by the treasury-officer was delayed for some time, and meanwhile the cheque was altered by the prisoner in such a manner as to make it relate to another deposit of Rs. 500 which had been made subsequently to the above, and to the credit of another person. The result of this was the transfer of the second payee's Rs. 500 to the Civil Court, as if it had been the first Rs. 500, and to the credit of the first payee's representative. The prisoner was convicted under s. 465 of the Penal Code in respect of the cheque, and under s. 218 in respect of the two reports above referred to. Held, with respect to the charge under s. 465, that the prisoner's immediate and more probable intention—which alone, and not his remoter and less probable intention, should be attributed to him—was not to cause wrongful loss to the second payee by delaying payment of the Rs. 500 due to her, though the act might have caused her loss, but to conceal the previous fraudulent withdrawal of the first payee's Rs. 500; that, under these circumstances, he could not be said to have acted "dishonestly" or "fraudulently" within the meaning of s. 24 or s. 25 of the Penal Code; and that, therefore, his guilt under s. 465 had not been made out, and the conviction under that section must be set aside. Held also that prisoner's intention in making the false reports was to stave off the discovery of the previous fraud, and save himself or the actual perpetrator of that fraud from legal punishment, and that, having prepared the reports in a manner which he knew to be incorrect, he was rightly convicted under s. 218 of the Penal Code. Held further that as the prisoner, who was a public servant, made these reports, and assumed to make them in due course and as a part of his duty, and held them out as reports which were made by the proper officer, and as no question was put in the examination of the witnesses from the office which suggested that it was not his business to make such reports, it must be inferred that he made them because it was his business to do so, and as a public servant within the meaning of s. 218 of the Penal Code.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. GRIDHARI LAL, I. L. R., 8 All. 653 [Edge, C.J. Aug. 24, 1886.]

Intention in fabricating documents: Fraudulent and dishonest fabrication.—The accused, who was a copyist in the Sub-Divisional Office at B, applied for a clerkship then vacant in that office An endorsement on his application, recommending him for the post, and purporting to have been made by the Sub-Divisional Officer of B, was found to have been falsely made by the accused. The application was accompanied by a letter, also fabricated by the accused, purporting to be from the Collector to the Sub-Divisional Officer at B, informing the latter officer that he, the Collector, had selected the accused for the vacant post. The Sub-Divisional Officer, having some suspicion as to the genuineness of this letter, wrote a demi-official letter to the Collector to ascertain whether he had really written it; and this being posted in the local post-office, the accused fabricated a third document, purporting to be a letter from the Sub-Divisional Officer to the post-master, asking him to stop the despatch of the demi-official letter. The accused was charged with, and convicted in the Sessions Court of, the offence of forgery, under s. 464 of the Penal Code, in respect of the three documents. Held the conviction was right with regard to the first two documents, but with regard to the third document it could not be said that he falsely made it either dishonestly or fraudulently within the meaning of that section.—ABDUL HAMID v. EMPRESS, I. L. R., 13 Cal. 349. [Mitter and Grant, JJ. Sep. 7, 1886.]

Fabrication of a receipt as a voucher to cover a contemporaneous embezzlement—A post-master misappropriated a certain sum of money, and at the same time made a false document purporting to be a receipt signed by the person to whom the money was payable. He was convicted of using a forged document under s. 471 of the Indian Penal Code. It was contended that no forgery had been committed, because the receipt was made merely to cover the embezzlement: Empress of India v. Jiwanand (I L. R., 5 All. 222) Held that the conviction was right. A debtor, who fabricates a release to screen himself from liability to pay the debt, cannot be said not to be guilty of forgery, because he intended, by the fabrication, to cover a dishonest purpose.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SABAPATI, I. L. R., 11 Mad. 411, [Muttusami Ayyar and Wilkinson, JJ. July 5, 1888.]

Criminal breach of trust by a servant: Forgery: "Dishonestly:" "Fraudulently": Fabrication of a document to conceal a contemporaneous or past embezzlement.—An accused person who was in the service of zemindars, and whose duty it was to pay into the Collectorate Government revenue due in respect of their estates, immediately before the due date of a kist, received from them a certain sum of money with no specific instruction as to its application. On receipt of that money he paid a portion only of it into the Collectorate on account of the revenue, and having done so he then altered the challan given back to him showing the amount actually paid, and made it appear that a much larger amount had been paid in than was the fact. This challan he sent to his employer for the purpose of showing the application of the money. He was charged (1) with criminal breach of trust as a servant (s. 408 of the Penal Code) in respect of the difference between the amount actually paid into the treasury and the amount shown to have been paid in by the altered challan, (2) with forgery (s. 467) in respect of the challan; and (3) with using a forged document (s. 471) in respect of the same document The accused was convicted on all these charges. It was contended (a) that the charge under s. 408 was not sustainable, inasmuch as the money was not alleged to have been sent to the accused for the specific purpose of paying the Government revenue, and that the accounts between him and his employers had not been adjusted, and that it was not shown whether at the date of the alleged breach of trust the accused was indebted to his employer or the reverse; (b) that the charge under ss. 467 and 471 were bad, as there was no evidence to support them, and even admitting the alteration of the challan, such alteration did not come within the term "forgery" as used in the Penal Code, not having been made with the intention of causing any wrongful gain or wrongful loss, but with the intention of screening the offence of criminal breach of trust which had been previously committed. Held that, as the money was sent to the accused immediately before the kist day, and the challan was sent to the employers showing in its altered state the amount really payable as revenue which nearly covered the whole amount remitted, it was reasonable to infer that the accused was aware of the implied purpose for which the money was remitted; and as he deposited a very much smaller amount than that remitted, and tried to pass off the altered challan as genuine, there was a dishonest misappropriation of the difference sufficient to constitute the offence under s. 408. Held, further, that it is not necessary for the purpose of constituting the offence of forgery that the false document should be made with the intention of committing a fraud or dishonesty in the future, and that, if the intention with which a false document is made be to conceal a fraudulent act which has been previously committed, the intention cannot be other than to commit fraud, and the offence of forgery as defined in s 463 is committed. The word 'fraudulently' as used in s. 464 must not be taken as being the same as "dishonestly," and implying wrongful gain or wrongful loss, but must be taken to mean as "with intent to defraud." Empress of India v. Jiwanand (I. L. R., 5 All. 221) and Queen-Empress v. Girdhari Lal (I. L. R., 8 All. 653) dissented from. Queen-Empress v. Vithal Narain Joshi (I. L. R., 13 Bom. 515, note) and Queen-Empress v. Sabapati (I. L. R., 11 Mad. 411) followed. Held, therefore, that upon the facts of the case there was ample evidence to show that the accused had abetted the forgery of the challan, and had used the sum, and that he had been properly convicted of all the offences charged against him except that of the actual forgery, and that he should have been convicted of abetment of that offence.—LOLIT MOHAN SARKAR v. QUEEN-EMPRESS, I. L. R., 22 Cal. 313. [Banerjee and Sale, JJ. Nov. 2, 1894.]

Meaning of the term "fraud" discussed.—A police head constable's character and service-roll in his custody was found to have been tampered with in this way—that a page, apparently containing remarks unfavourable to the head constable, had been taken out, and a new page with favourable remarks, purporting to have been written and signed by various superior officers of police, had been inserted in its place, the intent being to favour the chances of the promotion of the said head-constable. Held that this interpolation amounted to forgery within the meaning of s. 463 of the Penal Code; but that, inasmuch as it was not proved that the head-constable himself prepared and inserted the false page in his character-roll, he was rightly convicted of abetment only. Queen-Empress v. Shoshi Bhushan (I. L. R., 15 All. 210), Queen-Empress v. Vithal Narain (I. L. R., 13 Bom. 515), and Lolit Mohan Sarkar v. The Queen-Empress (I. L. R., 22 Cal. 313), referred to.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. MUHAMMAD SAEED KHAN, I. L. R., 21 All. 113. [Banerji, J. Sep. 7, 1898.]

"Reason to believe."

26. A person is said to have "reason to believe" a thing if he has sufficient cause to believe that thing, but not otherwise.

Voluntarily assisting in the disposal of stolen property: "Believe": "Suspect."—The word "believe" in s. 414 of the Penal Code is much stronger than the word "suspect," and involves the necessity of showing that the circumstances were such that a reasonable man must have felt convinced in his mind that the property with which he was dealing was stolen property. It is not sufficient in such a case to show that the accused person was careless, or that he had reason to suspect that the property was stolen, or that he did not make sufficient enquiry to ascertain whether it had been honestly acquired.—EMPRESS v. RANGO TIMAJI, I. L. R., 6 Bom. 402. [Melvill and Nanabhai Haridas, JJ. Mar. 2, 1881].

"Property in possession of wife, clerk, or servant."

27. When property is in the possession of a person's wife, clerk, or servant, on account of that person, it is in that person's possession within the meaning of this Code.

Explanation.—A person employed temporarily or on a particular occasion, in the capacity of a clerk or servant, is a clerk or servant within the meaning of this section.

28. A person is said to "counterfeit" who causes one thing to resemble another thing, intending, by means of that resemblance, to practise deception, or knowing it to be likely that deception will thereby be practised.

"Counterfeit."

*Explanation 1.—It is not essential to counterfeiting that the imitation should be exact.

*Explanation 2.—When a person causes one thing to resemble another thing, and the resemblance is such that a person might be deceived thereby, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is proved, that the person so causing the one thing to resemble the other thing intended, by means of that resemblance, to practise deception, or knew it to be likely that deception would thereby be practised.

29. The word "document" denotes any matter expressed or described upon any substance by means of letters, figures, or marks, or by more than one of those means, intended to be used, or which may be used, as evidence of that matter.

"Document."

Explanation 1.—It is immaterial by what means, or upon what substance, the letters, figures, or marks, are formed, or whether the evidence is intended for, or may be used in, a Court of Justice or not.

Illustrations.

A writing expressing the terms of a contract, which may be used as evidence of the contract, is a document.

A cheque upon a banker is a document.

A power-of-attorney is a document.

A map or plan which is intended to be used, or which may be used, as evidence, is a document.

A writing containing directions or instructions is a document

Explanation 2.—Whatever is expressed by means of letters, figures, or marks, as explained by mercantile or other usage, shall be deemed to be expressed by such letters, figures, or marks within the meaning of this section, although the same may not be actually expressed.

Illustration.

A writes his name on the back of a bill of exchange payable to his order. The meaning of the endorsement as explained by mercantile usage is that the bill is to be paid to the holder. The endorsement is a document, and must be construed in the same manner as if the words "pay to the holder," or words to that effect, had been written over the signature.

Preparing a draft petition containing false statements calculated to injure.—Where a draft petition was prepared with the intention of being used as evidence of a matter, it was held that it fell within the terms of s. 29 of the Penal Code; and as it contained false statements calculated to injure the reputation of a person, the offence was held to fall within s. 469 of the Penal Code.—IN THE MATTER OF SHEEFAIT ALLY, 10 W. R. 61; 2 B. L. R. A. Cr. 12. [Loch and Glover, JJ. Dec. 14, 1868.]

"Valuable security."

30. The words "valuable security" denote a document which is, or purports to be, a document whereby any legal right is created, extended, transferred, restricted, extinguished, or released, or whereby any person acknowledges that he lies under legal liability, or has not a certain legal right.

Illustration.

A writes his name on the back of a bill of exchange. As the effect of this endorsement is to transfer the right to the bill to any person who may become the lawful holder of it, the endorsement is a "valuable security."

Endorsement on back of bill of exchange.—A writes his name on the back of a bill of exchange. As the effect of this endorsement is to transfer the right to the bill to any person who may become the lawful holder of it, the endorsement is a "valuable security."

Unsigned settlement of accounts in writing.—A settlement of accounts in writing, though not signed by any person, is a "valuable security" within the definition of s. 30 of the Penal Code.—Ex-parte KAPALAVAYA SARAYA, 2 Mad. H. C. R. 247. [Phillips and Holloway, JJ. Nov. 26, 1864.]

Copy of lease.—A copy of a lease is not a "valuable security" within the meaning of s. 30 of the Penal Code.—REG. v KHUSAL HIRAMAN AND INDRAGIR, 4 Bom. H. C. R. 28. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. July 17, 1867.]

Forgery of a copy of document.—The forging of a document which purports, on the face of it, to be a copy only, and which, even if a genuine copy, would not authorize the delivery of moveable property, is not punishable under s. 467 of the Penal Code. The High Court will not alter a conviction by a Sessions Court aided by a jury, on a charge only triable by a jury, to one of a nature not triable by such a tribunal, but will annul the proceedings, and leave the prosecution to take fresh proceedings against the prisoner on any other charge it may be advised.—REG v. NARO GOPAL, 5 Bom. H. C. R. 56. [Warden and Gibbs, JJ. July 22, 1868.]

Forged deed of divorce presented for registration.—A deed of divorce is a "valuable security" within the meaning of s. 30 of the Penal Code. The presenting of a forged document of such a nature for registration, and obtaining registration, would be "using" within s. 471 of that Code.—QUEEN v. AZIMOODDEEN, 11 W R. 15. [Jackson and Glover, JJ. Mar. 3, 1869.]

An unstamped document may be a valuable security.—The fact that a document has not been stamped, and is not, therefore, receivable in evidence, does not prevent its being a "valuable security" within the meaning of s. 477 of the Penal Code.—PRO., Aug. 5, 1873, 7 Mad H. C. R. Ap. xxvi.]

Sanad conferring title of dignity.—A sanad conferring a title of dignity on a person is not a "valuable security" within the meaning of the Penal Code.—JAN MAHOMED AND JABAR MAHOMED v. QUEEN-EMPRESS; WARI MEAH v. QUEEN-EMPRESS, I. L. R, 10 Cal 584. [Mitter and Norris, JJ. April 17, 1884.]

Destruction of an unstamped document purporting to be a valuable security: Act causing slight harm.—A, having had certain transactions with B, wrote out a rough account showing his indebtedness to B, and signed the total. The paper was not stamped. B afterwards presented it to A, and demanded payment of the total amount. A paid part only, and after an altercation tore up the paper. Held that the act of tearing up the paper constituted the offence of destroying a valuable security, and the harm caused was such that a person of ordinary sense and temper would complain of it.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAMASAMI, I. L. R., 12 Mad. 148. [Collins, C.J., and Wilkinson, J. Nov. 15, 20, 1888.]

"A will."

31. The words "a will" denote any testamentary document.

Words referring to acts include illegal omissions.

32. In every part of this Code, except where a contrary intention appears from the context, words which refer to acts done extend also to illegal omissions.

Illegal omissions.—In recommending that illegal omissions should be treated as acts, the Indian Law Commissioners state as follows: "We cannot defend this rule better than by giving a few illustrations of the way in which it will operate. A omits to give Z food, and by that omission voluntarily causes Z's death. Is this murder? Under our rule it is murder if A was Z's jailor directed by law to furnish Z with food. It is murder if Z was the infant child of A, and had, therefore, a legal right to sustenance, which right a Civil Court would enforce against A. It is murder if Z was a bedridden invalid, and A, a nurse, hired to feed Z. It is not murder if Z is a beggar who has no other claim on A than that of humanity. A omits to tell Z that a river is swollen so high that Z cannot safely attempt to ford it, and by this omission voluntarily causes Z's death. It is murder if A is a peon stationed by authority to warn travellers from attempting to ford the river. It is murder if A is a guide who has contracted to guide Z. It is not murder if A is a person on whom Z has no other claim than that of humanity. A savage dog fastens on Z. A omits to call off the dog, knowing that, if the dog be not called off, it is likely to kill Z. Z is killed. This is murder in A if the dog belonged to A, inasmuch as the omission to take proper order with the dog is illegal (s. 289). But if A be a mere passer-by, it is not murder."—P. C. Note M. 55.

Speaking may be considered an act.—Take the following instance: Suppose it to be proved to the entire conviction of a Criminal Court that Z, the deceased, was in a very critical state of health; that A, heir to Z's property, had been informed by Z's physicians that Z's recovery absolutely depended on his being kept quiet in mind, and that the smallest mental excitement would endanger his life; that A immediately broke into Z's sick-room, and told him a dreadful piece of intelligence which was a pure invention; that Z went into fits, and died on the spot; that A had afterwards boasted of having cleared the way for himself to a good property by this artifice. These things being fully proved, no Judge could doubt that A had voluntarily caused the death of Z; nor do we perceive any reason for not punishing A in the same manner in which he would have been punished if he had mixed arsenic in Z's medicine."—Commissioners' First Report, s. 243, P. C. Note M. 59.

33. The word "act" denotes as well a series of acts as a single act; the word "omission" denotes as well a series of omissions as a single omission.

"Act."
"Omission."

34. When a criminal act is done by several persons in furtherance of the common intention of all, each of such persons is liable for that act in the same manner as if it were done by him alone.

Acts done by several persons in furtherance of common intention.

Rule as to one's responsibility for an act done.—An American jurist (Bishop, §439) thus explains the law upon the subject: "The true view is doubtless as follows: Every man is responsible criminally for what of wrong flows directly from his corrupt intention, but no man intending wrong is responsible for an independent act of wrong committed by another. If one person sets in motion the physical power of another person, the former is criminally guilty for its results. If he contemplated the result, he is answerable, though it is produced in a manner he did not contemplate. If he did not contemplate the result in kind, yet if it was the ordinary effect of the cause, he is responsible. If he awoke into action an indiscriminate power, he is responsible. If he gave directions vaguely and incautiously, and the person receiving them acted according to what might be presumed to have been his understanding of them, he is responsible. But if the wrong done was a fresh and independent wrong springing wholly from the mind of the doer, the other is not criminal therein, merely because, when it was done, he was intending to be a partaker with the doer in a different wrong. These propositions may not always be applied readily to cases arising, yet they seem to furnish the true rule."

Rule as to one's responsibility when present during commission of an act amounting to an offence.—The following remarks of Sir Barnes Peacock illustrate the meaning of the above section: "If the object and design of those who seized Amoordee was merely to take him to the thanna on a charge of theft, and it was not part of the common design to beat him, they would not all be liable for the consequence of the beating, merely because they were present. It is laid down that, when several persons are in company together, engaged in one common purpose, lawful or unlawful, and one of them, without the knowledge or consent of the others, commits any offence, the others will not be involved in the guilt, unless the act done was in some manner in furtherance of the common intention. It is also said that although a man is present when a felony is committed, if he take no part in it, and do not act in concert with those who committed it, he will not be a felon, merely because he did not attempt to prevent it, or to apprehend the felon. But if several persons go out together for the purpose of apprehending a man, and taking him to the thanna on a charge of theft, and some of the party, in the presence of the others, beat and ill-treat the man in a cruel and violent manner, and the others stand by and look on, without endeavouring to dissuade them from their cruel and violent conduct, it appears to me that those who have to deal with the facts might very properly infer that they were all assenting parties, and acting in concert, and that the beating was in furtherance of a common design. I do not know what the evidence was. All I wish to point out is, that all who are present do not necessarily assist by their presence every act that is done in their presence, nor are consequently liable to be punished as principals."—QUEEN v. GORA CHAND GOPE, 5 W. R. 45; B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 443; 1 Ind Jur. N. S. 177; 1 Wyman's Rev. Civ. and Crim. Rep. 43. [Peacock, C.J., and Trevor and Norman, JJ. Mar. 3, 1866.]

Act committed in pursuance of common object.—Held (Ainslie, J., dissenting) that s. 149 of the Penal Code is not intended to subject a member of an unlawful assembly to punishment for every offence which is committed by one of its members during the time they are engaged in the prosecution of the common object. In order to bring a case within s. 49, the act must be done with a view to accomplish the common object of the unlawful assembly, or it must be proved that the offence, though committed in prosecution of the common object of the unlawful assembly, is one which the accused knew would be likely to be committed in prosecution of the common object. Per Jackson, J.—Any offence done by a member of an unlawful assembly, in prosecution of the particular one or more of the five objects mentioned in s. 141, which is or are brought home to the unlawful assembly to which a prisoner belongs, is an offence within the meaning of the first part of s. 149. Where a certain number of persons, members of an unlawful assembly (party A), attacked another party (B), who were in occupation of land, with the view to drive them off the land by force, and one of the members in party A fired a gun at and killed one of the persons in party B, in consequence of a sudden and unexpected resistance which was offered by party B, it was held (Ainslie, J., dissenting), on a consideration of the evidence, that the persons composing party A, other than the person who fired the gun, could not be convicted of murder under s. 149, Penal Code. The conviction was altered under the circumstances to one of rioting armed with a deadly weapon under s. 148 of the Penal Code.—QUEEN v. SABID ALI, 20 W. R. 5; 11 B. L. R. 347. [Couch, C.J., and Jackson, Phear, Ainslie, and Pontifex, JJ. April 21, 1873.]

When two persons may be principals in the same transaction.—Where a blow is struck by A in the presence of, and by the order of, B, both are principals in the transaction; and where two persons join in beating a man, and he dies, it is not necessary to ascertain exactly what the effect of such blow was.—QUEEN v. MAHOMED ASGER, 23 W. R. 11. [Markby and McDonell, JJ. Dec. 12, 1874.]

When each of several persons engaged in a beating was held to be a principal, and convicted of murder.—Where each of several persons took part in beating a person so as to break eighteen ribs, and cause his death, each of them was held to be guilty, as a principal, of the murder of the deceased.—QUEEN v. GOUR CHUNDER DASS, 24 W. R. 5. [Markby and Morris, JJ. May 31, 1875.]

Constructively guilty of murder.—Where a prisoner is constructively guilty of murder under s. 34 of the Penal Code, it is doubtful if he can be said to have committed the offence of murder within the meaning of s. 149, so as to make other prisoners, by a double construction, guilty of murder.—IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF JHUBBOO MAHTON; EMPRESS v. JHUBBOO MAHTON, I. L. R., 8. Cal 739, 12 C. L. R. 233. [McDonell and Field, JJ. April 28, 1882.]

Mere presence of a person on a lawful occasion does not raise a presumption of his complicity in an offence.—The accused, who were classers employed in the Revenue Survey Department, were charged under s. 161 of the Indian Penal Code with taking bribes from the raiyats of certain villages. The only evidence against the accused was that of persons who had either subscribed to the bribes, or collected subscription, or paid the money to the accused. They stated that they had offered the bribes, because the classers had threatened to raise the assessment, cut down the hedges, and erect new boundary-marks. As regards this evidence, the trying Magistrate remarked that, even if all the witnesses for the prosecution were treated as accomplices, it was open to him to convict on their uncorroborated testimony, as "there was inherent truth in their statements, and circumstances existed which negatived the presumption of a conspiracy, and evidenced signs of truthfulness." The Magistrate was also of opinion that there was a distinction between accomplices who volunteered to assist in the receipt of illegal gratifications and those who assisted under compulsion. In the opinion of the Magistrate, the witnesses in the present case belonged to the latter class, and there was no reason to disbelieve their evidence. He, therefore, convicted the accused under s. 161 of the Indian Penal Code, and sentenced them to rigorous imprisonment and fine. Held (Scott, J., dissenting) that the convictions were illegal, there being no evidence to corroborate the witnesses for the prosecution, all of whom were accomplices. Held also (Scott, J., dissenting), that there was such error in the consideration by the Magistrate of the evidence as to prejudice the accused, and such a failure of justice as to justify the Court in revision in setting aside the convictions. Per Curiam.—The limits of the application of the doctrine of necessity, as an excuse for an act otherwise criminal, are those prescribed in s 194 of the Indian Penal Code. Therefore, witnesses, who, in order to avoid pecuniary injury or personal molestation, had offered or given bribes to a public servant, were abettors of the offence of taking an illegal gratification, and their evidence should be treated as that of accomplices. By the law both of India and England, the evidence of an accomplice is admissible, and a conviction is not illegal, because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice (s. 133 of the Evidence Act, I. of 1872). But the presumption that an accomplice is unworthy of credit, unless corroborated in material particulars, has become a rule of practice of almost universal application. Per Scott, J.—There may be, however, cases of an exceptional character in which the accomplice's evidence alone convinces a Judge, and, if he acts on that conviction, with the character of the witnesses clearly present in his mind, a Revisional Court ought not to interfere in the absence of other circumstances showing a want of judicial discretion. Per Jardine, J.—The mere circumstance of a person being present on a lawful occasion does not raise a presumption of that person's complicity in an offence then committed so as to make s. 34 of the Indian Penal Code applicable: Reg. v. Farler, 8 C. and P. 106. Where the Magistrate on that ground did make that presumption against an accused person, and applied the provisions of s. 34, he committed an error in law, and the High Court, as a Court of Revision, might acquit the accused.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. MAGANLAL AND MOTILAL, I. L. R., 14 Bom. 115. [Bayley, Scott, and Jardine, JJ. Sep. 24, 1889.]

Sentence of penal servitude for murder.—Where three prisoners assaulted the deceased, and gave him a beating, in the course of which one of the prisoners struck the deceased a blow on the head which resulted in death, held that, in the absence of proof that the prisoners had the common intention to inflict injury likely to cause death, they could not be convicted of murder. The punishment of penal servitude is only applicable to Europeans and Americans.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. DUMA BAIDYA, I. L. R., 19 Mad. 483 [Subramania Ayyar and Davies, JJ. Sep 4, 1896.]

Commission of grievous hurt in the course of dacoity: Person liable under s. 34, liable also under s. 397.—Held that the words, "such offender," in s. 397 of the Indian Penal Code, include any person taking part in the dacoity who, though he may not himself have struck the blow causing the grievous hurt, is nevertheless liable for the act by reason of s. 34 of the Code.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. MAHABIR TIWARI, I. L. R., 21 All. 263. [Strachey, C.J. Mar. 23, 1899.]

35. Whenever an act, which is criminal only by reason of its being done with a criminal knowledge or intention, is done by several persons, each of such persons who joins in the act with such knowledge or intention is liable for the act in the same manner as if the act were done by him alone with that knowledge or intention.

When such an act is criminal by reason of its being done with a criminal knowledge or intention.

36. Whenever the causing of a certain effect, or an attempt to cause that effect, by an act or by an omission, is an offence, it is to be understood that the causing of that effect, partly by an act, and partly by an omission, is the same offence.

Effect caused partly by act and partly by omission.

A intentionally causes Z's death, partly by illegally omitting to give Z food, and partly by beating Z. A has committed murder.

Co-operation by doing one of several acts constituting an offence.

37. When an offence is committed by means of several acts, whoever intentionally co-operates in the commission of that offence by doing any one of those acts, either singly, or jointly with any other person, commits that offence.

Illustrations.

(a.) A and B agree to murder Z by severally, and at different times, giving him small doses of poison. A and B administer the poison according to the agreement with intent to murder Z. Z dies from the effects of the several doses of poison so administered to him. Here A and B intentionally co-operate in the commission of murder, and, as each of them does an act by which the death is caused, they are both guilty of the offence, though their acts are separate.

(b.) A and B are joint jailors, and, as such, have the charge of Z, a prisoner, alternately for six hours at a time. A and B, intending to cause Z's death, knowingly co-operate in causing that effect by illegally omitting, each during the time of his attendance, to furnish Z with food supplied to them for that purpose. Z dies of hunger. Both A and B are guilty of the murder of Z.

(c.) A, a jailor, has the charge of Z, a prisoner. A, intending to cause Z's death, illegally omits to supply Z with food, in consequence of which Z is much reduced in strength, but the starvation is not sufficient to cause his death. A is dismissed from his office, and B succeeds him. B, without collusion or co-operation with A, illegally omits to supply Z with food, knowing that he is likely thereby to cause Z's death. Z dies of hunger. B is guilty of murder; but, as A did not co-operate with B, A is guilty only of an attempt to commit murder.

38. Where several persons are engaged or concerned in the commission of a criminal act, they may be guilty of different offences by means of that act.

Illustration.

A attacks Z under such circumstances of grave provocation that his killing of Z would be only culpable homicide not amounting to murder. B, having ill-will towards Z, and intending to kill him, and not having been subject to the provocation, assists A in killing Z. Here, though A and B are both engaged in causing Z's death, B is guilty of murder, and A is guilty only of culpable homicide.

"Voluntarily."

39. A person is said to cause an effect "voluntarily" when he causes it by means whereby he intended to cause it, or by means which, at the time of employing those means, he knew or had reason to believe to be likely to cause it.

Illustration.

A sets fire, by night, to an inhabited house in a large town for the purpose of facilitating a robbery, and thus causes the death of a person. Here A may not have intended to cause death, and may even be sorry that death has been caused by his act; yet, if he knew that he was likely to cause death, he has caused death voluntarily.

"Offence."

40. Except in the chapter and sections mentioned in clauses two and three of this section, the word "offence" denotes a thing made punishable by this Code.

---

* S. 40 has been substituted for the original by the Indian Penal Code Amendment Act (XXVII. of 1870), s. 2. The figures, 64, 65, 66, and 71, in the second clause of s. 40, have been inserted by the Indian Penal Code Amendment Act (VIII. of 1882), s. 1; and the figures 67 by the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act (X. of 1886), s. 21 (f).

In Chapter IV., and in the following sections, namely, sections 64, 65, 66, 67, 71, 109, 110, 112, 114, 115, 116, 117, 187, 194, 195, 203, 211, 213, 214, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 347, 348, 388, 389, and 445, the word "offence" denotes a thing punishable under this Code, or under any special or local law as hereinafter* defined:

And in sections 141, 176, 177, 201, 202, 212, 216, and 441, the word "offence" has the same meaning when the thing punishable under the special or local law is punishable under such law with imprisonment for a term of six months or upwards, whether with or without fine.

Escape from custody when being taken before Magistrate to be bound over to be of good behaviour. — An escape from custody when being taken before a Magistrate for the purpose of being bound over to be of good behaviour is not punishable under either s. 224 or s. 225 of the Penal Code.—EMPRESS v. SHASTI CHURN NAPIT, I. L. R., 8 Cal. 331; 10 C. L. R. 290. [Mitter and Maclean, JJ. Feb. 22, 1882.]

Person resisting apprehension and escaping when directed to be arrested as a person of bad livelihood.—An order was issued to a police-officer, directing him to arrest K, under s. 55 of the Criminal Procedure Code as a person of bad livelihood. K, with the assistance of three others, resisted apprehension, and escaped. Held that K was not charged with an "offence" within the meaning of that term as defined in s. 40 of the Penal Code, and that consequently no offence made punishable by s. 224 or s. 225 of the Penal Code had been committed in connection with his evasion of arrest. Empress v. Shasti Churn Napit (I. L. R., 8 Cal. 331, 10 C. L. R., 290) followed.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KANDHAIA, I. L. R., 7 All. 67. [Mahmood and Duthoit, JJ. Aug. 7, 1884.]

It is not an offence to neglect to maintain a wife.—Neglect to maintain a wife is not an offence. And an order for payment of maintenance is not a conviction for an offence.—In re, PONNAMMAL, I. L. R., 16 Mad. 234. [Handley and Best, JJ. Oct. 14, 1892.]

Infliction of fine, and imprisonment in default.—Where a conviction has taken place under the Towns Nuisances Act (Madras), 1889, s. 3, a Magistrate has jurisdiction to impose a fine, and also to pronounce a sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of the fine.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAPPEL, I. L. R., 18 Mad. 490. [Collins, C.J. and Parker, J. Aug. 9, 1895.]

Travelling on a railway without a proper ticket: Punishment. — A passenger, who travels in a train without having a proper pass or ticket with him, has not committed an "offence." He cannot therefore be legally sentenced to imprisonment in default of payment of the excess charge and fare which may be recovered under the provisions of s. 113, cl. (d), of Act IX. of 1890.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAM PAL, I. L. R., 20 All. 95 [Knox, J. Aug. 2, 1897.]

Defrauding Government of stamp revenue by a contrivance or device not otherwise specially provided for: Receipt of unstamped document: Abetment of an offence under s. 61 of Stamp Act, 1879.—Two letters were written to petitioner, in which the writer recommended him to advance sums of money to the bearers of the letters, and bound himself to repay those sums, if lent, in case of default on the part of the borrowers. The loans were made by petitioner, who kept the letters. A prosecution having been subsequently commenced against petitioner under s. 67 of the Stamp Act, 1879, for defrauding Government of stamp-revenue by an illegal device, and he having been convicted on the ground that, when the loans were granted, the documents became letters of guarantee, and, as such, liable to stamp duty. Held that the execution of a document which, on its face, required to be and was not stamped, could not be said to be "an act, contrivance, or device not specially provided for by this Act or any other law for the time being in force;" and that punishment for the act of the executant of such a document, if it were punishable at all, was provided for under s. 61 of the Stamp Act, 1879, and it could not therefore be dealt with under s. 67. Also that the act of a person receiving an unstamped document might amount to abetment of an offence, having regard to s. 61 of the Stamp Act, 1879, and to the definition of an "offence" in s. 40 of the Penal Code, and, if so, would be an act provided for by "any other law for the time being in force," and so not within the terms of s. 67 of the

"Special law." 41. A "special law" is a law applicable to a particular subject.

Vakil soliciting legal work: Incitement to commit an offence.—A vakil of the High Court signed and sent a letter to another vakil of that Court, who practised in the District Courts subordinate thereto. The purport of this, which was one of several printed forms prepared for circulation to vakils practising in districts, was to the effect that the vakil, to whom it was addressed, could easily send his client's cases, both civil and criminal, to the writer, who would conduct them in that Court. And "as a remuneration" the fees paid by the clients would be shared by the writer and the vakil who had sent the cases. The judicia committee concurred substantially in the conclusions of the High Court, that this was an incitement within s. 116 (abetment) of the Indian Penal Code to commit an offence made penal by s. 36 (which was a special law within s. 41 of that Code) of Act XVIII. of 1879, the Legal Practitioners Act.—In re PARBATI CHARAN CHATTERJEE, I. L. R., 17 All. 498. [Watson, Morris, and Couch, JJ. June 20, 1895.]

"Local law." 42. A "local law" is a law applicable only to a particular part of British India.

"Illegal." "Legally bound to do." 43. The word "illegal" is applicable to everything which is an offence, or which is prohibited by law, or which furnishes ground for a civil action; and a person is said to be "legally bound to do" whatever it is illegal in him to omit.

"Injury." 44. The word "injury" denotes any harm whatever illegally caused to any person in body, mind, reputation, or property.

Negligence causing injury.—To sustain an action for negligence, there must be an obligation on the part of the defendant to use care, and a breach of that obligation to the plaintiff's injury. "Injury" is an act contrary to law. To sustain an action for malicious prosecution, the prosecution must have been malicious and without reasonable or probable cause.—SVAMI NAYUDU v. SUBRAMANIA MUDALI, 2 Mad. H. C. R. 158. [Phillips and Holloway, JJ. July 14, 1864.]

Causing death by a rash and negligent act: Injury.—A Magistrate imposed a fine in addition to a sentence of imprisonment, on a conviction for the offence of causing death by a rash and negligent act, and gave compensation to the widow of the deceased out of the fine imposed. Held that compensation could not be given to the widow under the Criminal Procedure Code, s. 545. Davies, J., adds: "The loss is one quite independent of the injury to the deceased, although it arises out of it, and cannot, therefore, in my opinion, be included in the term "injury" as used in a limited sense in s. 545, for it is not "caused by the offence committed," except indirectly.—YALLA GANGULU v. MAMIDI DALI, I. L. R., 21 Mad. 74. [Shephard, Subramania Ayyar, Davies, and Boddam, JJ. June 12, Nov. 5, 18, 30, 1897.]

See also In re LUTCHMAKA, I. L. R, 12 Mad. 352. [Muttusami Ayyar and Parker, JJ. Mar. 29, 1889.]

"Life." 45. The word "life" denotes the life of a human being, unless the contrary appears from the context.

"Death." 46. The word "death" denotes the death of a human being, unless the contrary appears from the context.

"Animal." 47. The word "animal" denotes any living creature other than a human being.

Is a crab an animal?—The provisions of Act XI. of 1890 (Prevention of Cruelty to Animals) apply to cruelty exercised towards any animal which is either "domestic," or which, being feræ naturæ, has been "captured," and is in captivity. Crabs are "animals" within the definition of s. 2 of Act XI. of 1890. If a person exposes them for sale at a public place with their legs broken, and with their shells crushed in, so as necessarily to cause them pain, he incurs the penalty prescribed by s. 3 of the Act.—TULSI BEWAH v. SWEENEY, I. L. R., 24 Cal. 881. [Ghose and Wilkins, JJ. July 20, 1897.]

"Vessel."

48. The word "vessel" denotes anything made for the conveyance by water of human beings or of property.

"Year:" "Month."

49. Wherever the word "year" or the word "month" is used, it is to be understood that the year or the month is to be reckoned according to the British calendar.

"Section."

"Oath."

51. The word "oath" includes a solemn affirmation substituted by law for an oath, and any declaration required or authorized by law to be made before a public servant, or to be used for the purpose of proof, whether in a Court of Justice or not.

"Good faith."

52. Nothing is said to be done or believed in good faith which is done or believed without due care and attention.

When a Magistrate is not protected.—Neither Act XVIII. of 1850, nor ss. 68 212 of the Criminal Procedure Code, protect a Magistrate who has failed to act reasonably, carefully, and circumspectly in the discharge of his duties.—VINAYAK DIVAKAR v. BAI ITCHA, 3 Bom. H. C. R. A. C. 36. [Westropp, Tucker, and Warden, JJ. Sep. 18, 1865.]

Police-officer not acting in good faith.—The general exception provided by s. 79 of the Penal Code, and the power conferred by cl. 5, s. 100 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, was held not to protect a police-officer who did not act in good faith, i.e., with due care and attention. Cl. 5, s. 100 of the Criminal Procedure, refers to property which is proved to have been stolen, and not to anything which a police-officer may choose to imagine has been stolen. Where a police-officer refused to let a person go home until he had given bail, he was held to have been guilty of wrongful restraint under s. 339 of the Penal Code.—SHEO SARUN SAHAI v. MAHOMED FAZIL KHAN, 10 W. R. 20. [Loch and Glover, JJ. July 17, 1868.]

Meaning of bona fide.—The legal meaning of bonâ fide is with due care and after due inquiry.—RADHA PERSHAD SINGH v. RAM JEEWUN SINGH, 11 W. R. 389. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. April 26, 1869.]

Magistrate not acting with due care and attention: Suit for damages against him—The plaintiff sued a Magistrate for damage occasioned to him by the cutting of his band at the Magistrate's order. The Magistrate raised the defence that he was protected by Act XVIII. of 1850 for all acts done by him bonâ fide in his magisterial capacity. Held, on the facts, that the Magistrate was liable. Act XVIII. of 1850 does not protect a Magistrate who has not acted with due care and attention. The mere absence of mala fides is no defence. A Magistrate cannot be said to have "in good faith" believed himself to have jurisdiction to do or order the act complained of, unless he, in arriving at that belief, acted reasonably, circumspectly, and carefully. A Magistrate would not be personally liable for an act done by him under a misconstruction or misinterpretation of the law, if his proceedings were in other respects regular, and if the misconstruction or misrepresentation were one which might have been put upon the law by a reasonable man with ordinary care and attention. But a Magistrate is not protected by saying he misconstrued the law, unless his proceedings have been in other respects regular, and the view of the law taken by him is such as a reasonable and careful man might take. Neither s. 62, nor Chapter XX. of the Criminal Procedure Code, authorizes a Magistrate to dispose of the property of others at his mere will and pleasure, or without his having distinct and legal grounds for the course he takes. When a Magistrate violates the plain language of the law, and the very first principles of judicial enquiry, his proceedings presumably are characterised by want of care.—TARAKNATH MOOKHOPADHYA v. THE COLLECTOR OF HOOGHLY, 4 B L. R. A. C. 37; S. C. 13 W. R. 13. [Jackson and Macpherson, JJ. Jan. 5, 1870.]

Cutting out piles with an ordinary knife.—A kobiraj operated on a man for internal piles by cutting them out with an ordinary knife The man died from hæmorrhage. The kobiraj was charged, under s. 304A of the Penal Code, with causing death by doing a rash and negligent act. It was contended that, inasmuch as the prisoner had performed similar operations on previous occasions, it was not a rash act within the meaning of that section, and that, at all events, he was entitled to the benefit of s. 88 of the Penal Code, as he did the act in good faith, without any intention to cause death, and for the benefit of the patient who had accepted the risk Held that, as the prisoner was admittedly uneducated in matters of surgery, and having regard to the meaning of "good faith" as defined in s. 52 of the Penal Code, he was not entitled to the benefit of s. 88. Held further that s. 88 did not apply to the case, as it was not shown by the accused, on whom the burden of proving that fact lay, that the deceased knew the risk he was running in consenting to the operation, and he could not therefore be said to have accepted the risk. Held also that, under the circumstances, the conviction under s. 304A was a proper one.—SUKAROO KOBIRAJ v. THE EMPRESS, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 566. [Tottenham and Ghose, JJ. April 30, 1887.]

See Bhawoo Jivaji v. Mulji Dayal, I. L. R., 12 Bom. 377, under s. 342.

Order to shoot illegal: Good faith wanting: Murder.—A caused crops to be sown on land, as to the enjoyment of which there was a dispute between her and B. Persons having proceeded to reap the crops on behalf of B, the servants of A went to the place with the station-house-officer and some constables, who were armed. The station-house-officer ordered the reapers to leave off reaping, and to disperse; but they did not do so. He then told one of the constables to fire, and he fired into the air. Some of the reapers remained, and assumed a defiant attitude. The station-house-officer, without attempting to make any arrests, and without warning the reapers that, if they did not desist from reaping, they would be fired at, gave orders to shoot, and one of the constables fired, and mortally wounded one of the reapers. It was found that neither the station-house-officer nor the last-mentioned constable believed that it was necessary for the public security to disperse the reapers by firing on them. Held that the station-house-officer and the constable were not acting in good faith, and that the order to shoot was illegal, and did not justify the constable, and that both he and the station-house-officer were guilty of murder.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SUBBA NAIK, I. L. R., 21 Mad. 249. [Collins, C.J. and Shephard, J. Mar. 11, 23, 1898.]

OF PUNISHMENTS.

"Punishment."

53. The punishments to which offenders are liable under the provisions of this Code are—

First—Death;

Secondly—Transportation;

Thirdly—Penal servitude;

Fourthly—Imprisonment,* which is of two descriptions, namely:—

* This definition of "imprisonment" applies in the case of all Acts of the Governor-General in Council made after the 3rd January 1868, and of all Regulations made under the Government of India Act, 1870 (33 Vict., c. 3) after the 14th January 1887.—See the General Clauses Act (X. of 1897), ss. 3 (26) and 4 (1) and (2).

(1) Rigorous, that is, with hard labour;

(2) Simple;

Fifthly—Forfeiture of property;

Sixthly—Fine.*

Some term of imprisonment, however small, must be awarded, where the offence is punishable with imprisonment, to which fine may be added.—Offences which are punishable with imprisonment, and for which the offender is also liable to fine, cannot be punishable with fine only, but some term of imprisonment must be awarded, even if it be only momentary.—REG. v. CHANVIOVA KOM SHIDRAM SHETTI, 1 Bom. H. C. R. 4; REG. v. RAMA BIN RABHAJI, 1 Bom. H. C. R. 34; REG. v. BAHIRJI BIN KRISHNAJI, 1 Bom. H. C. R. 39; 4 Mad. H. C R, Ap 18.

Juvenile offenders.—Act XXIV. of 1858 provides for penal servitude as a substitute for transportation in case of Europeans and Americans. Act VI. of 1864 makes provision for whipping. Under this Act offenders are liable to whipping either as an alternative or as an additional punishment. Juvenile offenders committing any offence not punishable with death under the Penal Code may, under s. 5 of the Whipping Act, be punished, whether for a first or any other offence, with whipping in lieu of any other punishment to which they may be liable for such offence, under the Code. According to Act X. of 1882, s. 392, and Empress v. Din Ali (I. L. R., 6 All. 482), a juvenile offender is a person under 16 years of age.

Fine on each prisoner.—A sentence must impose a specific fine on each prisoner,—PRO., Nov. 11, 1869, 5 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 5

Commutation of sentence of death.

54. In every case in which sentence of death shall have been passed, the Government of India, or the Government of the place within which the offender shall have been sentenced, may, without the consent of the offender, commute the punishment for any other punishment provided by this Code.

Commutation of sentence of transportation for life.

55. In every case in which sentence of transportation for life shall have been passed, the Government of India, or the Government of the place within which the offender shall have been sentenced, may, without the consent of the offender, commute the punishment for imprisonment of either description for a term not exceeding fourteen years.

Suspension or remission of sentence.—When any person has been sentenced to punishment for an offence, the Governor-General in Council or the Local Government may, at any time, without conditions, or upon any conditions which the person sentenced accepts, suspend the execution of his sentence, or remit the whole or any part of the punishment to which he has been sentenced. Whenever an application is made to the Governor-General in Council or the Local Government for the suspension or remission of a sentence, the Governor-General in Council or the Local Government, as the case may be, may require the presiding Judge of the Court before or by which the conviction was had or confirmed, to state his opinion as to whether the application should be granted or refused, together with his reasons for such opinion. If the person in whose favour a sentence has been suspended or remitted fails to fulfil the conditions prescribed by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, the Governor-General in Council or the Local Government, as the case may be, may cancel such suspension or remission, whereupon such person may, if at large, be arrested by any police-officer without warrant, and remanded to undergo the unexpired por-

Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to interfere with the right of Her Majesty to grant pardons, reprieves, respites, or remissions of punishment.—(6) The Governor-General in Council and the Local Government may, by general rules or special orders, give directions as to the suspension of sentences and conditions on which petitions should be presented and dealt with. —Criminal Procedure Code (Act V. of 1898), s. 401.

Commutation of sentence.—The Governor-General in Council or the Local Government may, without the consent of the person sentenced commute any one of the following sentences for any other mentioned after it; death, transportation, penal servitude rigorous imprisonment for a term not exceeding that to which he might have been sentenced, simple imprisonment for a like term, fine.—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V. of 1898), s. 402.

56. Whenever any person, being a European or American, is convicted of an offence punishable under this Code with transportation, the Court shall sentence the offender to penal servitude, instead of transportation, according to the provisions of Act XXIV. of 1855:

Sentence of Europeans and Americans to penal servitude.

Provided that, where a European or American offender would, but for such Act, be liable to be sentenced or ordered to be transported for a term exceeding ten years, but not for life, he shall be liable to be sentenced or ordered to be kept in penal servitude for such term exceeding six years as to the Court seems fit, but not for life.*

Proviso as to sentence for term exceeding ten years, but not for life.

Europeans and Americans amenable to penal servitude. — The punishment of penal servitude is only applicable to Europeans and Americans.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. DUMA BAIDYA, I. L. R., 19 Mad. 483. [Subramania Ayyar and Davies, JJ. Sep. 4, 1896.]

57. In calculating fractions of terms of punishment, transportation for life shall be reckoned as equivalent to transportation for twenty years.

Fractions of terms of punishment.

Sentence for attempt at rape.—Under ss. 57, 376, and 511 of the Penal Code, a sentence of 10 years' transportation, or of five years' rigorous imprisonment, may be passed for the offence of attempt to commit rape; but a sentence of seven years' rigorous imprisonment, commutable under s. 59 of the Penal Code to seven years' transportation, is illegal.—QUEEN v. JOSEPH MERIAM, 10 W. R. 10; 1 B. L. R. A. Cr. 5. [Loch and Glover, JJ. July 6, 1868.]

58. In every case in which a sentence of transportation is passed, the offender, until he is transported, shall be dealt with in the same manner as if sentenced to rigorous imprisonment, and shall be held to have been undergoing his sentence of transportation during the term of his imprisonment.

Offenders sentenced to transportation how dealt with until transported.

A prisoner sentenced to transportation to be imprisoned till transported.—The sentence of imprisonment for life in transportation is to commence after time for appeal is not warranted, s 58 of the Indian Penal Code provides that they are to be imprisoned till transported.—In re TOPASHEERAM KOPALEE, 8 W. R. Cr. L. 5, No. 716, 1867.

59. In every case in which an offender is punishable with imprisonment for a term of seven years or upwards, it shall be competent to the Court which sentences such offender, Transportation instead of imprisonment.

* This proviso has been added by the Indian Penal Code Amendment Act (XXVII. of 1870), s. 3.

instead of awarding sentence of imprisonment, to sentence the offender to transportation for a term not less than seven years, and not exceeding the term for which by this Code such offender is liable to imprisonment.

Illegality of a sentence of 14 years' transportation.—If a person concerned in a dacoity unintentionally commits murder, he is liable to punishment under s. 306 of the Penal Code, but he cannot be separately convicted of murder under s. 302 and of committing dacoity under s. 395. Where the law gives the alternative punishments of death, transportation for life, and rigorous imprisonment extending to ten years, a sentence of 14 years' transportation is illegal. If the Judge thinks it proper to pass a sentence of transportation short of life, he should pass a sentence of imprisonment for the term fixed by law, and then, under s 59, change it to transportation for the period.—QUEEN v. RUGHOO, W. R. Sp. 30. [Loch and Jackson JJ. May 3, 1864.]

Transportation can be inflicted where offence punishable with imprisonment for seven years or upwards.—Under s. 59 of the Penal Code, a Court can sentence to transportation only in a case in which the offence is punishable with imprisonment for seven years or upwards. It may, in passing sentence for the offence, commute the imprisonment to transportation, but it cannot commute the sentence after the sentence of imprisonment has been passed.—QUEEN v. PREM CHUND OUSAWAL, W. R. Sp. 35. [Jackson and Glover, JJ. June 6, 1864.]

To bring s. 59 into operation, the punishment awarded on one offence alone must be seven years: The seven years cannot be made up by adding two sentences together.—It has been frequently ruled that, to bring s 59 of the Penal Code into operation, the punishment awarded on one offence alone must be seven years' imprisonment. Those seven years cannot be made up by adding two sentences together, and then commuting the amalgamated period of imprisonment to one of transportation.—1 W. R. Cr. L. 1, No. 867, 1864.

Two sentences cannot be added together, and then commuted to transportation.—To bring s. 59 of the Penal Code into operation, the punishment awarded on one offence alone must be seven years' imprisonment, and cannot be made up by adding two sentences together, and then commuting the amalgamated period to transportation. The two offences of robbery and of voluntarily causing hurt, when combined, are punishable under s. 294 alone, and not under ss. 392 and 394.—QUEEN v. MOOTKER KORA, 2 W. R. 1. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Jan. 2, 1865.]

Imprisonment can be converted into transportation only where the offender has been sentenced in one case to at least seven years' imprisonment.—Under the terms of s. 59 of the Penal Code, imprisonment can be converted into transportation only in a case in which the offender has been sentenced to at least seven years' transportation. It is not sufficient that three sentences amount in the aggregate to more than seven years, for the Court have more than once held that s. 59 of the Penal Code will not apply to any sentence unless that particular sentence be one of imprisonment for more than seven years.—3 W. R. Cr. L. 15, No. 667, 1865.

Dacoity: Sentence of transportation for 10 years not regular: No sentence of transportation can be passed except for life: Proper course was to award imprisonment, and then commute it to transportation.—The sentence of transportation for ten years, passed on the prisoner, is not altogether regular, since for dacoity, under s 395 of the Penal Code, no sentence of transportation can be passed except for life. The proper course was to have sentenced him to rigorous imprisonment, and then, under the provision of s. 59 of the Penal Code, to have commuted it to transportation.—3 W. R. Cr L. 16, No. 684, 1865.

When transportation can be substituted for imprisonment.—Transportation can only be substituted for imprisonment when the offender is sentenced to at least seven years' imprisonment in one case.—QUEEN v. TONOORAM MALEE, 3 W. R. 44. [Kemp and Seton Karr, JJ. July 11, 1865.]

Transportation under ss 412 and 59 cannot exceed 10 years.—A sentence of transportation under ss. 412 and 59 of the Penal Code cannot exceed ten years.—QUEEN v. MAHANUNDO BHUNDARY, 5 W. R. 16. [Seton-Karr and Macpherson, JJ. Jan. 20, 1866.]

Transportation cannot be less than seven years.—A sentence of transportation cannot be less than seven years. To bring s. 59 of the Penal Code into operation, the punishment awarded in each offence alone must not be less than seven years' imprisonment. A general sentence of transportation for two or more offences, when only one of the punishments awarded is seven years' imprisonment, is illegal.—QUEEN v. SHONAULLAH, 5 W. R. 44. [Macpherson and Glover, JJ. Mar. 3, 1866.]

Mode of passing sentence of transportation: Court should mention that such transportation is awarded in lieu of imprisonment.—With reference to the form in which many Sessions Judges pass sentences of transportation in cases in which imprisonment is awardable for seven years or upwards, the Court request the attention of the Sessions Courts to the terms of s. 59 of Act XLV. of 1860, from which it will be seen that the correct mode of proceeding is to sentence the offender to transportation, mentioning at the same time that, under s. 59 of the Penal Code, such transportation is awarded instead of imprisonment, simple or rigorous, as the case may be.—6 W. R Cr. Cir. 7, No. 9, 1866. [Trevor, Loch, Norman and Jackson, JJ. Aug. 3, 1866.] See also 6 W. R. Cr. L. 2, No. 555, 1866.

Transportation cannot be less than seven years.—Under s. 59 of the Penal Code, no sentence of transportation for a shorter period than seven years can be passed on any charge. Therefore, where a prisoner was convicted on separate charges of giving false evidence in a judicial proceeding under s. 193, and of forgery under s. 467, and sentenced to seven years' transportation for the first offence, and a further period of transportation for three years for the second offence, the second sentence was quashed as illegal. — QUEEN v. GOUR CHUNDER ROY, 8 W. R. 2. [Norman and Seton-Karr, JJ. June 3, 1867.]

When transportation for seven years can be awarded instead of imprisonment.—An officer exercising the powers described in s. 1, Act XV. of 1862, is competent, under the provisions of s. 59 of the Penal Code, to pass a sentence of transportation for seven years instead of awarding sentence of imprisonment.—IN THE MATTER OF BHODHOOA, 9 W. R. 6; B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 869; 5 Wyman's Rev., Civ., and Crim Reporter 20. [Peacock, C.J., and Seton-Karr, Jackson, Macpherson, and Hobhouse, JJ. Jan. 14, 1868.]

Illegal commutation of imprisonment to transportation for attempt at rape.—A was convicted of an attempt to commit rape, and was sentenced by the Judge to rigorous imprisonment for seven years, which he commuted, under this section, to transportation for the same term. Held that, under s. 376 and 511, Penal Code, a sentence to imprisonment for the offence committed could not be for a longer term than five years, and such sentence could not be commuted, under s. 59, to transportation for a longer term, although, if the sentence of transportation had been passed in the first instance, it might have been for 10 years.—QUEEN v. JOSEPH MERIAM, 1 B L. R A. Cr. 5; 10 W. R. 10. [Loch and Glover, JJ. July 6, 1868.]

When transportation cannot exceed the term of imprisonment.—When an offence is punishable either with transportation for life or imprisonment for a term of years, if a sentence of transportation for a term less than life is awarded, such term cannot exceed the term of imprisonment.—REG. v. NAIADA, I. L. R., 1 All. 43 [Turner, Offg. C.J., and Pearson, Spankie, and Oldfield, JJ. Aug. 23, 1875.]

When transportation cannot be substituted for imprisonment.—S. 59 of the Penal Code does not authorize the substitution of transportation for the imprisonment to which a Court can sentence an offender in default of payment of fine.—KUNHUSSA v. REG., I. L. R., 5 Mad. 28. [Innes and Muttusami Ayyar, JJ. Feb. 28, 1882.]

60. In every case in which an offender is punishable with imprisonment which may be of either description, it shall be competent to the Court, which sentences such offender to direct in the sentence that such imprisonment shall be wholly rigorous, or that such imprisonment shall be wholly simple, or that any part of such imprisonment shall be rigorous and the rest simple.

Sentence may be (in certain cases of imprisonment) wholly or partly rigorous or simple.

Whenever any youthful offender is sentenced to transportation or imprisonment, and is, in the judgment of the Court by which he is sentenced, a proper person to be an inmate of a Reformatory School, the Court may, subject to any rules made by the Local Government, direct that, instead of undergoing his sentence, he shall be sent to such a school, and be there detained for a period which shall be not less than three or more than seven years. (2) The powers so conferred on the Court by this section shall be exercised only by (a) the High Court, (b) a Court of Session, (c) a District Magistrate, and (d) any Magistrate specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, and may be exercised by such Courts whether the case comes before them originally or on appeal. (3) The Local Government may make rules for—(a) defining what youthful offenders should be sent to Reformatory Schools, having regard to the nature of their offences or other considerations, and (b) regulating the periods for which youthful offenders may be sent to such schools according to their ages or other considerations.—Reformatory Schools Act, section 8.

When any Magistrate, not empowered to pass an order under the last foregoing section, is of opinion that a youthful offender convicted by him is a proper person to be an inmate of a Reformatory School he may, without passing sentence, record such opinion, and submit his proceedings and forward the youthful offender to the District Magistrate to whom he is subordinate. (2) The Magistrate to whom the proceedings are so submitted may make such further inquiry (if any) as he may think fit, and pass such sentence and order for the detention in a Reformatory School of the youthful offender, or otherwise, as he might have passed if such youthful offender had been originally tried by him.—Reformatory Schools Act, section 9

The officer in charge of a prison in which a youthful offender is confined, in execution of a sentence of imprisonment, may bring him, if he has not then attained the age of fifteen years, before the District Magistrate within whose jurisdiction such prison is situate; and such Magistrate may, if such youthful offender appears to be a proper person to be an inmate of a Reformatory School, direct that, instead of undergoing the residue of his sentence, he shall be sent to a Reformatory School, and there detained for a period which shall be subject to the same limitations as are prescribed by or under section 8, with reference to the period of detention thereby authorised.—Reformatory Schools Act, section 10.

Before directing any youthful offender to be sent to a Reformatory School under section 8, section 9, or section 10, the Court or Magistrate shall inquire into the question of his age, and, after taking such evidence (if any) as may be deemed necessary, shall record a finding thereon, stating his age as nearly as may be. (2) A similar inquiry shall be made and finding recorded by every Magistrate not empowered to pass an order under section 8 before submitting his proceedings and forwarding the youthful offender to the District Magistrate as required by section 9, sub section (1).—Reformatory Schools Act, section 11.

Every youthful offender directed by a Court or Magistrate to be sent to a Reformatory School shall be sent to such Reformatory School as the Local Government may by general or special order appoint for the reception of youthful offenders so dealt with by such Court or Magistrate: Provided that, if accommodation in a Reformatory School is not immediately available for such youthful offender, he may be detained in the juvenile ward or such other suitable part of a prison as the Local Government may direct—(a) until he can be sent to a Reformatory School, or (b) until the term of his original sentence expires, whichever event may first happen. Should the term of his original sentence first expire, he shall thereupon be released, but, should he be sent to a Reformatory School, then the period of detention previously undergone shall be treated as detention in a Reformatory School.—Reformatory Schools Act, section 12.

If at any time after a youthful offender has been sent to a Reformatory School, it appears to the Committee of Visitors or Board of Management, as the case may be, that the age of such youthful offender has been understated in the order for detention, and that he will attain the age of eighteen years before the expiration of the period for which he has been ordered to be detained, they shall report the case for the orders of the Local Government — 2) No person shall be detained in a Reformatory School after he has been found by the Local Government to have attained the age of eighteen years.—Reformatory Schools Act, section 13.

When a sentence of imprisonment should commence.—A sentence of imprisonment ought to commence from the time that the sentence is passed, unless there is some lawful reason for ordering it to commence at some future period. Except as in the cases provided for by ss. 46, 47, and 48 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act XXV. of 1861), a Magistrate cannot authorize a sentence passed by him to take place from some future date, nor (except as provided for by s. 421 of the Code of Criminal Procedure) can a sentence, which is to take place immediately, be suspended.—IN THE MATTER OF KRISHNANAND BHATTACHARJEE, 3 B. L. R. A. Cr., 50 ; S. C., 12 W. R. 47 (where the name is given as KISHEN SOONDER BHUTTACHARJEE).

Forfeiture of property.

S. 62 of the Penal Code, which provides for forfeitures, limits them to cases where the parties shall have been transported, or sentenced to imprisonment for at least seven years.—QUEEN v. KRIPAMOYEE CHASSANEE, 8 W. R. 35. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. July 8, 1867 ]

WHERE a zemindar was convicted of wrongfully keeping in confinement a kidnapped person, and was sentenced to transportation by the Sessions Judge, who added a sentence of forfeiture of the rents and profits of the prisoner's estates under s. 62 of the Penal Code, the High Court set aside the sentence under s. 62 as too severe. That sentence should be inflicted for offences of the most atrocious kind, or for offences committed under the most aggravated circumstances.—QUEEN v. MAHOMED AKHIR alias TOTAH MEKAH, 12 W. R. 17. [Jackson and Markby, JJ. June 29, 1869 ]

61. In every case in which a person is convicted of an offence for which he is liable to forfeiture of all his property, the offender shall be incapable of acquiring any property, except for the benefit of Government, until he shall have undergone the punishment awarded or the punishment to which it shall have been commuted, or until he shall have been pardoned.

After the sentence, and whilst the same is in force, A's father dies, leaving an estate which, but for the forfeiture, would become the property of A. The estate becomes the property of Government.

62. Whenever any person is convicted of an offence punishable with death, the Court may adjudge that all his property, moveable and immoveable, shall be forfeited to Government; and whenever any person shall be convicted of any offence for which he shall be transported or sentenced to imprisonment for a term of seven years or upwards, the Court may adjudge that the rents and profits of all his moveable and immoveable estate, during the period of his transportation or imprisonment, shall be forfeited to Government, subject to such provision for his family and dependants as the Government may think fit to allow during such period.

Compensation : Court should state in its order a specific sum for each individual.—The specific sums to be paid to each individual should always be distinctly stated in the body of the order when directing that compensations be granted, otherwise mistakes may occur, which should be carefully avoided.—3 W. * The provisions of ss. 63 to 70 apply to all fines imposed under the authority of any Act, Regulation, rule, or bye-law, unless the Act, Regulation, rule, or bye-law, contains an express provision to the contrary.—See the General Clauses Act (X. of 1897), s. 25.

Portion of fine directed to be paid to amin : Illegality of order.—A Joint-Magistrate was held not competent to direct, under s. 44 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act XXV. of 1861), that a portion of a fine inflicted under s. 434 of the Penal Code be paid to an amin for the purpose of paying the expense of his deputation to restore the landmarks which had been destroyed by the opposite party.—QUEEN v. MOORUT LOLL, 6 W. R. 93. [Kemp and Markby, JJ. Dec. 21, 1866.]

Excessive fine.—The following important remarks were made by the High Court (Jackson, J.) in a case in which the accused moved the Court on the ground that the fine (Rs. 500) imposed on him by a Magistrate was excessive: "It is not shown in any way what the income of the petitioner was, or why the fine is excessive. An application on such a ground should be supported by proof of what the income of the petitioner was, and that the fine was altogether disproportioned to that income, and oppressive. The description of fine which it was the object of this section to prohibit, was a fine which it would be impossible or very difficult for the accused person to pay, or wholly disproportioned to the character of the offence. And to this it may be added that it is doubtful whether the section cited has any application to fines inflicted by a Magistrate. By its terms it applies to cases where the amount of fine is unlimited by law. Now, the power of the Magistrate to fine is, in all cases, under the Penal and Criminal Procedure Codes, limited to Rs. 1,000; and it is only the Court of Session or the High Court that can inflict fines to an unlimited amount."—QUEEN v. ABDUR RUHMAN, 7 W. R. 37. [Jackson, J. Mar. 1, 1867.]

How fine may be directed to be applied—Whenever, under any law in force for the time being, a Criminal Court imposes a fine, or confirms, in appeal, revision, or otherwise, a sentence of fine, or a sentence of which fine forms a part, the Court may, when passing judgment, order the whole or any part of the fine recovered to be applied (a) in defraying expenses properly incurred in the prosecution; (b) in compensation for the injury caused by the offence committed, where substantial compensation is, in the opinion of the Court, recoverable by civil suit. If the fine is imposed in a case which is subject to appeal, no such payment shall be made before the period allowed for presenting the appeal has elapsed, or, if an appeal be presented, before the decision of the appeal.—Crim. Pro Code (Act V. of 1898), s. 545

Amount of compensation to be taken into account in subsequent suit.—At the time of awarding compensation in any subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter, the Court shall take into account any sum paid or recovered as compensation under s. 545.—Crim. Pro. Code (Act V. of 1898), s. 546.

"and in every case of an offence punishable with imprisonment or fine, or with fine only, in which the offender is sentenced to a fine;"

it shall be competent to the Court which sentences such offender to direct by the sentence that, in default of payment of the fine, the offender shall suffer imprisonment for a certain term, which imprisonment shall be in excess of any other imprisonment to which he may have been sentenced, or to which he may be liable under a commutation of a sentence.†

Carter arrested under Police Act discharged: Arresting police-constable directed to pay compensation: Imprisonment, in default· Before sentencing to imprisonment, Magistrate should have made some attempt to levy fine —A police-constable arrested a carter and charged him before a Magistrate with an offence under s. 34 of Act V. of 1861. The Magistrate acquitted the accused, and directed, under s. 560 of the Criminal Procedure Code, that the police-constable should pay him Rs. 20 as compensation or undergo simple imprisonment for a fortnight. Held that, as the section had no application to the case, the order was illegal, being made without jurisdiction Held, further, that even if the Magistrate had power under the Code to pass an order for imprisonment in default of payment of compensation awarded under s 560, it was illegal to pass such an order until some attempt had been made to levy the amount in the manner provided by s. 386 for levying of a fine. — RAMJEEVAN KOORMI v. DURGA CHARAN SADHU KHAN,

Imprisonment in default of payment of maintenance is not imprisonment for contempt: Husband entitled to release on payment.—The imprisonment which can be awarded under s 488, Criminal Procedure Code, is not a punishment for contempt of the Court's order, but merely a means of enforcing payment of the amount due, and that upon payment of that amount being made, the husband was entitled to be released. Biyacha v. Moidin Kutti (I. Imprisonment in default of payment of maintenance is not limited to one month.—The imprisonment provided by s. 488, Criminal Procedure Code, in default of payment of maintenance awarded is not limited to one month. The maximum imprisonment that can be imposed is one month for each month's arrear, and if there is a balance representing the arrears for a portion of a month, a further term of a month's imprisonment may be imposed for such arrear.—ALLAPICHAI RAVUTHAR v MOHIDIN BIBI, I. Held by the majority of the Court that an offender, who has undergone the full term of imprisonment to which he was sentenced in default of the payment of a fine, is still liable to have the amount levied by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to him, which may be found within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of the district, whether the officer who inflicted the fine issued any special directions on the subject or not. or with both, the Sessions Judge, while referring the proceedings of the Cantonment Magistrate to the High Court, submitted that the Magistrate was not authorized in awarding imprisonment, in default of payment of fine, for a period exceeding one-fourth of one month. "The High Court, after giving careful consideration to the provisions of s. 309 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X. of 1872), are of opinion that the sentence of the Cantonment Magistrate is not illegal. The final clause of s. 309 enacts that, where a person is sentenced to fine only, the Magistrate may award such term of imprisonment in default of payment of fine as is allowed by law, provided the amount does not exceed the Magistrate's powers under the Act. It appears to the High Court that the proper construction of this clause is as follows: If imprisonment and fine and further imprisonment in default of payment of fine, is the sentence, the imprisonment in default cannot exceed one-fourth of the period of imprisonment which the Magistrate is competent to inflict for the offence; but if the sentence is fine only, the imprisonment in default of payment may be the whole period of imprisonment which the Magistrate is competent to inflict for the offence."—REG. v. MAHAMMAD SAIB, I. The imprisonment which an offender has undergone shall not release him from the pecuniary obligation under which he lies. Lurking house-trespass by night. In committing such offence, prisoner attempts to cause grievous hurt to owner of house who tries to capture him: Punishment under s. 460, not under ss. 457 and 324.—A prisoner who, in the commission of lurking house-trespass by night, voluntarily attempts to cause grievous hurt to the owner of the house, who tries to capture him, is punishable under s. 460, and not under ss. 457 and 324 of the Penal Code.—2 W. R. 52. [Jackson and Glover, JJ. April 1, 1865.]

In a fresh conviction, whipping illegal in addition to imprisonment.—S. 3, Act VI. of 1864, does not allow of whipping in addition to imprisonment in the case of a fresh conviction. House-breaking by night and theft form a single and entire offence, and cannot be punished separately.—QUEEN v. TONAOKOCH, 2 W. R. 63. [Jackson and Glover, JJ. April 19, 1865.]

Theft and taking or receiving stolen goods form one offence, and cannot be punished separately.—The theft and the taking or retention of stolen goods form one and the same offence, and cannot be punished separately.—QUEEN v. SREEMUNT ADUP, 2 W. R. 63. [Glover, J. April 19, 1865.]

No separate convictions and sentences deemed requisite in a case of trespass and mischief.—House-trespass and mischief not being separate offences, but being included in the graver offence of being members of an unlawful assembly armed with deadly weapons, no separate convictions and sentences were deemed to be requisite—QUEEN v. SURROP NAPIT, 3 W. R. 54. [Kemp and Seton-Karr, JJ. July 15, 1865.]

Rioting and grievous hurt: Conviction and sentence for both upheld.—Conviction and sentence, both for rioting and for grievous hurt, upheld, the punishment being, on the whole, not more severe than might properly have been awarded if the conviction had been for grievous hurt only. A person convicted of rioting should not be convicted of hurt or grievous hurt caused to himself.—QUEEN v. AZGUR, 5 W. R. 19. [Seton-Karr and Macpherson, JJ. Jan. 26, 1866.]

House-breaking and theft punishable under s. 457.—A person convicted of house-breaking, followed immediately by theft, is punishable only under s. 457 of the Penal Code.—QUEEN v. CHYTUN BOWRA, 5 W. R. 49. [Jackson and Glover, JJ. Mar. 5, 1866.]

Theft and mischief: Double sentence illegal.—A double sentence for theft and mischief is illegal and improper.—BECHUK AHEER v. AUHUCK BHOONIAH, 6 W. R. 5. [Jackson and Campbell, JJ. June 18, 1866.]

Mischief and theft: Government trees: Legality of conviction.—Held that it was not illegal to convict prisoners of mischief, as well as of theft, the offences charged being that they had cut down Government trees without leave, and appropriated them.—REG. v. NARAYAN KRISHNA, 2 Bom. H. C. R. 392. [Couch, C J., and Newton, J. June 27, 1866.]

Convictions under ss. 456 and 380: Conviction under s. 380 set aside.—The prisoner was convicted by the Magistrate of two separate offences under ss. 456 and 380 of the Penal Code, and sentenced for both. On appeal, the Sessions Judge, holding that the offence proved was under s. 457, ordered a new trial for offences under ss. 457 and 380. Held that there ought not to be a new trial, but that the conviction and sentence under s. 380 should be set aside.—QUEEN v. RAMCHARAN KAIRE, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 488; 6 W. R. 39. [Peacock, C.J., and Norman, Kemp, Seton-Karr, and Campbell, JJ. July 9, 1866.]

Separate convictions and sentences for house-breaking by night and theft: Conviction for theft set aside.—In a case of separate convictions and sentences for house-breaking by night and theft under ss. 457 and 459 of the Penal Code, the conviction and sentence under s. 379 were quashed, and those under s. 457 were upheld.—JOGEEN PULLEE v. NOBO PULLEE, 6 W. R. 49. [Kemp and Markby, JJ. July 28, 1866.]

Conviction for two offences, one being an integral part of the other: Illegality of.—The conviction of prisoners for two offences, when the one offence formed an integral portion of the other, held to be in effect punishing twice for the same offence, and therefore illegal.—GOVERNMENT v. LALAWUN SINGH, 1 Agra H. C. R. 31. [Turner, J., and Spankie, Offg. J. Nov. 22, 1866.] Followed in Queen v. Mungroo, 6 N.-W. P. 294.

Theft and house-breaking: Illegality of sentence.—Theft is the sequel of, and cannot be separated from, house-breaking. A cumulative sentence of three years' imprisonment was held to be illegal in such a case.—MUSSAHUR DAOUDH, 6 W. R. 92. [Kemp and Markby, JJ. Dec. 19. 1866.]

Sentences of imprisonment may be accumulated beyond 14 years. — Sentences of imprisonment may be accumulated beyond the period of 14 years, notwithstanding s. 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act XXV. of 1861), which limit has reference only to sentences passed simultaneously, or passed upon charges tried simultaneously.—QUEEN v. PUBAN, 7 W. R. 1. [Kemp and Markby, JJ. Jan. 3, 1867.]

Alternative finding legal.—An alternative finding is perfectly legal.—QUEEN v. TARINEE MYTEE, 7 W. R. 13. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Jan. 14, 1867.]

Culpable homicide not amounting to murder and being member of an unlawful assembly: Conviction for second offence quashed.—The prisoner was convicted and sentenced separately for culpable homicide not amounting to murder, and for being a member of an unlawful assembly. The two offences, however, being held to be one (the latter being only part of the evidence of the former), the conviction and sentence for the second offence were quashed.—QUEEN v. RUBBEEOOLAH, 7 W. R. 13. [Norman and Seton-Karr, JJ. Jan. 16, 1867.]

Conviction under s. 366 (kidnapping a woman to compel her marriage) quashed.—Where a girl of 11 years of age was taken out of the custody of her lawful guardian by the first prisoner, and offered for sale in marriage to another, and the second prisoner illegally concealed her, the conviction of the former was upheld under s. 363 of the Penal Code only, and of the latter under s. 368 only, while the separate conviction of both under s. 366 was quashed.—QUEEN v. ISREE PANDAY, 7 W. R. 56. [Norman J. April 8, 1867.]

False charge supported by false evidence.—Where a man brought a false charge against another, and at the trial gave false evidence in support of the charge, it was held that he was liable to be tried and punished separately on separate charges of bringing a false charge and of giving false evidence.—QUEEN v. ABDOOL AZEEZ, 7 W. R. 59. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. April 27, 1867.]

Rioting armed with deadly weapons and stabbing: Distinct offences: Punishable as such.—The offences of rioting armed with deadly weapons, and stabbing a person on whose premises the riot takes place, are distinct offences, and punishable as separate offences under ss. 148, 149, and 324 of the Penal Code, s. 149 being read as a proviso to s. 148.—QUEEN v. CALLACHAND, 7 W. R. 60. [Norman and Seton-Karr, JJ. April 29, 1867.]

Separate sentences for kidnapping and selling for prostitution.—The evidence of a kidnapped girl, if thoroughly credible, is legally sufficient for a conviction for kidnapping. There is nothing illegal in passing separate sentences for kidnapping, and for selling for purposes of prostitution.—QUEEN v. DOORGA DASS, 7 W. R. 68. [Kemp, J. May 18, 1867.]

Separate convictions set aside.—Separate convictions and sentences under ss.

429 and 379, and under ss. 457 and 380, of the Penal Code, were set aside; and the convictions under s. 429 in the former case, and under s. 457 in the latter, allowed to stand.—QUEEN v. SAHRAB, 8 W. R. 31. [Jackson and Hobhouse, JJ. July 1, 1867.]

Kidnapping (s. 363) is included in kidnapping to steal from the person (s. 369).—The offence described in s. 363 of the Penal Code is included in that described in s. 369, the kidnapping, and the intention of dishonestly taking property from the kidnapped child, being included in the latter section.—QUEEN v. SHAMA SHEIKH, 8 W. R. 35. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. July 8, 1867.]

Criminal trespass part of mischief on land and house-breaking by night—Criminal trespass is a part of the offence of mischief committed upon land as well as of house-breaking by night.—QUEEN v. LALLOO SING, 8 W. R. 54. [Jackson and Hobhouse, JJ. July 29, 1867.]

Sessions Judge illegally recording a conviction under two sections.—Where a person, though charged under two heads, was found guilty of what was substantially but one offence, held that it was improper for the Sessions Judge to record a conviction under two sections of the Penal Code, and thereupon to award a punishment of two years' imprisonment in excess of what the law prescribed for the offence committed.—REG. v. YORA KARUBEG, 4 Bom. H. C. R. 12. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J Sep. 26, 1867.]

Where prisoner commits more than one offence, he should be convicted of each offence.—When more than one offence is proved, it is not proper to convict only of one and to acquit of the other, although the offences may be cognate. Reg. v. Vinayak Trimbak (2 Bom. H C R. 391) followed.—REG. v. MURAR TRIKAM, 5 Bom H. C R. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. Jan 20, 1868.]

Three different persons threatened at the same time: each of such persons brings a separate charge: Accused liable to punishment separately for each offence.—An accused, who threatened three witnesses, was convicted and sentenced to four months' imprisonment for the threat to each witness—in all to one year. It was held that, if a person at one time criminally intimidates three different persons, and each of those persons brings a separate charge against him, the accused may be convicted for an offence as against each person, and be punished separately for each offence. The facts and evidence in this case, however, were considered insufficient to support the sentence, which was reversed as extremely harsh and unjust.—9 W. R. 30. [Kemp and Jackson, JJ. Mar. 10, 1868.]

Sentence of whipping.—Held by the majority that, when a person who has not been "previously convicted" (vide s. 4, Act VI. of 1864) is convicted at one time of two or more offences, it is illegal to sentence him to whipping for one of those offences, in addition to imprisonment or fine for the other or others; but it is not illegal to sentence him to one whipping in lieu of all other punishments. Held, further, that, when a person who has been "previously convicted" is convicted at one time of two or more offences, he may be punished with one, but only one whipping, in addition to any other punishment to which, under s. 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, he may be liable.—NASSIR v CHUNDER, 9 W. R. 41; B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 951 [Peacock, C.J., and Seton-Karr, Jackson, Phear, and Macpherson, JJ. Mar. 12, 1868.]

Cumulative sentence for rioting and causing hurt: Illegality of sentence.—Where prisoners are charged both with rioting, being armed with deadly weapons, and with causing hurt by shooting, and their conviction of the latter offence rests solely on the fact of their belonging to a party by one of whom (not one of the prisoners) firearms were used, it is wrong to pass a cumulative sentence, and to punish the prisoners both for the rioting and for the causing hurt. The punishment should be for either one or other of those offences. A charge should be so framed as to refer to the section of the Penal Code under which the offence charged is punishable, as required by ss 234 and 237 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Where there is a riot and fighting between two factions, the members of each party should be committed for trial separately, and not all together.—QUEEN v. DURZOOLA, 9 W R. 33. [Seton-Karr and Macpherson, JJ. Mar. 14, 1868.] But see Queen v. Callachand, 7 W. R. 60.

Offences under ss. 411 and 414 are not two distinct offences—The offences specified in ss. 411 and 414 of the Penal Code cannot be considered as two distinct offences so as to allow of the procedure of s. 46 of the Criminal Procedure Code being adopted.—4 Mad. H. C R. Ap. 14. [Aug. 12, 1868.]

House-breaking to commit theft and theft: Separate sentences disapproved.—When a prisoner convicted of "house-breaking in order to commit theft," and of "theft," both offences being portions of one continuous criminal act, was sentenced, on the first head of charge, to one year's rigorous imprisonment, under s. 457 of the Penal Code, and on the second head of charge to receive twenty stripes, under s. 2 of the Whipping Act (VI of 1864), the separate sentences (though not illegal) were disapproved of, as contrary to the spirit and intention of the Whipping Act.—REG. v. GENU BIN AKU, 5 Bom. H. C. R. 83. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. Sep. 16, 1868.]

Rioting armed with deadly weapons and causing hurt with dangerous weapons: Sentence should have been under one section.—Where the prisoners were charged under s. 148 of the Penal Code of rioting armed with deadly weapons, and also under s. 324 of voluntarily causing hurt by dangerous weapons, they should have been sentenced only under one or other of these sections, the charges being, properly speaking, only alternative charges. The High Court refused to interfere with the reception by the Sessions Judge of the uncorroborated evidence of accomplices.—QUEEN v. DINA SHEIKH 10 W. R. 63; 3 B. L. R. 15n. [Phear and Hobhouse, JJ. Dec. 15, 1868.]

Conviction for theft, though the offence charged is lurking house-trespass by night: There should have been committal on latter charge.—A Deputy Magistrate has no power to convict of theft (s. 380, Penal Code), where the offence charged is lurking house-trespass by night with aggravating circumstances (ss. 458, 459, Penal Code), but must commit on the latter charge.—PURAN TELRE v. BHUTTOO DOME, 9 W. R. 5. [Kemp and Jackson, JJ. Jan. 13, 1869.]

For separate offences, there must be separate sentences—Where prisoners are convicted of separate offences, a separate sentence should be passed in each case, with a direction that imprisonment in the second case should commence on the expiration of that in the first, and so on, otherwise it would be impossible, in case of an appeal and a reversal of the conviction in one or more of the separate cases, to determine to what portion of the aggregate imprisonment the prisoners still remained liable.—PRO., Jan 15, 1869, 4 Mad. H. C. R. Ap 27.

Conviction of theft and receiving: Sentence passed for theft.—Where, in a case in which a prisoner was convicted of theft and also of receiving stolen property, the sentence passed was really one for theft, the High Court nevertheless refused to allow the conviction for receiving stolen property to remain on the record against the accused, and reversed it.—QUEEN v. SEEB CHUNDER HAREE, 11 W. R. 12. [Jackson and Hobhouse, JJ. Mar. 1, 1869.]

Acts which, taken together, constitute one offence, cannot be treated as separate offences.—Where, substantially, only one offence has been committed, the several acts which, taken together, constitute that offence, cannot legally be treated as separate offences, and the prisoner cannot legally be sentenced in respect of these as well as in respect of the principal offence.—QUEEN v. CHUNDER KANT LAHOREE, 12 W. R. 2; s.c., 3 B. L. R. A. Cr. 14 (where the name of the case is given as QUEEN v. KALISANKAR SANDYAL). [Macpherson and Jackson, JJ. June 11, 1869.] But see s. 235 (ill. a) of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act V. of 1898), infra, p. 64.

Sessions Judge directing committal of accused for adultery, though he had already been convicted of enticement: Sentence for enticement annulled, the requisite intention in one case being the substantive delict in the other.—Where the Sessions Judge directed the committal of the defendant for adultery, the defendant having been already convicted by the Magistrate of enticing away Held that the sentence passed by the Magistrate should have been at once annulled, the requisite intention in the one case being the substance delict in the other.—PRO. Feb. 10, 1870. 5 Mad. H. C. R. App. 16.

Separate sentences for separate offences.—Held, on the facts of this case, that a party A, who objected to accompany a constable who had been directed to produce him before the Court, and also seized the constable by the arm, and resisted his carrying away a pony which A was charged with having misappropriated, was guilty of separate offences under ss. 353 and 183 of the Penal Code, and the infliction of separate sentences for each offence was not prevented by s. 71 of that Code.—QUEEN v. JOYAH MOHUN CHUNDER, 14 W. R. 19. [Loch and Hobhouse, JJ. July 16, 1870.]

A person convicted of criminal breach of trust cannot also be convicted of receiving or retaining the same property.—A prisoner cannot be convicted under s. 411 of the Penal Code for dishonestly receiving or retaining stolen property in respect of property which he himself has been convicted under s. 409, Penal Code, of having obtained possession by committing criminal breach of trust.—QUEEN v. SHUNKUR, 2 N.-W. P. 312. [Spankie, J. Aug. 5, 1870.]

Several false statements made in one deposition constitute one case of giving false evidence—The making of any number of false statements in the same deposition is one aggregate case of giving false evidence

Charges of false evidence cannot be multiplied according to the number of false statements contained in the deposition.—PRO., May 1, 1871, 6 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 27.

A person convicted at the same time of two or more offences under the Penal Code may also be sentenced to whipping. —Held (Kemp and Phear, JJ., dissenting) that, notwithstanding s. 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act XXV. of 1861), a person convicted at the same time of two or more offences punishable under the Penal Code may, in addition to the punishments prescribed by the Penal Code, be sentenced to whipping under Act VI. of 1864. The Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure must be read as if the Whipping Act formed a part of the Penal Code from the date of its enactment, and s. 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is applicable to all offences and punishments as prescribed by the Penal Code in its present and amended form.—MONIRUDDEEN SHAMADAR, 15 W. R. 89; 7 B. L. R. 165. [Norman, Offg. C.J., and Loch, Bayley, Kemp, Phear, Macpherson, and Mitter, JJ. May 30, 1871.]

Persons guilty of rioting may also be convicted of rioting armed with deadly weapons, culpable homicide, and grievous hurt—Persons found guilty of rioting may, if the circumstances warrant it, be convicted of the several offences of rioting armed with deadly weapons, culpable homicide, and grievous hurt.—QUEEN v. HURGOBIND, 3 N.-W. P. 174. [Turner, J. July 7, 1871.]

Hurt included in rioting: Conviction first for rioting, then for hurt, set aside — An accused person cannot be punished, first on a charge for rioting, and afterwards on a charge for hurt, when the latter is included in the former.—17 W. R. 59. [Mitter and Ainslie, JJ. May 8, 1872.]

When a separate sentence for each of two charges (house-breaking in order to commit theft and theft in a human dwelling) may be passed.—It is competent to a Magistrate to pass a separate sentence in respect of each of the two charges, of house-breaking in order to commit theft, and of theft in a human dwelling, of which a prisoner is found guilty, provided the aggregate punishment awarded on the two charges does not exceed the punishment which the case warrants for the greater of the two offences of which the accused has been convicted, and provided, further, such aggregate punishment does not exceed the jurisdiction of the Court passing the sentences.—REG. v. ANVARKHAN VALAD GULKHAN, 9 Bom. H. C. R. 172. [Westropp, C.J., and Lloyd and Kemball, JJ. May 23, 1872.]

A prisoner convicted of abducting a child with intent to take its moveable property cannot also be punished for theft of part of such property.—A prisoner, tried, convicted, and punished, under s. 369 of the Penal Code, of abducting a child with intent dishonestly to take moveable property, cannot also be punished for the theft of a part of the moveable property which he intended dishonestly to take through means of the abduction; and the second punishment for theft is, by the present Code of Criminal Procedure, illegal.—IN THE MATTER OF NOUJAN, 7 Mad. H. C. R. 375. [Morgan, C.J., and Holloway, J. July 8, 1873.]

Using as genuine forged documents and being in possession of such documents.—Convictions under s. 471 of the Penal Code and s. 474 cannot stand together.—QUEEN v. NUZUR ALI, 6 N.-W. P. 39. [Turner, J. Dec. 6, 1873.]

A charge of perjury, based upon contradictory statements, is a good charge. —Held by the majority (Jackson, J., dissenting) that a charge framed on the model given in sch. iii. of the Code of Criminal Procedure, charging the accused upon two charges with having made contradictory statements in the course of judicial proceedings under s. 193, Penal Code, is a good charge, and that (Phear and Jackson, JJ., dissenting) the Court or jury, if convicting, need not, by direct evidence, find which of the two statements is false; all that is necessary being that the Court or jury should find that the allegations made in the charge are proved.—QUEEN v. MAHOMED HOOMAYOON SHAH, 21 W. R. 72; 13 B. L. R. 324. [Couch, C.J., and Kemp, Jackson, Phear, Markby, Glover, Ainslie, Pontifex, Birch, and Morris, JJ. April 11, 1874.]

An act of restraining or confining in an attempt to kidnap forms part of offence of kidnapping: No separate conviction and sentence—Where an act of restraint or confinement in an attempt to kidnap has been exercised in furtherance of the attempt, and goes to form part of that offence, and is not done with an intention or object which can be separated from the general intention to kidnap, it will constitute an integral part of that offence, and should not form the subject of a separate conviction and sentence. —QUEEN v. MUNGROO 6 N.-W. P. 293. [Oldfield, J. Aug. 13, 1874.]

Judgment in the alternative: When such judgment cannot be passed.—S. 455 of Act X. of 1872 applies to cases in which, not the facts are doubtful, but the application of the law to the facts is doubtful. Judgment in the alternative cannot be passed in cases in which it is doubtful whether the accused person is guilty of any one of the several offences charged, but where it is doubtful of which of those offences he is guilty. The accused persons were committed for trial under an erroneous and untenable alternative charge under s. 193 of the Penal Code. The Court of Session amended the charge under s. 193, and added charges under ss. 201 and 203 It was doubtful whether the amendment and addition were not likely to prejudice the accused in their defence. The alleged false evidence, and not its assumed substance and purport, should be set forth in a charge under s. 193.—QUEEN v. JAMURHA, 7 N.-W. P. 137. [Pearson, J. Feb. 4, 1875.]

For purposes of appeal, the whole punishment awarded to one person in one trial for several instances of the same offence is to be regarded as one sentence.—For purposes of appeal the whole punishment awarded to one person in one trial for several instances of the same offence is to be regarded as one sentence. Semble, that where a person is tried at the same time for several instances of the same offence, it is not necessary that more than a single sentence should be passed. But if a separate sentence be passed on each head, held that an appeal brings the aggregate of those sentences, as together constituting the punishment awarded in a single trial, within the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court.—REG. v. GULAM ABAS, 12 Bom. H. C. R. 147. [West and Pinhey, JJ. April 15, 1875.]

Conviction for house-breaking by night to commit theft (s. 457) and theft (s. 380): One sentence for both offences or separate sentence for each offence, provided the total punishment does not exceed that which may be given for the graver offence.—In a case of conviction of house-breaking by night in order to commit theft under s. 457, and theft under s. 380 of the Penal Code, there may be either one sentence for both offences, or separate sentences for each offence, provided that the total punishment awarded does not exceed that which may be given for the graver offence. —REG. v. TUKAYA BIN TAMANA, I. L. R., 1 Bom. 214. [Westropp, C. J., and Kemball, West. and Nanabhai Haridas, JJ. Sep. 14, 1875.]

Theft and mischief: Double sentence for, illegal.—A double sentence for theft and mischief is illegal and improper.—BECHUK AHEER v. AUHUCK BHOONEEA, 6 W. R. 5. [Jackson and Campbell, JJ. June 18, 1876.]

Conviction and punishment for two separate offences: Fabricating false evidence for use in a judicial proceeding, and voluntarily assisting in concealing stolen property.—Where the petitioner was convicted of having assisted in concealing stolen railway-pins in a certain person's house and field with a view to having such innocent person punished as an offender, held that the Magistrate was right in convicting and punishing the petitioner for the two separate offences of fabricating false evidence for use in a stage of a judicial proceeding under s. 193 of the Penal Code, and of voluntarily assisting in concealing stolen property under s. 414, Penal Code.—EMPRESS v RAMESHAR RAI, I. L. R., 1 All. 379. [Spankie, J. April 23, 1877.]

Offence split up into its component parts to exercise summary jurisdiction.—No Magistrate is entitled to split up an offence into its component parts for the purpose of giving himself summary jurisdiction. If a charge of an offence not triable summarily is laid and sworn to, the Magistrate must proceed with the case accordingly, unless he is at the outset in a position to show from the deposition of the complainant that the circumstances of aggravation are really mere exaggeration, and not to be believed. Therefore, a Magistrate, when he has before him a person charged with having been armed with a deadly weapon while a member of an unlawful assembly, is not at liberty to disregard that part of the charge which charges the prisoner with having been armed with a deadly weapon, and so to give himself jurisdiction to try the case summarily, and then, by inflicting a sentence of imprisonment not exceeding three months, to deprive the prisoner of his right of appeal.—EMPRESS v. ABDOOL KARIM; and EMPRESS v GOLAM MAHOMED, I. L. R., 4 Cal. 18; 3 C. L. R. 81. [Ainslie and Broughton, JJ. July 6, 1878.]

Trespass with intent to commit mischief, and mischief: Punishment for each offence.—Where a person committed a trespass with the intention of committing mischief, thereby committing criminal trespass, and at the same time committed mischief, held that such person could not, under cl. iii. of s. 454 of Act X. of 1872, receive a punishment more severe than might have been awarded for either of such offences. The provisions of that law do not in such a case prohibit the Court from passing sentence in respect of each offence established. —EMPRESS v. BUDH SING, I. L. R., 2 All. 101. [Turner, J. Jan. 24, 1879.]

course of such rioting are distinct offences, and each offence is separately punishable.—EMPRESS v. RAM ADHIN, I. L. R., 2 All. 139. [Pearson, J. Feb. 13, 1879.]

Mother abandoning child, knowing that such abandonment would cause its death: Death of child: Conviction and punishment under s. 304 only, and not under both ss. 304 and 317.—Where a mother abandoned her child with the intention of wholly abandoning it, and knowing that such abandonment was likely to cause its death, and the child died in consequence of the abandonment, held that she could not be convicted and punished under s. 304 and also under s. 317 of the Penal Code, but s. 304 only.—EMPRESS v. BANNI, I. L. R., 2 All. 349. [Straight, J. Aug. 4, 1879.]

House-breaking by night to commit theft (s. 457), and theft (s. 380): Conviction under s. 457 only, and acquittal under s. 380.—Where, in the course of one and the same transaction, an accused person appears to have committed several acts directed to one end and object, which together amount to a more serious offence than each of them taken individually by itself would constitute, although for purposes of trial it may be convenient to vary the form of charge, and to designate, not only the principal, but the subsidiary crimes alleged to have been committed, yet, in the interests of simplicity and convenience, it is best to concentrate the conviction and sentence on the gravest offence proved. Where, therefore, a person who broke into a house by night, and committed theft therein, was charged and tried for offences under ss. 380 and 457 of the Penal Code, and was convicted of both those offences, and punished for each with rigorous imprisonment for eighteen months, the Court convicted him of the offence under s. 457, and sentenced him to rigorous imprisonment for three years, and acquitted him of the offence under s. 380.—EMPRESS v. AJUDHIA, I. L. R., 2 All. 644. [Straight, J. Jan. 19, 1880.]

A person accused of several offences of the same kind is tried for each such offence separately: Magistrate can inflict for each offence the punishment which he is, by his ordinary jurisdiction, competent to inflict.—Where a person who is accused of several offences of the same kind is tried for each of such offences separately by a Magistrate, the aggregate punishment which such Magistrate can inflict on him in respect of such offences is not limited to twice the amount which he is, by his ordinary jurisdiction, competent to inflict; but such Magistrate can inflict on him for each offence the punishment which he is by his ordinary jurisdiction, competent to inflict. A person accused of theft on the 1st August, and of house breaking by night in order to steal on the 2nd August, both offences involving a stealing from the same person, was charged and tried by a Magistrate of the first class at the same time for such offences, and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for two years for each of such offences. Held that the joinder of the charges was regular under s. 453 of Act X. of 1872, and the punishment was within the limits prescribed by s 314. Empress v. Umeda (unreported, decided 18th July 1879), observed on by Straight, J.—IN THE MATTER OF DAULATIA, I. Collective punishment under ss. 147, 148, 324. Penal Code, not to exceed that which may be awarded for the graver offence.—Under s. 454 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1872), the collective punishment awarded under ss. 147, 148, and 324 of the Penal Code, must not exceed that which may be awarded for the graver offence. Quære.—Whether separate convictions under ss. 147 and 324 of the Penal Code are legal?—IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF JUBDUR KAZI AND GOLAM KHAN: EMPRESS v. JUBDUR KAZI AND GOLAM KHAN, I. Punishment for rioting and grievous hurt when illegal.—A member of an unlawful assembly, some members of which have caused grievous hurt, cannot lawfully be punished for the offence of rioting as well as for the offence of causing grievous hurt.—EMPRESS v. RAM PARTAB, I. Rioting, hurt, grievous hurt: Distinct offences.—The offences of rioting, of voluntarily causing hurt, and of voluntarily causing grievous hurt—each of the two latter offences being committed against a different person—are all distinct offences within the meaning of s. 35 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X of 1882). Under the first paragraph of s. 235 of the Criminal Procedure Code, a person accused of rioting and of voluntarily causing grievous hurt may be charged with, and tried for, each offence at one trial, and under s. 35 a separate sentence may be passed in respect of each. Queen-Empress v. Ram Partab (I. L. R., 6 All. 121) dissented from.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. DUNGAR SINGH, I. L. R., 7 All. 29. [Brodhurst, J. July 22, 1884.]

Rioting and grievous hurt: Sentence.—On the 8th August 1884, a Magistrate of the second class began an inquiry in a case in which several persons were accused of rioting and voluntarily causing grievous hurt. On the 6th September, the powers of a Magistrate of the first class were conferred on the Magistrate by an order of Government, which was communicated to him on the 8th September. On the 9th September, the case for the prosecution having closed, the Magistrate framed charges against each of the accused under ss. 323 and 325 of the Penal Code, recorded the statements of the accused and the evidence for the defence, and, on the 10th September, convicted the accused of all the charges, passing upon each of them, in respect of each charge, sentences which he could pass as a Magistrate of the first class, but could not have passed as a Magistrate of the second class. On appeal, the Sessions Judge, on the ground that the prisoners had committed the offence described in s. 148 of the Penal Code, held that the sentences passed by the Magistrate were illegal, as being inconsistent with the provisions of s. 71, paras. 2 and 4; and he accordingly reduced the sentences of imprisonment which the Magistrate had passed to the maximum of imprisonment which the Magistrate could have inflicted under s. 148. Held by the Full Bench (Petheram, C.J., and Brodhurst, J., dissenting) that the sentences passed by the Magistrate were legal. Per Oldfield, Mahmood, and Duthoit, JJ., that, with reference to the terms of s. 39 of the Criminal Procedure Code, a Magistrate of the second class, who has begun a trial as such, and continued it in the same capacity up to the passing of sentence, and who, prior to passing sentence, has been invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the first class, is competent to pass sentence in the case as a Magistrate of the first class. Per Oldfield and Duthoit, JJ., that the provisions of s. 71 of the Penal Code had no application to the case, inasmuch as the offences of causing grievous hurt and hurt formed no part of the offence of rioting. Per Petheram, C.J., that a case must be taken to be tried upon the day the trial commences; that, for all the purposes of the trial, the Magistrate in this case retained the status of a Magistrate of the second class; and that he was, therefore, not competent to pass sentence as a Magistrate of the first class. Also, per Petheram, C.J., that the Judge, in this case, had no power to alter the charge, or to frame a new charge in any way. Per Brodhurst, J., that the sentences passed by the Magistrate were, as a whole, illegal; that if he had convicted the accused under s. 148 of the Penal Code, his order would, under the circumstances, have been legal; that a Court of appeal is not competent to alter the finding of a Magistrate, so as to convict an accused person of an offence which the Court of which the order is in appeal was not competent to try; and that a member of an unlawful assembly, some members of which have caused grievous hurt, can be legally punished for the offence of rioting as well as for the offence of causing grievous hurt. Empress v. Dungar Singh (I. Rioting armed with a deadly weapon and hurt with dangerous weapon to two persons are distinct offences: Conviction and sentence for rioting and hurt caused to each person.—The offences of rioting armed with a deadly weapon and voluntarily causing hurt with a dangerous weapon to two persons are distinct offences, and a person charged with such offences can be convicted and sentenced in respect of the rioting and of the hurt caused to each of the persons injured. A and B were charged with rioting armed with deadly weapons under s. 148 of the Penal Code; and they were also charged under s. 324, coupled with s 149, with causing hurt by a dangerous weapon to X, and B was further charged under s. 324 with causing a like hurt to Y; A being also charged under s 324, coupled with s 149, in respect of the hurt caused by B to Y. A and B were convicted on all charges, and separate sentences, to take effect in succession, were awarded in respect of each offence charged. The offences under s. 324 were committed during the riot. Held that the several acts with regard to which the prisoners were charged did not fall within the provisions of s. 71 of the Penal Code, inasmuch as it was not found that the causing of the hurt was the force or violence which alone constituted the rioting, and that, consequently, under s. 235 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the several sentences passed were strictly legal.—LOKE NATH SIRCAR v. QUEEN-EMPRESS, I. L. R., 11 Cal. 349 [Tottenham and Ghose, JJ. Mar. 6, 1885 Follows Queen-Empress v. Dungar Singh, I. L. R., 7 All. 29, supra, p. 38. But see (in p. 40) Nilmoney Poddar v. Queen-Empress (I. L. R., 16 Cal. 442), which overrules Loke Nath Sircar v. Queen-Empress (I L. R., 11 Cal. 349).

Conviction for rioting under s. 147, and causing grievous hurt during such riot under s. 325: Separate sentences passed under ss. 147 and 325 upheld.—Three persons, who were convicted (i) of riot under s. 147 of the Penal Code, (ii) of causing grievous hurt in the course of such riot, were respectively sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment under s 147, and three months' rigorous imprisonment under s. 325. Held, by Petheram, C.J., and Straight and Tyrrel, JJ, that inasmuch as the evidence upon the record showed that the three prisoners had committed individual acts of violence with their own hands, which constituted distinct offences of causing grievous hurt or hurt separate from, and independent of, the offence of riot, which was already completed, and the fact of the riot was not an essential portion of the evidence necessary to establish their legal responsibility under s. 325 of the Penal Code, the separate sentences passed under ss 147 and 325 were not illegal. Queen-Empress v. Ram Partab (I. L. R., 6 All. 121), distinguished. Per Brodhurst, J., that the evidence showed that only one of the three prisoners had caused grievous hurt with his own hands, and that the others could only be properly convicted of that offence under the provisions of s. 149 of the Penal Code, but that the separate sentences passed under ss. 147 and 325 were not illegal. Queen-Empress v. Dungar Singh (I. L. R., 7 All. 29), followed. Also per Brodhurst, J.—Ill. g of s. 235 of the Criminal Procedure Code does not apply merely to the case of persons who, in addition to the offence of rioting, have, with their own hands, committed the further offences of voluntarily causing grievous hurt, and of assaulting a public servant when engaged in suppressing a riot; and the convictions referred to in the illustration relate specially to convictions obtained under the provisions of s. 149 of the Penal Code.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. RAM SARUP, I. Conviction for making a false charge (s. 211) and giving false evidence (s. 193): Sentence for each offence: Concurrent sentences made to run one after another.—Where the accused, who was a head constable, was found guilty of making a false charge under s. 211, and of giving false evidence under s 193 of the Penal Code, and the Sessions Judge passed sentences of three months' simple imprisonment for each offence, and, taking into consideration the accused's past conduct, directed that the sentences should run concurrently, held that the sentences were inadequate and illegal. Accordingly the sentences were enhanced to three months' rigorous imprisonment for each offence; and as the two offences were distinct, the High Court directed, under s. 35 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1882), one sentence to commence after the expiration of the other. Queen v. Abdool Aseez (7 W. Rioting and assaulting a Civil Court peon: Separate conviction and sentence upheld.—Four persons were charged with being members of an unlawful assembly consisting of themselves and others, the common object of which assembly was resisting the execution of a legal process, namely, the arrest of a judgment-debtor by a Civil Court peon, who went with a warrant for his arrest accompanied by other persons. A and B, for the purpose of identifying him, and with using force or violence in prosecution of the common object, such force or violence consisting of an assault on the Civil Court peon, and another by means of a dangerous weapon on A. The Deputy Magistrate convicted all the accused of offences under ss. 147 and 353 of the Penal Code, and sentenced them to six months' rigorous imprisonment under the former section, and two months' rigorous imprisonment under the latter. He further convicted one of the accused of an offence under s. 324 in respect of the assault on A, and sentenced him to one month's rigorous imprisonment in respect of that offence, and directed that the sentences were to take effect one on the expiry of the other. Held that the offence of rioting was completed by the assault on A, and that the assault on the peon was a further offence under the first subsection of s. 235 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Held further that, even if A had not been assaulted, the conviction and sentences passed for rioting and the assault on the peon were legal, inasmuch as the acts of the accused, taken separately, constituted offences under ss. 143 and 353 of the Penal Code, and combined an offence under s. 147; and under s 235, sub-s. 3, of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the accused might be charged with, and tried at one trial for, the offence under s. 147, and those under ss. 143 and 353, and therefore also separately convicted and sentenced for each such offence, provided the punishment did not exceed the limit imposed by s 71 of the Penal Code as amended by s. 4 of Act VIII. of 1882, which limit had not been exceeded in the present case.—IN THE MATTER OF CHANDRA KANT BHATTACHARJEE; CHANDRA KANT BHATTACHARJEE v. QUEEN-EMPRESS, I. House-breaking by night to commit theft (s. 457) and theft in a dwelling-house

(g. 9le).] Separate sentences: Aggregate punishment did not exceed twice the punishment which the trying Magistrate could inflict: Punishment upheld.—The accused was convicted at one trial by a Magistrate of the first class of the offences of house-breaking by night with intent to commit theft, punishable under s. 457, and of theft in a dwelling house, punishable under s. 380 of the Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860), the two offences being part of the same transaction, the theft following the house-breaking. The prisoner was sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment under s. 457, and to six months' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs 100, or, in default of payment, three months' further rigorous imprisonment, under s. 380 The District Magistrate referred the case to the High Court, on the ground that the aggregate of punishment awarded on the two heads of charge exceeded the powers of the First class Magistrate who tried the case. The Sessions Judge, to whom an appeal had been preferred, was of the same opinion, and reduced the sentence to two years' rigorous imprisonment. Held that, as the accused committed two distinct offences which did not "constitute, when combined, a different offence," punishable under any section of the Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860), s. 71 of the Code did not apply; and as the aggregate punishment did not exceed twice the amount of punishment which the trying Magistrate was competent to inflict, the sentences were legal under s. 35 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1882). Per Jardine, J.—The rules for assessment of punishment, contained in s. 454 of the Criminal Procedure Code of 1872, having been omitted in s. 235 of the Criminal Procedure Code of 1882, must now be sought for in s. 71 of the Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860) and in s. 35 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X. of 1882). — QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SAKHARAM BHAU, I. Conviction for rioting and grievous hurt: Highest aggregate punishment, six years, i.e., one for rioting, five for grievous hurt: Sentences not illegal.—S. 149 of the Penal Code creates no offence, but was intended to make it clear that an accused person whose case falls within its term cannot put forward the defence that he did not with his own hand commit the offence committed in prosecution of the common object of the unlawful assembly, or such as the members of the assembly knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object. In prosecution of the common object of an unlawful assembly, M, with his own hand, caused grievous hurt. M and other members of the assembly, as to whom it did not appear whether or not any of them personally used force or violence, were convicted of rioting under s. 147, and grievous hurt under s. 325 of the Penal Code, and were each sentenced to separate terms of imprisonment for each offence. The highest aggregate punishment, which was M's, was six years' rigorous imprisonment, being one year for rioting, and five years for causing grievous hurt Held that, assuming s. 71 of the Penal Code to be applicable, the sentences were not illegal, as the combined periods of imprisonment did not, in the case of any prisoner, exceed the maximum punishment of seven years' rigorous imprisonment which could have been awarded for the offence punishable under s. 325 Held also that the riot could not, in any of the cases, be considered a part of the offence under s. 325, that s. 71 did not apply, and that the sentences were legal. Queen-Empress v. Ram Partab (I. L. R., 6 All. 121) dissented from. Queen-Empress v. Dungar Singh (I. L. R., 7 All. 29), Queen-Empress v. Ram Sarup (I. L. R., 7 All. 767), Queen v. Rubbee-oollah (7 W. R. Where more than one offence is proved, a conviction for each such offence must follow, and a separate sentence passed.—Where more than one offence is proved in respect of which the accused has been charged and tried, a conviction for each such offence must follow, whether s 71 of the Penal Code applies to the case or not; and, subject to the provisions of s. 71, a separate sentence must be passed in respect of each such conviction. Under s. 35 of the Criminal Procedure Code, sentences of imprisonment cannot be passed so as to run concurrently. In a trial for offences under ss. 170 and 383 of the Penal Code, committed in the same transaction, it appeared that, but for personating a public servant, the accused would not have been in a position to commit the act of extortion complained of. Held that the first and second paragraphs of s. 71 of the Penal Code did not apply to the case; that the third paragraph also did not apply, because the words "constitute an offence" refer to the definitions of offences contained in the Code, irrespective of the evidence whereby the acts complained of are proved, and personating a public servant as defined in s. 170 was not a constituent element of extortion as defined in s. 383; that in the present case the former offence was completed before the latter had begun; and that separate sentences for each offence were therefore not illegal.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. WAZIR JAN, I. L. R., 10 All. 58. [Mahmood, J. Sep. 16, 1887.]

House-breaking in order to the commission of theft: Theft: Separate convictions and sentences.—Under ss. 35 and 235 of the Criminal Procedure Code, a Magistrate may legally pass a separate sentence of two years' rigorous imprisonment and fine under each of the ss. 379 or 380 and 454 of the Penal Code, for house-breaking in order to the commission of theft and theft, the two offences forming part of the same transaction, and being tried together. In such a case, where the prisoner had been three times previously convicted, held that the better course would have been to commit him to the Court of Session under ss. 454-75 of the Code. But a Sessions Judge, trying such a case under s. 379 or s. 380, and s. 454, would, under no circumstances, be justified in passing a sentence of ten years' imprisonment under the latter part of s. 454, and of four years' imprisonment under s. 380. The latter portions of ss. 454 and 457 were framed to include the cases of house-trespassers and house-breakers who had not only intended to commit, but had actually committed theft. Queen Empress v. Ajudhia (I. L. R., 2 All. 644), and Queen-Empress v. Sakharam Bhan (I. L. R., 10 Bom. 493), referred to. A Magistrate is not justified in referring, under s. 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code, orders passed by the Sessions Judge, on appeal, except in very special cases. Queen-Empress v. Shere Singh (I. House-breaking by night to commit mischief and assault (s. 457), and mischief and assault (ss. 426 and 352): Separate sentence for each offence held legal.—An accused person was convicted under s. 457 of the Penal Code of house-breaking by night in order to commit an offence (mischief and assault), and also under ss. 426 and 352 for the offences of mischief and assault, and punished separately for each offence. These offences formed parts of one transaction. Held that the sentences were legal.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. NIRICHAN, I. L. R., 12 Mad. 36. [Kernan and Muttusami Ayyar, JJ. April 17, 1888.]

Separate sentences for rioting and grievous hurt where offenders did not individually commit any act amounting to hurt, but were guilty of that offence under s. 149.—Separate sentences passed upon persons for the offences of rioting and grievous hurt are not legal where it is found that such persons individually did not commit any act which amounted to voluntarily causing hurt, but were guilty of that offence under s. 149 of the Penal Code. Empress v. Ram Partab (I. Conviction for rioting and causing hurt and grievous hurt: Separate conviction for more than one offence when acts combined form one offence: Abetment of grievous hurt during riot.—Six accused persons were charged with and convicted of rioting, the common object of which was causing hurt to two particular men. Four of the accused were also charged with and convicted of, respectively, causing hurt during the riot to the two men and a woman, and were sentenced to separate terms of imprisonment under ss. 147 and 323 of the Penal Code. Held that the sentences were legal. During the course of a riot, in which X was attacked and beaten by several of the rioters, one of them, K, inflicted grievous hurt on X by breaking his rib with a blow struck with a lathi. K and three others of the rioters were charged with offences under ss. 147 and 325 of the Penal Code, and K was convicted under those sections. The other three were convicted under s. 147, and also under s. 325 read with s. 109. Separate sentences were passed on K, and also on the other three, for each of the offences. Held that the sentences on K were legal; but that, as there was nothing to show that the other three had abetted the particular blow which caused the grievous hurt, although they had each of them assaulted X, the conviction of them, under s. 325, read with s. 109, could not be supported.—IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF MOHUR MIR v. QUEEN-EMPRESS, AND IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF KALI ROY v. QUEEN-EMPRESS, I. Rioting armed with deadly weapons (s. 148): Assaulting public servant when suppressing riot (s. 152): Voluntarily causing hurt and grievous hurt to deter public servant from doing his duty (ss. 332, 333): Common object: Separate sentences: Some sentences held legal; others, illegal.—Eight persons, who were charged with a number of others, were tried on various charges consisting of rioting armed with deadly weapons (s. 148, Penal Code), assaulting or obstructing a public servant when suppressing a riot (s. 152), and voluntarily causing hurt and grievous hurt to deter a public servant from his duty (ss. 332 and 333). The common object set out in the charge was "to resist the execution of a decree obtained by Suresh Chunder Deb against Shaik Ali Yar in the Court of the Second Subordinate Judge of Alipore, dated 30th April 1891, and also by means of criminal force, or show of criminal force, to overawe the members of the police-force in the execution of their lawful powers as police-officers," and it was held that resistance to the police was one of the component parts of the offence of rioting charged. At the trial in the Court of Session all eight accused were convicted of the offence charged under s. 148, and each was sentenced to the maximum punishment allowed under that section, viz., three years' rigorous imprisonment. Seven out of the eight were convicted of offences under s. 152, and sentenced each to an additional term of two years' rigorous imprisonment for those offences. Two out of the seven accused were further convicted of offences under s. 332 of the Penal Code, the hurt therein charged being caused to police-officers engaged in suppressing the riot, and each sentenced to a further additional term of two years' rigorous imprisonment for that offence. The eighth accused, who was not convicted of an offence under s. 152, was convicted of an offence under s. 333, the grievous hurt being similarly caused to a police-officer, and for that offence was sentenced to five years' rigorous imprisonment in addition to the sentence of three years passed on him under s. 148. It was contended on appeal—(1) that the sentences passed under s. 152, in addition to those under s. 148, were illegal; (2) that separate sentences under s. 152 and ss. 332 and 333 were illegal; (3) that the cumulative sentences under s. 148 and ss. 332 and 333 were illegal, in so far as they exceeded the maximum sentence provided for either of the offences. Held, as regards (1), that as resistance to the police was one of the component parts of the offence of rioting, of which the accused were convicted and sentenced to the maximum punishment, provided by s. 148, and having regard to the provisions of s. 71, the additional sentences under s. 152 were illegal. Held, further, that s. 152 contemplates an assault or obstruction to some particular public servant, and that, as the charge against the accused as framed was merely to the effect that they assaulted and obstructed members of the police force in the discharge of their duties, &c., the conviction under that section could not be upheld. Held as regards (2), that separate sentences under s. 152 and ss. 332 and 333 were illegal, as the hurt inflicted on the police-officers was the violence used towards them which constituted the essence of the offence under s. 152. Held, as regards (3), that the separate sentences passed under s. 148 and ss. 332 and 333 were not illegal, there being nothing in s. 71 of the Penal Code which limits the amount of punishment that may be imposed for these offences.—FERASAT v. QUEEN-EMPRESS, I. L. R., 19 Cal. 105. [Beverley and Ameer Ali, JJ. Nov. 9, 1891.]

Two sentences for rioting and hurt.—When a prisoner is convicted of rioting and of hurt, and the conviction for hurt depends upon the application of s. 149 of the Penal Code, it is illegal to pass two sentences, one for riot, and one for hurt. But in such a case the two sentences would be legal, provided the total punishment does not exceed the maximum which the Court might pass for any one of the offences. When, however, the accused is guilty of rioting, and is also found to have himself caused the hurt, he may be punished both for rioting and for hurt. In such a case the total punishment can legally exceed the maximum which the Court might pass for any one of the offences Queen-Empress v. Ram Sarup (I. L. R., 7 All. 757) approved —QUEEN-EMPRESS v. BANA PUNJA, I. L. R., 17 Bom. 260. [Sargent, C.J., and Parsons and Telang, JJ. Dec. 19, 1892]

House-breaking to commit theft, and theft: Accused may be charged with and convicted of each of such offences.—Where a person commits house breaking in order to commit theft, and theft, he may be charged with, and convicted of, each of these offences. In awarding punishment under the provisions of s. 71 of the Indian Penal Code (Act XLV. of 1860), the Court should pass one sentence for either of the offences in question, and not a separate one for each offence. If in such a case two sentences are passed, and the aggregate of these does not exceed the punishment provided by law for any one of the offences, or the jurisdiction of the Court, that would be an irregularity, and not an illegality, calling for the interference of a Court of appeal or revision. Sentence in cases of conviction of several offences at one trial.—The following sections of the Criminal Procedure Code

35. (1) When a person is convicted, at one trial, of two or more distinct offences, the Court may sentence him, for such offences, to the several punishments prescribed therefor which such Court is competent to inflict: such punishments, when consisting of imprisonment or transportation, to commence the one after the expiration of the other in such order as the Court may direct, unless the Court directs that such punishments shall run concurrently.

(2) In the case of consecutive sentences, it shall not be necessary for the Court, by reason only of the aggregate punishment for the several offences being in excess of the punishment which it is competent to inflict on conviction of a single offence, to send the offender for trial before a higher Court :

(a) in no case shall such person be sentenced to imprisonment for a longer period than fourteen years :

(b) if the case is tried by a Magistrate (other than a Magistrate acting under s. 34), the aggregate punishment shall not exceed twice the amount of punishment which he is, in the exercise of his ordinary jurisdiction, competent to inflict.

For the purpose of appeal, aggregate sentences passed under this section in case of convictions for several offences at one trial shall be deemed to be a single sentence.

Explanation.—Separable offences which come within the provisions of section 71 of the Indian Penal Code are not distinct offences within the meaning of this section.

Illustration.

A breaks into a house with intent to commit theft, and steals property therein. A has not committed distinct offences.

Trial for more than one offence.

235. (1) If, in one series of acts so connected together as to form the same transaction, more offences than one are committed by the same person, he may be charged with, and tried at one trial for, every such offence.

Offence falling within two definitions.

(2) If the acts alleged constitute an offence falling within two or more separate definitions of any law in force for the time being by which offences are defined or punished, the person accused of them may be charged with, and tried at one trial for, each of such offences.

Acts constituting one offence, but constituting, when combined, a different offence.

(3) If several acts, of which one or more than one would, by itself or themselves, constitute an offence, constitute, when combined, a different offence, the person accused of them may be charged with, and tried at one trial for, the offence constituted by such acts when combined, or for any offence constituted by any one, or more, of such acts.

Nothing contained in this section shall affect the Indian Penal Code, s. 71.

(a.) A rescues B, a person in lawful custody, and, in so doing, causes grievous hurt to C, a constable in whose custody B was. A may be charged with, and tried for, offences under ss. 225 and 333 of the Indian Penal Code.

(b.) A commits house-breaking by day with intent to commit adultery, and commits, in the house so entered, adultery with B's wife. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under ss. 454 and 497 of the Indian Penal Code.

(c.) A entices B, the wife of C, away from C, with intent to commit adultery with B, and then commits adultery with her. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under ss. 498 and 497 of the Indian Penal Code.

(d.) A has in his possession several seals, knowing them to be counterfeit, and intending to use them for the purpose of committing several forgeries, punishable under s. 466 of the Indian Penal Code. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, the possession of each seal under s. 473 of the Indian Penal Code.

(e.) With intent to cause injury to B, A institutes a criminal proceeding against him, knowing that there is no just or lawful ground for such proceeding ; and also falsely accuses B of having committed an offence, knowing that there is no just or lawful ground for such charge. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, two offences under s. 211 of the Indian Penal Code.

(f.) A, with intent to cause injury to B, falsely accuses him of having committed an offence, knowing that there is no just or lawful ground for such charge. On the trial, A gives false evidence against B, intending thereby to cause B to be convicted of a capital offence. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under ss. 211 and 194 of the Indian Penal Code.

(g.) A, with six others, commits the offences of rioting, grievous hurt, and assaulting a public servant endeavouring, in the discharge of his duty as such, to suppress the riot. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under ss. 147, 325, and 152 of the Indian Penal Code.

(h.) A threatens B, C, and D, at the same time, with injury to their persons with intent to cause alarm to them. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, each of the three offences under s. 506 of the Indian Penal Code.

The separate charges referred to in illustrations a to h respectively may be tried at the same time.

(i.) A wrongfully strikes B with a cane. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under ss. 352 and 323 of the Indian Penal Code.

(j.) Several stolen sacks of corn are made over to A and B, who know they are stolen property, for the purpose of concealing them. A and B may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under ss. 411 and 414 of the Indian Penal Code.

(k.) A exposes her child with the knowledge that she is thereby likely to cause its death. The child dies in consequence of such exposure. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under ss. 317 and 304 of the Indian Penal Code.

(l.) A dishonestly uses a forged document as genuine evidence, in order to convict B, a public servant, of an offence under s. 167 of the Indian Penal Code. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under ss. 471 (read with s. 466) and 196 of the same Code.

(m.) A commits robbery on B and, in doing so, voluntarily causes hurt to him. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under ss. 323, 392, and 394 of the Indian Penal Code.

Execution of sentences on escaped convicts.

396. When a sentence is passed under this Code on an escaped convict, such sentence, if of death, fine, or whipping, shall, subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained, take effect immediately, and, if of imprisonment, penal servitude, or transportation, shall take effect according to the following rules, that is to say:—

If the new sentence is severer in its quality than the sentence which such convict was undergoing when he escaped, the new sentence shall take effect immediately.

When the new sentence is not severer in its quality than the sentence, the convict was undergoing when he escaped, the new sentence shall take effect after he has suffered imprisonment, penal servitude, or transportation, as the case may be, for a further period equal to that which, at the time of his escape, remained unexpired of his former sentence.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section—

(a) a sentence of transportation or penal servitude shall be deemed severer than a sentence of imprisonment;

(b) a sentence of imprisonment with solitary confinement shall be deemed severer than a sentence of the same description of imprisonment without solitary confinement; and

(c) a sentence of rigorous imprisonment shall be deemed severer than a sentence of simple imprisonment with or without solitary confinement.

Sentence on offender already sentenced for another offence.

397. When a person already undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, penal servitude, or transportation, is sentenced to imprisonment, penal servitude, or transportation, such imprisonment, penal servitude, or transportation, shall commence at the expiration of the imprisonment, penal servitude, or transportation to which he has been previously sentenced:

Provided that, if he is undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, and the sentence on such subsequent conviction be one of transportation, the Court may, in its discretion, direct that the latter sentence shall commence immediately or at the expiration of the imprisonment to which he has been previously sentenced.

Saving as to ss. 396 and 397.

398. Nothing in s. 396 or s. 397 shall be held to excuse any person from any part of the punishment to which he is liable upon his former or subsequent conviction.

72. In all cases in which judgment is given that a person is guilty of one of several offences specified in the judgment, but that it is doubtful of which of those offences he is guilty, the offender shall be punished for the offence for which the lowest punishment is provided if the same punishment is not provided for all.

Doubt as to which offence committed.—With s. 72 of the Penal Code read the following section of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act V. of 1898):—

236. If a single act or series of acts, is of such a nature that it is doubtful which of several offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, the accused may be charged with having committed all or any of such offences, and any number of such charges may be tried at once; or he may be charged in the alternative with having committed some one of the said offences.

A is accused of an act which may amount to theft, or receiving stolen property, or criminal breach of trust, or cheating. He may be charged with theft, receiving stolen property, criminal breach of trust, and cheating, or he may be charged with having committed theft, or receiving stolen property, or criminal breach of trust, or cheating.

A states on oath before the Magistrate that he saw B hit C with a club. Before the Sessions Court A states on oath that B never hit C. A may be charged in the alternative and convicted of intentionally giving false evidence, although it cannot be proved which of these contradictory statements was false.

Proof of contradictory statements on oath or solemn affirmation, without evidence as to which of them is false, is sufficient to justify a conviction, upon an alternative finding of the offence of giving false evidence, under s. 72 of the Penal Code, and ss. 242, 381, and 382 of the Criminal Procedure Code. The English law upon the subject stated.—In re PALANY CHETTI, 4 Mad. H. C. R. 51. [Scotland, C.J., and Collett, J. May 18, 1868.] But see rulings under s. 193.

False evidence: Contradictory statements: Alternative finding.—When a witness intentionally gives false evidence, and it is doubtful whether the false statement was made before the Magistrate or before the Sessions Judge, the witness may be convicted of the offence of giving false evidence upon an alternative finding (Norman and Campbell, JJ., dubitantibus). The deposition voluntarily given before the Sessions Judge is admissible in evidence against the witness to show the falsehood of his deposition before the Magistrate, anything in s. 32, Act II. of 1855, notwithstanding (Campbell, J., dissentiente).—QUEEN v. MUSSAMUT ZUMEERUN, 6 W. R. 65; B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 521. [Peacock, C.J., and Norman, Kemp, Seton-Karr, and Campbell, JJ. Aug. 31, 1886.]

An accused person was convicted under s. 457 of the Penal Code of house-breaking by night in order to commit an offence (mischief and assault), and also under ss. 426 and 352 for the offences of mischief and assault, and punished separately for each offence. These offences formed parts of one transaction. Held that the sentences were legal.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. NIRICHAN, I. L. R., 12 Mad. 36. [Kernan and Muttusami Ayyar, JJ. April 17, 1888.]

73. Whenever any person is convicted of an offence for which, under this Code, the Court has power to sentence him to rigorous imprisonment, the Court may, by its sentence, order that the offender shall be kept in solitary confinement for any portion or portions of the imprisonment to which he is sentenced, not exceeding three months in the whole, according to the following scale, that is to say:—

a time not exceeding one month if the term of imprisonment shall not exceed six months;

* As to the application of ss. 72 and 73 to sentences passed in a Punjab Frontier District or in Baluchistan, see the Punjab Frontier Crimes Regulation (IV. of 1887), ss. 15 (2), 52.

a time not exceeding two months if the term of imprisonment shall exceed six months, and "shall not exceed one" * year;

a time not exceeding three months if the term of imprisonment shall exceed one year.

Solitary confinement in a case tried summarily.—It is not illegal to impose solitary confinement as part of the sentence in a case tried summarily.—EMPRESS v. ANNU KHAN, I. L. R., 6 All. 83. [Oldfield, J. Sep. 11, 1883.]

74.† In executing a sentence of solitary confinement, such confinement shall, in no case, exceed fourteen days at a time, with intervals between the periods of solitary confinement of not less duration than such periods; and when the imprisonment awarded shall exceed three months, the solitary confinement awarded shall not exceed seven days, in any one month, of the whole imprisonment awarded, with intervals between the periods of solitary confinement of not less duration than such periods.

Limit of solitary confinement.

Limit of solitary confinement.—Solitary confinement must not be imposed for the whole term of a person's imprisonment. Under s. 74 of the Penal Code it is to be imposed at intervals.—IN THE MATTER OF NYAN SUK METHER, 3 B. L. R. A. Cr. 49. [Jackson and Mitter, JJ. Aug. 10, 1869.]

Reduction of solitary confinement.—Where a prisoner was sentenced to imprisonment for a year and a day, during three months of which he was to be kept in solitary confinement, the Madras High Court reduced the solitary confinement, to 84 days—Dec. 15, 1879; S. C. Weir, 1st Ed. Sup., 2nd Ed. 15.

75.‡ Whoever, having been convicted of an offence punishable under Chapter XII. or Chapter XVII. of this Code with imprisonment of either description for a term of three years or upwards, shall be guilty of any offence punishable under either of those chapters with imprisonment of either description for a term of three years or upwards, shall be subject for every such subsequent offence to transportation for life, "or to imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years."§

Enhanced punishment for certain offence under Ch. XII. or Ch. XVII. after previous conviction.

Punishment can be enhanced if offences punishable under Ch. XII. and XVII., Penal Code.—To justify enhanced punishment under s. 75 of the Penal Code, on account of previous convictions, both convictions must be of offences punishable

‡ In s. 75, the words quoted have been substituted by the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act (X. of 1886), s. 22, for the words, "or to double the amount of punishment to which he would otherwise have been liable for the same: provided that he shall not in any case be liable to imprisonment for a term exceeding ten years."

§ In its application to hill tribes to which the Kachin Hill-tribes Regulation (I. of 1895) is applied [see ss. 1 (3) and 3 of that Regulation], the Code is to be read as if the following additional section were inserted—

"75A. Notwithstanding anything in this Code, or in any other enactment for the time being in force, a person convicted of any offence punishable under this Code or under any other enactment shall be punishable with fine in lieu of, or in addition to, any other punishment to which he may be liable."

In the Chin Hills the Code is to be read as if a section similar to the preceding, save a few verbal differences, and similarly numbered, were inserted.—See the Chin Hills Regulation (V. of 1896).

under Ch. XII. and Ch. XVII. of the Code, and committed after the Code came into operation. — QUEEN v. MOLUCK CHUND KHALIFA, 3 W. R. 17. [Jackson and Glover, JJ. May 22, 1865.]

Previous conviction not to be put until close of trial.—Records of previous convictions should not be put in until the close of the trial, as they can only be used after conviction in determining the measure of punishment—QUEEN v. SHIBOO MUNDLE, 3 W. R. 38. [Glover, J. June 29, 1865.] Overruled by Queen-Empress v. Kartick Chunder Dass, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 727; but this case has itself been overruled by s. 54 of the Evidence Act as amended by Act III. of 1891, s. 6.

Convictions after Penal Code came into force.—S. 75 of the Penal Code only applies to convictions of offences committed after the Code came into operation.—QUEEN v. HURPAUL, 4 W. R. 9 [Kemp, Campbell, and Glover, JJ. Sep. 12, 1865.]

Whipping in addition to imprisonment legal in case of second conviction if offence same in both cases.—In order to legalize whipping in addition to imprisonment in the case of a second conviction, the offence must be the same in both cases.—QUEEN v. AMARUT SHEIK, 4 W. R. 20. [Glover, J. Oct. 28, 1865.]

Previous conviction does not affect Deputy Magistrate's jurisdiction.—The jurisdiction of a Deputy Magistrate competent to try the offence charged is not affected by the previous conviction of the prisoner.—In re SHEIKH BOOLUCK, 5 W. R. 53. [Seton-Karr and Macpherson, JJ. Mar. 21, 1866.]

When an offender is liable to enhanced punishment.—An offender is only liable to enhanced punishment under s. 75 of the Penal Code for an offence punishable under Ch. 17, after having been punished with imprisonment for the same offence, or for an offence punishable under the same chapter. —QUEEN v. PUBON, 5 W. R. 66. [Seton-Karr and Glover, JJ. April 14, 1866.]

Previous conviction cannot be taken into account if it took place before Penal Code came into force.—Where a previous conviction takes place before the Penal Code came into operation, such conviction cannot be taken into account in awarding enhanced punishment under s. 75. The previous conviction must be after the Penal Code came into operation.—REG. v. PUBUN, 5 W. R. 66. [April 14, 1866.] The following important remarks were made by Seton-Karr and Glover, JJ., in delivering judgment in the above case: "The meaning of the law appears to us to be that, when an offender, after having been punished with imprisonment for a crime under Ch. 17, again, after his release from prison, commits a similar description of crime, or a crime punishable under the same chapter, he is liable, under s. 75, to enhanced punishment, on the ground that the sentence already borne had no effect in preventing a repetition of his crime, and has been, therefore, insufficient as a warning. But where the prisoner's conviction has taken place a very short time before, and where no imprisonment under it has yet been undergone, and no time has been given for reformation, it cannot be said that a prisoner has had any opportunity of showing what the effect of the first sentence would have been upon him, and it would not be just to punish him as though he were an incorrigible offender, whom no comparatively light sentence could wean from evil courses."

Previous conviction not to be proved until prisoner convicted in the case then being tried.—Records of previous convictions should not be put in until the prisoner has been convicted in the case then under trial.—QUEEN v. JEHAN MULLICK, 5 W. R. 67. [Glover, J. April 16, 1866.] Overruled by Queen-Empress v. Kartick Chunder Dass (I. L. R., 14 Cal. 721); but this case has itself been overruled by s. 54 of the Evidence Act, as amended by Act III. of 1891, s. 6.

Sentence of whipping annulled as the offence not committed after previous conviction. — On a reference by a Sessions Judge under s. 434 of the Criminal Procedure Code, a sentence of whipping, in addition to one of rigorous imprisonment, in the case of an offence specified in s. 2 of Act VI. of 1864, was annulled, as the offence was not committed after previous conviction.—REG. v. SURYA BIN KRISHNA MANDAVKAR, 3 Bom. H. C. R. 38. [Couch, C.J., and Newton and Warden, JJ. Dec. 12, 1866.]

To make a former acquittal or conviction a defence in a second trial, the offence must be the same.—To render a former acquittal or conviction a defence on second trial, the offence must, according to s. 55 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act XXV. of 1861), be the same offence. The prisoner was charged with having forged pottas A and B, bearing the same date, and adduced in evidence by him in the same suit. No mention of any charge as to potta B was made in the order of commitment; and the prisoner having been acquitted on an indictment for forging potta A, it was held by the majority of the Court (Markby, J., dissenting) that the plea of autrefois acquit was inadmissible on a subsequent trial of the prisoner for forging the potta B.—QUEEN v. DWARKANATH DUTT, 7 W. R. 15; 2 Ind. Jur. N. S. 67. [Peacock, C.J., and Kemp and Markby, JJ. Jan. 23, 1867.]

Sentence of whipping annulled, as prisoner was not previously convicted of same offence.—On a reference by a Sessions Judge, under s. 434 of the Criminal Procedure Code, a sentence of whipping, in addition to one of rigorous imprisonment, in the case of an offence specified in s. 4 of Act VI. of 1864, was annulled, as the prisoner had not been previously convicted of the same offence.—REG. v. BABJI VALAD BAPU, 4 Bom. H. C. R. 5. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. July 24, 1867.]

Previous convictions before Penal Code: Present offence, therefore, not punishable under s. 75.—A prisoner convicted under s. 380 of the Penal Code of theft in a building used for the custody of property, was sentenced, under s. 75, to fourteen years' transportation, as he had been previously convicted thirteen times of offences now punishable under Ch. 17 of the Code with imprisonment for three years or upwards. Held that, as all the previous convictions were prior to the passing of the Penal Code, the present offence was not punishable under s. 75.—REG. v. KUSHYA BIN YESU, 4 Bom. H. C. R. 11. [Couch, C.J., and Newton, J. Sep. 18, 1867.]

A person, not previously convicted, is convicted, at one time, of two or more offences. It is illegal to sentence him to whipping for one of those offences, in addition to imprisonment or fine for the other or others; but it is not illegal to inflict one whipping in lieu of all other punishments.—Held by the majority that, when a person who had not been "previously convicted" (vide s. 4, Act VI. of 1864) is convicted at one time of two or more offences, it is illegal to sentence him to whipping for one of those offences, in addition to imprisonment or fine for the other or others; but it is not illegal to sentence him to one whipping in lieu of all other punishments. Held further that, when a person who has been "previously convicted" at one time of two or more offences, he may be punished with one, but only one, whipping, in addition to any other punishment to which, under s. 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, he may be liable.—NASSIR v. CHUNDER, 9 W. R. 41; B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 951. [Peacock, C.J., and Seton-Karr, Jackson, Phear, and Macpherson, JJ. Mar. 12, 1868.]

In a charge alleging a previous conviction, the extent of the former punishment need not be shown.—A charge alleging a previous conviction need not show the extent of the former punishment. Revised form of charge.—PRO., April 17, 1868; 4 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 11.

Annulment of sentence of transportation for 14 years under s. 392, as s. 75 had been improperly applied.—Sentence of transportation for fourteen years under s. 392 of the Penal Code annulled, as the offence for which such sentence was passed was not committed subsequently to any conviction, and s. 75 had, therefore, been improperly applied. Semble, that a Sessions Judge cannot (under s. 75 of the Penal Code, or otherwise), by amalgamating a sentence which he is competent to pass upon a prisoner with a sentence under which such prisoner is already undergoing imprisonment, and commuting the latter sentence, condemn such prisoner to a longer period of transportation than he is liable to suffer for the crime of which he has last been convicted. — REG. v. SAKYA VALAD KABJI, 5 Bom. H C. R. 36. [Newton, Offg. C J., and Tucker, J. May 20, 1868.]

Whipping founded on a previous conviction can be warranted where the subsequent conviction is for the same offence. — A sentence of whipping, founded on a previous conviction of the prisoner, is only warranted where the subsequent conviction is for the same specific offence as that in respect of which the previous conviction applied. A Sessions Judge has no power to suspend a sentence in a case in the absence of appeal.—PRO., Oct. 25 1869; 5 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 1.

Whipping can be inflicted in addition to other punishment on a second conviction of offences specified therein. A sentence of whipping under s. 4, Act VI. of 1864, can only be inflicted in addition to other punishment on a second conviction of the offences specified therein, when the first offence was committed some time previous to the second conviction, though after the passing of the Penal Code.—QUEEN v. UDOY PUTNAICK, 12 W. R. 68; 4 B. L. R. A. Cr. 5. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Oct. 28, 1869.]

Sentence of six months under s. 457: Further six months as enhanced punishment under s. 75: Latter sentence set aside — Where a First-class Subordinate Magistrate sentenced a prisoner to six months' rigorous imprisonment under s. 457 of the Penal Code, and, finding that the prisoner was liable to enhanced punishment under s. 75 of the Penal Code, sentenced the prisoner to six months' further imprisonment under s. 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the latter sentence was set aside by the High Court.—PRO., Nov. 2, 1869; 5 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 3.

One whipping in addition to any other punishment.—Follows the Full Bench decision ruling that, when a person who has been previously convicted (s 4, Act VI. of 1864) is a second time convicted at one time of two or more offences, he may be punished with only one whipping in addition to any other punishment to which, under s. 46 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act XXV. of 1861), he may be liable.—RUTTON BEWA v. BUHUR; JHOWLA v. BUHUR, 14 W. R. 7. [Loch and Hobhouse, JJ. June 18, 1870.]

Evidence of previous conviction must be clear before awarding additional punishment under s. 75.—To warrant a sentence awarding additional punishment under s. 75 of the Penal Code as on a second conviction, the evidence that there was a previous conviction against the accused under the Penal Code must be clear and precise.—QUEEN v. NAIMUDDI SHEIKH alias ADJAS SHEIKH, 14 W. R. 7. [Jackson and Glover, JJ. June 25, 1870.]

First conviction for simple theft: Second conviction for theft in a dwelling-house Whipping illegal.—A prisoner convicted of "theft in a dwelling-house" who has previously been convicted of "simple theft," is not thereby rendered liable to whipping under Act VI of 1864, s. 3.—REG. v. CHANGLA VALAD SHUMJI, 7 Bom. H. C. R. 68. [Westropp, C.J., and Gibbs and Lloyd, JJ. Sep. 22, 1870.]

First conviction for simple theft Second conviction for theft in a dwelling house Whipping illegal.—The Magistrate convicted the accused under s. 380 of the Penal Code, and a previous conviction having been proved under s. 379 of the Penal Code, sentence of imprisonment and whipping was passed. Held that, in order to justify the sentence of whipping, the previous conviction should have been in respect of the same specific offence.—PRO., Oct. 28, 1870, 5 Mad. H. C. R. Ap. 38.

S. 3 of Whipping Act applies to juvenile as well as to adult offenders.—S. 3 of Act VI. of 1864 (the Whipping Act) applies to juvenile as well as to adult offenders. That section does not apply to cases in which the second conviction is for an offence committed previously to the first conviction.—REG. v. KUSA VALAD LAKSHMAN, 7 Bom. H. C. R. 70. [Gibbs and Melvill JJ. Nov. 17, 1870.]

Evidence of previous conviction must be clear before awarding additional punishment under s. 75.—As a rule, before flogging is given as an additional punishment, there ought to be formal evidence upon the record of the previous convictions relied on. The conviction and identity of the prisoner ought to be proved in the regular way. A mere kaifiat is no evidence whatever.—QUEEN v. NUZEE NUSHYO, 15 W. R. 52. [Bayley and Macpherson, JJ. April 21, 1871.]

How previous conviction should be proved.—A mere kaifiat from the record-office is not sufficient to prove a former conviction against a prisoner. There should be sworn testimony to the fact, and also the identification of the prisoner with the person previously convicted.—QUEEN v. SEIKH RAMJAN, 15 W. R. 53; 6 B. L. R. Ap 151. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. April 22, 1871.]

Order to commit a deaf and dumb accused for enhanced punishment under Ch XVII.—In the case of an accused person who was deaf and dumb, the Deputy Magistrate who tried and convicted him, considered that he did not understand the proceedings, and accordingly referred the case to the Magistrate under s. 186 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The Magistrate considered that the accused did understand what he was charged with. Held, that the finding of the Magistrate must prevail, and s. 186 did not apply. Acting under s. 297 of the Code of Criminal Procedure the High Court annulled the order of the Deputy Magistrate; and as the accused had been previously convicted of an offence under Ch XVII. of the Penal Code, punishable with three years' rigorous imprisonment, ordered that he should, under s. 315 of the Procedure Code, be committed for trial to the Sessions Court.—DOOBRI HUIWAI v. A Dumb Person, name unknown, 19 W. R 37 [Couch, C J., and Glover, J. Feb. 20, 1873.]

Previous conviction should be stated in the charge.—Under s. 439 of the new Criminal Procedure Code, if it is intended to prove a previous conviction against an accused person for the purpose of enhancing the punishment, it is necessary to state the fact of that previous punishment in the charge. If it is omitted, it may be added to the charge at any time previous to the sentence being passed, but not after.—QUEEN v. RAJCOOMAR BOSE, 19 W. R. 41. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Mar. 4, 1873.]

S. 75 does not refer to attempts.—S. 75 of the Penal Code is restricted to offences under Chs. 12 and 17 of that Code when the term of imprisonment awardable is three years' imprisonment and upwards, and does not refer to an attempt to commit any of those offences; nor can any case be brought within it merely because the punishment that may be given for it extends to three years and upwards. — QUEEN v. DAMU HARRI, 21 W. R. 35. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Jan. 26, 1874.]

Whipping cannot be passed for theft under s. 379: Previous conviction should be stated in the charge.—A sentence of whipping cannot, with reference to Act VI. of 1864, s 7, be passed on a conviction for theft under s. 379 Penal Code, as the former section only provides for sentences of imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years. The fact of previous conviction should, under Act X. of 1872, s 439, be stated in the charge when it is intended to prove them for the purpose of enhancing punishment. The question of proof of previous conviction is one of fact which ought to go to the jury, and must be determined by a jury.—QUEEN v. ESAN CHUNDER DAY, 21 W. R. 40. [Jackson and Ainslie, JJ. Feb 5, 1874.]

What the charge should contain if offence committed after previous conviction. — Under s 439, Code of Criminal Procedure, a charge of having committed the offence after a previous conviction therefor should contain an allegation that the offence has been committed after a previous conviction. A statement in a count that at the time when the prisoner committed the offence (no offence being mentioned specially in the count) he had been previously convicted of offences punishable under Ch. XVII of the Penal Code is not a sufficient compliance with the provisions of s. 439.—QUEEN v SHEIKH JAKIR, 22 W. R. 39. [Phear and Morris, JJ. July 16, 1874.]

A previous conviction should not so enormously enhance the heinousness of petty offences.—Where, soon after his release on expiry of a sentence of seven years' imprisonment on conviction of "receiving stolen property acquired by dacoity," a person is convicted of house breaking and theft, he is sufficiently punished by a sentence of seven years' transportation. A sentence of transportation for life is too severe. It is not the intention of the Legislature that a previous conviction should so enormously enhance the heinousness of petty offences.—IN THE MATTER OF SHAMJEE NOSHYO, 1 C. L. R. 481. [Jackson and Cunningham, JJ. Feb. 6, 1878.]

S. 75 does not refer to attempts.—If a person who has been convicted of an offence punishable under Ch. XII. or Ch. XVII. of the Penal Code with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards is convicted of an attempt to commit any such offence, he does not thereby become liable to the enhanced punishment allowed by s. 75 of the Code.—EMPRESS v. NANA RAHIM, I. L. R., 5 Bom. 140. [Westropp, C.J., and Melvill and Kemball, JJ. Oct. 28, 1880.]

S. 75 does not refer to attempts.—A person, having been convicted of an offence punishable under s. 457 (Ch. XVII) of the Penal Code, was subsequently guilty of an attempt to commit such an offence. Held that the provisions of s. 75 of the Penal Code were not applicable to such person.—EMPRESS v. RAM DIAL, I. L. R, 3 All. 773. [Spankie, J. May 6, 1881.]

S. 75 does not refer to attempts.—A person who has been convicted of the offence of theft (an offence punishable under Ch XVII. of the Penal Code) does not, on being convicted of an attempt to commit the offence of theft, become liable to the enhanced punishment allowed by s. 75 of the Penal Code.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SRICHARAN BAURI, I. L. R, 14 Cal. 357. [Petheram, C.J., and Cunningham, J. Mar. 12, 1887.]

S. 75 does not apply to attempts.—S. 75 of the Penal Code does not apply to cases which are confined to s. 511 of that Code. The offences which come under s. 511 must be punished entirely irrespective of s 75. Queen-Empress v. Ajudhia (I. L. R., 17 All 120) approved —QUEEN-EMPRESS v. BHAROSA, I L. R, 17 All 123. [Edge, C J., and Banerji, J. Jan. 9, 1895.]

S. 75 does not apply to attempts.—S. 75 of Act XLV. of 1860 does not apply to the case of an attempt to commit the offence punishable under s. 457 of the Code after previous convictions of offences falling within Ch. XII. or Ch. XVII., such offence being punishable under s. 511. Sheo Saran Tato v. The Empress (I. L. R, 9 Cal. 877), Empress of India v. Ram Dayal (I. L. R., 3 All. 773), Empress v. Nana Rahim (I. L. R., 5 Bom. 140), and Queen-Empress v. Sricharan Hauri (I. L. R., 14 Cal. 367). referred to.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. AJUDHIA, I. L. R., 17 All. 120. [Banerji, J Jan. 10, 1895.]

Where a sentence of whipping cannot be carried out the punishment must be remitted, or imprisonment substituted. —A Court has no power, under s. 395 of the Criminal Procedure Code, to revise its sentence of whipping by inflicting a fine. In cases where the sentence of whipping cannot be carried out, all that the Court can do is either to remit the whipping altogether, or to sentence the offender, in lieu of such whipping, or of so much of the sentence of whipping as was not carried out, to imprisonment, &c. The word "imprisonment" in s. 395 of the Criminal Procedure Code means a substantive sentence of imprisonment, and not imprisonment for default in payment of a fine.—QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SHEODIN, I. L. R., 11 All. 308. [Straight, J. Jan. 5, 1889.]

Enhanced punishment can only be convicted if second offence committed after first.—Where a person commits an offence punishable under Ch. XII. or Ch. XVII. of the Penal Code, punishable with three years' imprisonment, and, previously to his being convicted of such offence, commits another such offence punishable under either of such chapter, he is not subject, on being convicted of the second offence, to the enhanced punishment provided in s. 75 of the Penal Code.—EMPRESS v. MEGHA, I. L. R., 1 All. 637. [Turner, J. April 2, 1878.]

Misdirection where a Judge directed the jury to consider the proof of previous convictions for theft as evidence of bad character.—In charging the jury upon the trial of a prisoner for being dishonestly in the possession of stolen goods, the Judge directed the jury to consider the proof of previous convictions for theft as evidence from which inference might fairly be drawn as to the character of the accused Held that this amounted to a misdirection; for though s. 54 of the Evidence Act declares that "the fact that the accused person has been previously convicted of an offence is relevant" yet the same section also declares that 'the fact that he has a bad character is irrelevant," and that the evidence was irrelevant and inadmissible. Except under very special circumstances the proper object of using previous convictions is to determine the amount of punishment to be awarded should the prisoner be convicted of the offence charged.—ROSHUN DOSSADH v. EMPRESS I. L. R., 5 Cal. 768; 6 C. L. R. 219. [Morris and Prinsep, JJ. Feb 10 1880.] See Queen-Empress v. Kartick Chunder Dass, I. L. R., 14 Cal. 721. But see the new s. 54 of the Evidence Act, which overrules Queen-Empress v. Kartick Chunder Dass.

Previous conviction for a like offence under the Excise Act.—The provisions of s 74 of the Bengal Excise Act, as to additional punishment where there has been a "previous conviction for a like offence," contemplate merely the case of the offender having been already convicted of an offence punishable with a fine of Rs. 200 or upwards, and being again convicted of another offence punishable with the same punishment, it is not necessary that he should have been previously convicted of the same offence. The accused were sentenced by the Presidency Magistrate, under ss 58 and 74 of the Bengal Excise Act, to a fine of Rs. 200 each, in default to three months' imprisonment, and in addition to six months' imprisonment, which was the maximum term that could be awarded under s. 74. Held that the sentence of imprisonment was not in excess of the powers given to the Magistrate by s. 12 of the Presidency Magistrates Act, the imposition of the additional sentence of imprisonment not affecting the Magistrate's powers as regarded the original sentence under s. 58. No limits with regard to any distilleries in Calcutta having been fixed under s. 9 of the Act within which spirituous liquor manufactured otherwise than in that particular distillery shall be introduced or sold without a special pass, and the fixing of such limits being necessary to a conviction of an offence under s. 48, the convictions in this case were set aside. —RAM CHUNDER SHAW v. EMPRESS, I. L. R., 6 Cal. 575; 8 C. L. R. 250. [Morris and Prinsep, JJ. Jan. 5, 1881.]

It is where the previous conviction is under the Penal Code that the enhanced punishment can be imposed.—An accused person can only be punished under s 75 of the Penal Code where the previous conviction has been under that Code.—BUDHUN RUJWAR v. EMPRESS, 10 C. L. R. 392. [Cunningham and Tottenham, JJ. Mar. 13, 1882.]

Recourse not to be had to s. 75, if the punishment for the offence committed is sufficient.—The object of s. 75 of the Penal Code is to provide for an additional sentence, not a less severe sentence, on a second conviction. Recourse should not be had to that section if the punishment for the offence committed is itself sufficient.—SHEO SARAN TATO v. EMPRESS, I. L. R., 9 Cal. 877. [Prinsep and O'Kinealy, JJ. May 4, 1882.]

Under s. 75, a prisoner might be transported for life, but not imprisoned for a longer period than six years.—The accused, having been previously convicted of offences punishable under Ch. XII. or Ch. XVII. of the Penal Code with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards, was subsequently convicted of an offence under one of these chapters punishable with imprisonment which may extend to three years, and sentenced to imprisonment for seven years. Held that a sentence of transportation for seven years was illegal. Under s. 75 of the Penal Code, the accused might be transported for life, but he could not be imprisoned for a longer period than six years. —EMPRESS v. MAHADU, I. L. R., 6 Bom 690. [Melvill and Pinhey, JJ. Sep. 7, 1882.]

Reference should not be made to a previous conviction until the accused has been convicted of the subsequent offence, —In trials before a jury or assessors, the record should invariably show that reference to a previous conviction was not made until the accused had been convicted of the subsequent offence.—KRISTO BEHARI DASS v. EMPRESS, 12 C. L. R. 555. [Cunningham and Maclean, JJ. Mar. 13, 1883.]

Accused called upon to answer at the same time a charge of theft and also a charge of having been previously convicted.—Where, in a trial by jury, the Sessions Judge called upon the accused to answer at the same time a charge of theft and also a charge of having been previously convicted, the High Court refused to interfere, it not appearing that a failure of justice had been caused by the irregularity.—BEPIN BEHARY SHAHA v. EMPRESS, 13 C. L. R. 110. [Prinsep and Tottenham, JJ. Aug. 3, 1883.]

A charge under s. 75 must be framed and recorded, if the prisoner is to be tried under that section.—If a prisoner is to be tried for an offence punishable under s. 75 of the Penal Code, a separate charge under that section must be framed and recorded. —QUEEN-EMPRESS v. DORASAMI, I. L. R., 9 Mad. 284. [Kernan and Muttusami Ayyar, JJ. April 2, 1886.]

Where an offence under s. 411, read with s. 75, deserves a greater punishment than he can inflict, the Magistrate must commit.—A person convicted under ss. 411-75 of the Penal Code is not convicted of "distinct offences" within the meaning of s. 35 of the Criminal Procedure Code. Queen-Empress v. Zor Singh (I. L. R., 10 All. 146) explained. Where an offence under s 411 read with s. 75 of the Penal Code appears to be deserving of a greater punishment than the Magistrate trying it can award, the best course for him to adopt is to commit the accused for trial to the Court of Session. —QUEEN-EMPRESS v. KHALAK, I. L. R., 11 All. 393. [Brodhurst, J. May 3, 1889.]

Previous commissions of dacoity relevant under s. 140, Evidence Act.—Having regard to the character of the offence under s. 400 of the Penal Code, previous commissions of dacoity are relevant under s 14 of the Evidence Act Convictions previous to the time specified in the charge or to the framing of the charge are relevant under expl 2 of s. 14, but convictions subsequent to the time specified in the charge and to the framing of the charge are not so admissible. To support a conviction under s. 400 of the Indian Penal Code, evidence must be given of the existence of a gang of persons of their association, and association for the purpose of habitually committing dacoity and robbery. Queen-Empress v. Kartick Chunder Dass (I. L. R., 14 Cal. 721), referred to.—EMPRESS v. NABA KUMAR PATNAIK, 1 C. W. N. 146. [Ghose and Gordon, JJ. Jan. 15, 1897.]

Form of charge where there has been a previous conviction.—The following is the form of a charge of a previous conviction, according to the ruling of the Madras High Court, 17th April 1868, 3 Mad. Jur. 284: "That he, the said A B, before the committing of the said offence, was convicted, to wit, on the day of in Calender No. of on the file of , of an offence punishable under Ch. XVII. (or XII.) of the Indian Penal Code with imprisonment for a term of three years, to wit, with the offence of , which conviction is still in full force and effect; and that he, the said A B, is thereby liable to enhanced punishment under s. 75 of the Indian Penal Code, and within," &c.

Previous conviction should be brought forward after conviction.—The Calcutta High Court has ruled that "the previous conviction of a prisoner should not have been charged against him: it should have been brought forward by the prosecution after his conviction, and should have been taken into consideration when passing sentence. To enter such a circumstance in a charge would be apt, very improperly, to prejudice the jury trying the case"—1 Wyman's Rev., Civ., and Crim. Rep. Cir. 26. The practice, however, is different in England, where previous convictions are always entered on the indictment in cases of felony, so as to allow the prisoner to claim a formal trial on that charge also, if he so desire it; and the count containing the previous conviction is not read to the jury until the prisoner has been convicted of the subsequent offence. In fact, he is not called upon to plead to it until the other is disposed of against him. In accordance with this practice the Madras High Court has ruled that "the previous conviction should be made a separate head of charge on the trial for the subsequent offence" (Mad. H. C. Rulings, 1864, on s. 75), but that to prevent any injustice to the prisoner, the procedure should be, "first to try the prisoner on the substantive charge then under inquiry, and, if he should be convicted on that charge, to charge him with, and try the fact of, the previous conviction" (Mad. H. C. Rulings, 1865, on s. 75). But see Queen Empress v. Kartick Chunder Dass (I. L. R., 14 Cal. 721), which has been overruled by s. 54 of the Evidence Act (I. of 1872), as amended by s. 6 of Act III. of 1891.

How previous conviction should be proved.—In any inquiry, trial, or other proceeding under this Code, a previous conviction or acquittal may be proved, in addition to any other mode provided by any law for the time being in force: (a) by an extract certified under the hand of the officer having the custody of the records of the Court in which such conviction or acquittal was had to be a copy of the sentence or order; or (b) in case of a conviction either by a certificate signed by the officer in charge of the jail in which the punishment or any part thereof was inflicted, or by production of the warrant of commitment under which the punishment was suffered; together with, in each of such cases, evidence as to the identity of the accused person with the person so convicted or acquitted.—CRIM. PRO. CODE (ACT V OF 1898), S. 511.

The fact, date, and place of the previous conviction should be stated in the charge.—If the accused has been previously convicted of any offence, and it is intended to prove such previous conviction for the purpose of affecting the punishment, which the Court is competent to award, the fact, date, and place of the previous conviction shall be stated in the charge. If such statement is omitted, the Court may add it at any time before sentence is passed.—CRIM. PRO CODE (ACT V. OF 1898), S. 221, last para.

Procedure in respect of previous conviction in a trial by jury, &c.—In the case of a trial by jury or with the aid of assessors, where the accused is charged with an offence, committed after a previous conviction for any offence, the procedure laid down in ss. 271, 286, 305, 306, and 309, shall be modified as follows:—

(a) The part of the charge stating the previous conviction shall not be read out in Court, nor shall the accused be asked whether he has been previously convicted as alleged in the charge, unless and until he has either pleaded guilty to, or been convicted of, the subsequent offence.

(b) If he pleads guilty to, or is convicted of, the subsequent offence, he shall then be asked whether he has been previously convicted as alleged in the charge.

(c) If he answers that he has been so previously convicted, the Judge may proceed to pass sentence on him accordingly; but if he denies that he has been so previously convicted, or refuses to, or does not, answer such question, the jury or the Court and the assessors (as the case may be) shall then inquire concerning such previous conviction, and in such case (where the trial is by jury) it shall not be necessary to swear the jurors again.—CRIM. PRO. CODE (ACT V. OF 1898), S. 180.

Charge for Theft after a Previous Conviction.—I [name and office of Magistrate, &c.], hereby charge you [name of accused person] as follows:—

That you, on or about the day of , at , committed theft, and thereby committed an offence punishable under s. 379 of the Indian Penal Code and within the cognizance of the Court of Session [or High Court or Magistrate as the case may be].

And you the said [name of accused] stand further charged that you, before the committing of the said offence, that is to say, on the day of , had been convicted by the [state Court by which conviction was had] at of an offence punishable under Ch. XVII. of the Indian Penal Code with imprisonment for a term of three years, that is to say, the offence of housebreaking by night [describe the offence in the words used in the section under which the accused was convicted], which conviction is still in full force and effect, and that you are thereby liable to enhanced punishment under s 75 of the Indian Penal Code.

And I hereby direct that you be tried, &c. —CRIM. PRO. CODE (ACT V. OF 1898), SCH. V., Form XXVIII. (iii).

CHAPTER IV.*

GENERAL EXCEPTIONS.

Act done by a person bound, or by mistake of fact believing himself bound, by law.

76. Nothing is an offence which is done by a person who is, or who, by reason of a mistake of fact, and not by reason of a mistake of law, in good faith believes himself to be, bound by law to do it.

* Ch. IV. applies to offences punishable under ss. 121A, 124A, 225A, 225B, 294A, and 304A.—See the Indian Penal Code Amendment Act (XXVII. of 1870), s. 13, as amended by the Repealing and Amending Act (XII. of 1891). As to the application of Chapter IV. to offences under special or local laws, see s. 40, supra.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, a soldier, fires on a mob by the order of his superior officer in conformity with the commands of the law. A has committed no offence.

(b.) A, an officer of a Court of Justice, being ordered by that Court to arrest Y, and, after due enquiry, believing Z to be Y, arrests Z. A has committed no offence.

Good faith.—Nothing is said to be done or believed in good faith which is done without due care and attention. — PENAL CODE, s 52.

Effect of making of charge.—The fact that the charge is made is equivalent to a statement that every legal condition required by law to constitute the offence charged was fulfilled in the particular case. —CRIM. PRO. CODE (ACT V. OF 1898), S. 221.

Burden of proving existence of circumstances bringing the case within exceptions.—When a person is accused of any offence, the burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within any of the general exceptions in the Indian Penal Code, or within any special exception or proviso contained in any other part of the same Code, or in any law defining the offence, is upon him, and the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances — EVIDENCE ACT (I. OF 1872), S. 105.

A chaukidar wounding a thief to effect his arrest was held to be justified by the circumstances.—The wounding of a thief by a chaukidar in order to his arrest was held under the circumstances to be justifiable.—QUEEN v. PROTAB CHAUKIDAR, 2 W. R. 9. [Campbell and Glover, JJ. Jan. 16, 1865.]

A police-officer's duty in respect of the arrest and detention of accused persons.—Exposition of a police-officer's powers of arrest and detention of accused persons and witnesses with a view to the suppression of the practice of torture. Markby, J., adds: "At the expiration of 24 hours, unless the special order has been obtained the prisoner must either be discharged or sent on to the Magistrate, and any longer detention is absolutely unlawful; and though the Code is not so express upon the place at the time of confinement, still, we think, it is perfectly clear that it was intended that, where a police-officer arrested any person, the prisoner should not be kept in confinement in any place which the subordinate officer might select, but that he should, if possible, be sent immediately to the police-station, and be placed in the custody of the officer in charge of the station, who is the person entrusted by the Act with the conduct of the enquiry.—QUEEN v BEHARY SING, 7 W. R. 3. [Kemp and Markby, JJ. Jan. 4, 1867.]

A policeman torturing a man by order of a superior officer: Nothing but fear of instant death is a legal defence. — Nothing but fear of instant death is a defence for a policeman who tortures any one by order of a superior. The maxim respondeat superior has no application in such a case. Under the Bombay Police Act (IV. of 1890) every police-officer is bound to shelter a person in custody, and to arrest persons committing assaults likely to cause grievous bodily injury. If he omits to perform this duty, he is guilty of abetment. When the law imposes a duty to act on a person, his illegal omission to act renders him liable to punishment. — QUEEN-EMPRESS v. LATIF KHAN, I. L. R., 20 Bom. 394. [Jardine and Ranade, JJ. Mar. 12, 1895.]

Act of Judge when acting judicially.

77. Nothing is an offence which is done by a Judge when acting judicially in the exercise of any power which is, or which in good faith he believes to be, given to him by law.

Protection of judicial officers where they act in good faith. — According to Act XVIII. of 1850 (an Act for the Protection of Judicial Officers), no Judge, Magistrate, Justice of the Peace, Collector, or other person acting judicially, shall be liable to be sued in any Civil Court for any act done, or ordered to be done, by him in the discharge of his judicial duty, whether or not within the limits of his jurisdiction: Provided that he, at the time, in good faith, believed himself to have jurisdiction to do or order the act complained of; and no officer of any Court or other person bound to execute the lawful warrants or orders of any such Judge, Magistrate, Justice of the Peace, Collector, or other person acting judicially, shall be liable to be sued in any Civil Court for the execution of any warrant or order which he would be bound to execute, if within the jurisdiction of the person issuing the same.

A Magistrate, not acting reasonably, carefully, and circumspectly, cannot be said to have, in good faith, believed him- self to have jurisdiction.—Held that a Magistrate who failed to act reasonably, carefully, and circumspectly, cannot be said to have, "in good faith, believed himself to have jurisdiction," within the meaning of Act XVIII. of 1850; and consequently that he cannot claim the protection of that Act in an action brought against him in a Civil Court. — VITHOBA MALHARI v. ARTHUR KING CORFIELD, 3 Bom. H. C. R. App. 1. [Yardley, C J. June 16, 19, 20, 23, 25. 1855.]

A Magistrate, not acting reasonably, carefully, and circumspectly, cannot be said to have, in good faith, believed himself to have jurisdiction.—Held that neither Act XVIII. of 1850 nor sections 68 and 212 of the Code of Criminal Procedure protects a Magistrate who has failed to act reasonably, carefully, and circumspectly in the discharge of his duties. Vithoba Malhari v. Corfield (3 Bom. H. C. R. App. 1) followed.—VINAYAK DIVAKAR v. BAI ITCHA, 3 Bom. H. C. R. A. C. 36 [Westropp, Tucker, and Warden, JJ. Sep. 18, 1865.]

A Judge wilfully acting beyond his jurisdiction.—Wilful abuse of his authority by a Judge, that is, wilfully acting beyond his jurisdiction, is a good cause of action by the party who is thereby injured —AMMIAPPA MUDALI v. MOULAVI MAHOMED MUSTAFA SAIB, 2 Mad. H. C. R. 443. [Frere and Innes, JJ. Nov. 4, 1865.]

Judicial officers not protected from being sued in a Civil Court for acts not done in good faith.—Act XVIII. of 1850 does not protect Judicial Officers from being sued in a Civil Court, except in respect of acts done by them in good faith in the discharge of judicial functions. When a plaint is presented to a Judge against such an officer, which complains of a wrongful act on the part of that officer, the Judge is bound to receive the plaint, and to leave it to the defendant to plead Act XVIII. of 1850.—VENKAT SRINIVAS v. J. F. ARMSTRONG, 3 Bom. H C. R. A C. 47. [Westropp, Tucker, and Warden, JJ. Nov 30, 1865.]

A Magistrate who has not acted with due care and attention is not protected by Act XVIII. of 1850 —Act XVIII. of 1850 does not protect a Magistrate who has not acted with due care and attention. A Magistrate cannot be said to have in good faith believed himself to have jurisdiction to do, or order, an act complained of, unless, in arriving at that belief, he acted reasonably, circumspectly, and carefully He is not protected against personal liability for a misconstruction of the law unless his proceedings have been in other respects regular, and his views of the law is such as a reasonable and careful man might take. Government has no right summarily to appropriate or destroy private property merely because it considers that doing so would be for the public convenience The Government and its officers are just as much bound to proceed in such matters according to law as are private individuals, and are just as much liable in damages for illegally appropriating or destroying property for the purpose of adding to the convenience of the public as is a private individual who appropriates or destroys property for his own convenience. In case of an unlawful obstruction or nuisance, a Magistrate proceeding under Ch. XX. of the Criminal Procedure Code should call upon the person who caused the same either to remove it, or to show cause why it should not be removed within a reasonable time. If the party appears to show cause, the Magistrate should proceed in a judicial manner, giving him full and fair opportunity of protecting himself. — TARUCKNATH MOOKERJEE v. THE COLLECTOR OF HOOGHLY ON BEHALF OF GOVERNMENT, 13 W. R. C. R. 13; 4 B. L. R. A. C. 37. [Jackson and Macpherson, JJ. Jan. 5, 1870.]

A Magistrate who had ordered the removal of a house as a nuisance and obstruction to the public thoroughfare was held to have had no jurisdiction.—The first defendant, acting as a Magistrate, ordered the removal of the plaintiff's house under s. 308 of the Criminal Procedure Code, upon the ground that it was a nuisance and obstruction to the public thoroughfare Held that the house was neither an obstruction nor a nuisance, and that the first defendant had no jurisdiction to direct its removal; but the first defendant having acted in his judicial capacity, and in good faith believed himself at the time to have jurisdiction, a suit for damages could not be maintained against him.—SESHAIYANGAR v. R. RAGUNATHA ROW, 5 Mad H. C. R. 345. [Scotland, C.J., and Holloway, J. June 20, 1870.]

A Magistrate ordered the cutting of a bund: A suit for damages does not lie against him, as he acted judicially, and within his jurisdiction.—A suit for damages does not lie against a Deputy Magistrate acting judicially and within his jurisdiction. A Deputy Magistrate has no legal authority to order the cutting of a bund, or otherwise to interfere with it, except by a proceeding held as prescribed in Ch. XX. of the Criminal Procedure Code, under which he is bound to fix a day on which the owner of the bund may shew cause why it should not be cut, and to give a full and fair opportunity of being heard and of protecting himself. A proceeding under Ch XX., if regular, and such as the law prescribes, is a judicial proceeding. But mere irregularity or incompleteness of procedure, such as holding inquiry through the police instead of conducting it personally, does not affect the jurisdiction of a Magistrate acting under that law, or render him liable to an action for damages. A party who forces himself into a suit as defendant is as much a defendant in all respects as if he had been originally named a defendant by the plaintiff, and if issues raised by him as between himself and the plaintiff are properly tried, the judgment thereon will bind the parties whatever be the judgment on the original question between the plaintiff and those whom he sued.—COLLECTOR OF HOOGHLY ON BEHALF OF GOVERNMENT v. TARUCKNATH MOOKERJEE, 16 W. R. C. R. 63; 7 B. L. R. A. C. 449. [Jackson and Macpherson, JJ. June 16, 1871.]

78. Nothing which is done in pursuance of, or which is warranted by, the judgment or order of a Court of Justice, if done whilst such judgment or order remains in force, is an offence, notwithstanding the Court may have had no jurisdiction to pass such judgment or order, provided the person doing the act in good faith believes that the Court had such jurisdiction.

Act done pursuant to the judgment or order of Court.

Protection to parties if they act bona fide.—It has been observed by their Lordships in the Privy Council that "there can be no rule more firmly established than that, if parties bonâ fide, and not absurdly, believe that they are acting in pursuance of Statutes and according to law, they are entitled to the special protection which the Legislature intended for them, although they have done an illegal act.—RICHARD SPOONER AND BOMANJEE NOWROJEE v JUDDOW, 4 Moo I. A. 353, at p. 379. [Lord Brougham, Lord Langdale, Lord Campbell, the Right Hon. Dr. Lushington, and the Right Hon T. Pemberton Leigh. Feb. 19, 1848, and Feb. 14, 1850.]

Police-officer acting under the authority of a warrant.—When any action or prosecution shall be brought, or any proceedings held against any police-officer for any act done by him in such capacity, it shall be lawful for him to plead that such act was done by him under the authority of a warrant issued by a Magistrate Such plea shall be proved by the production of the warrant directing the act, and purporting to be signed by such Magistrate; and the defendant shall thereupon be entitled to a decree in his favour, notwithstanding any defect of jurisdiction in such Magistrate. No proof of the signature of such Magistrate shall be necessary unless the court shall see reason to doubt its being genuine. Provided always that any remedy which the party may have against the authority issuing such warrant shall not be affected by anything contained in this section. — POLICE ACT (V. OF 1861), s. 43

Arrest of judgment-debtor within precincts of Court with some show of violence and contempt.—The arrest, under civil process, of a judgment-debtor going to a Court in obedience to a citation to give evidence, and made within the precincts of that Court, and with some show of violence and contempt of Court, does not entitle the officers making the arrest to protection under s. 78, Penal Code.—THACOORDOSS NUNDEE v. SHUNKUR ROY, 3 W. R. 53. [Kemp and Seton-Karr, JJ. July 24, 1865.]

Bailiff no authority to break open a door by force.—A Civil Court's bailiff, in executing a process against the moveable property of a judgment-debtor, has no authority to use force and break open a door or gate.—JOHN ANDERSON v. J MCQUEEN, 7 W. R. 12. [Kemp and Glover, JJ. Jan. 14, 1867.]

A judicial officer issues a warrant, which he had authority to issue, and sentences accused to three years' rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 500 under ss. 379 and 411, Penal Code. He levies fine by distress and sale of cattle, before date fixed for sale: He was held protected, though he had acted with gross and culpable irregularity.— Under Act XVIII. of 1850, where an act done or ordered to be done by a judicial officer in the discharge of his judicial duties is within the limits of his jurisdiction, he is protected whether or not he has discharged those duties erroneously, irregularly, or even illegally, or without believing in good faith that he had jurisdiction to do the act complained of. Where the act done or ordered to be done in the discharge of judicial duties is without the limits of the officer's jurisdiction, he is protected if, at the time of doing or ordering it, he in good faith believed himself to have jurisdiction to do or order it. The word "jurisdiction" is used in Act XVIII of 1850 in the sense in which it was used by the Privy Council in Calder v. Halket (2 Moo. I. A. 293). It means authority or power to act in a matter, and not authority or power to do an act in a particular manner or form. A judicial officer who, in the discharge of his judicial duties, issues a warrant which he has authority to issue, though the particular form or manner in which he issues it is contrary to law, acts within and not without the limits of his jurisdiction in this sense. Where a Magistrate of the first class having sentenced an accused person to three years' rigorous imprisonment and Rs 500 fine under ss. 379 and 411 of the Penal Code, and having issued a warrant, purporting to act under s. 386 of the Criminal Procedure Code, for the levy of the fine by distress and sale of cattle belonging to the accused, sold such cattle before the date fixed for the sale, and in contravention of Form 37, Sch. V., and s. 554 of the Code, and Form D in Ch. V. of the Circular Orders of the High Court: Held that he was acting in the discharge of his judicial duty within his jurisdiction as a Magistrate of the first class; that, under such circumstances, it was immaterial that he did not, in good faith, believe himself to have jurisdiction to sell the property in the manner he did; and that the fact that he acted with gross and culpable irregularity did not deprive him of the protection afforded by Act XVIII. of 1850. —TEVEN v. RAM LAL, I. L. R., 12 All 115. [Edge, C.J., and Tyrrell, J. Jan. 31, 1890]

79. Nothing is an offence which is done by any person who is justified by law, or who, by reason of a mistake of fact, and not by reason of a mistake of law, in good faith believes himself to be justified by law, in doing it.
